30 Killed, 100 Injured As Tornadoes Smash Into Mid-West Towns

Property Damage In Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and Missouri Is Reported High

Chicago, May 21 (U.P.).—A chain of tornadoes ripped through Illinois, Indiana, Missouri and Iowa today killing at least 30 persons, injuring more than 100 others and damaging property in a dozen towns and cities.

Communications were cut, wires and poles torn down, and in some areas radio communications were disrupted by static.

The death toll, incomplete as yet, totaled 30 as follows:

ILLINOIS—Four dead at Wood River. Four dead at Palestine.

INDIANA—10 to 15 dead at Shelburn; two dead at Terre Haute.

MISSOURI — Three dead at Clarksville; one dead at Cape Girardeau; one dead at Bessville.

52 Killed in Week

In a week of storms and floods in the Midwest and Southwest, a total of 52 persons have lost their lives. The toll may be two higher—54—when all missing persons are accounted for in Ft. Worth, Tex., stricken by floods early in the week.

Weathermen at Chicago said the tornadoes which ravaged the Midwest tonight were separate storms.

One swept the North St. Louis County area in Missouri, hopped the Mississippi into the Wood River, Ill., area, and devastated portions of Wood River and Hartford.

Another killed a man at Cape Girardeau, nearly 100 miles south and slightly east of St. Louis. Still another killed three men at Clarksville, Mo., about 80 miles north of St. Louis, highway patrolmen said, injuring a number of others and causing heavy damage. The same storm damaged Ashley, Mo., Bowling Green and Cyrene.

Lights and Water Cut Off

A third storm swept through Palestine, Ill., near the Indiana border, killing at least four persons and leaving the town without lights or water.

It was believed this was the same storm which later struck at Shelburn and Terre Haute.

Euleta Slover, a reporter for the Sullivan (Ind.) Times, told the United Press that the tornado sounded like "a whole bunch of Diesel locomotives speeding into town" at Shelburn.

Houses were flattened and trees down "everywhere," she said.

At Indianapolis, a Civil Aeronautics Administration observer said that there were scattered tornadoes "all over Indiana."

Homes Damaged

Illinois patrolmen reported 20 hurt and 150 homes damaged in the Wood River area. Mayor William Stoneham said he knew of three persons dead in the town, and believed a fourth dead listed by the highway patrol was from

A man locked up Mrs. Virginia Allen, 24, a clerk, in a rest room at the Blue Ribbon Laundry, 1301 9th st. nw., yesterday and looted the cash register of $90.

Mrs. Allen was alone when the man entered at about 8:30 a. m. He indicated he had a pistol in his pants pocket. After locking Mrs. Allen in the rest room, the man helped himself to the contents of the register and fled.

Mrs. Allen was released several minutes later when a customer entered. She described the thief as a Negro, about 27 years old, 5 feet 2 inches, about 135 pounds, and said he was wearing blue trousers and a green sport shirt.

Truman Heads 500 Guests

Stuffing Beaten Out of Shirts Once More at Gridiron Dinner

Timely topics and the top men in America's public life were subjected to some good-natured ribbing last night at the spring dinner of the Gridiron Club at the Hotel Statler.

President Truman, who headed the 500 guests at the dinner, came in for his share of satire as club members inquired in song what happened to his "lost mandate," the one the voters supposedly handed him last November.

The Republicans' never-ending hope of riding back into power, the North Atlantic Pact, the coalition of the GOP and the Southern conservatives—these and many more current trends were the subjects of musical acts and skits by the club members.

President Truman responded in the time-honored Presidential speech. The counter for the Republicans came earlier from Senator Millikin of Colorado, chairman of the Republican Senate Conference. By a rule of the 64-year-old club, "reporters are never present," and so both speeches were off-the-record.

Richard L. Wilson, chief of the Washington bureau of the Cowles Publications, delivered the classic "Speech in the Dark." Wilson was inaugurated last night as the Gridiron president for 1949.

Wilson told his Gridiron dinner listeners:

"We gather on a very happy occasion. President Truman this year reached his 65th birthday. Next year the Gridiron Club will be the same age, and we both will be eligible for Social Security. Speaking for the Gridiron Club alone, we will forgo for a while the old-age retirement provisions.

"The Gridiron Club welcomes you in the spirit of this joyous springtime. It is truly a wonderful age—the age of the welfare state. Everybody gets a little something. CBS gets Benny and Crosby, Aly Khan gets Rita Hayworth and President Truman gets the Byrd. Even Governor Dewey gets a trip to Europe—but at his own expense.

"The only question remaining is whether this is the welfare state or the state of farewell.

"A dollar today goes farther than ever before. It was a great feat when Washington threw one across the Potomac. Now we pitch them across the Atlantic."

Music for the dinner was fur-

Legislative Budget Check Developing

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A bipartisan movement to revive the legislative budget in a new form as an effective check on congressional spending is developing in the Senate.

The original legislative budget procedure, set up in the Congressional Reorganization Act, has practically lapsed and a bill is pending on the Senate calendar to repeal it.

Representative Monroney (D., Okla.), one of the authors of the original act, said yesterday that proper use of the law, requiring Congress to set a spending ceiling by February 15 each year, would have averted the current congressional deficit dilemma.

The new Senate move to put the legislative budget to work in a modified form, linking it with an omnibus appropriation bill in 1950 for better control of future outlays, stems from both sides of the Senate aisle.

Senate Republican Leader Wherry (Nebr.), joined by six other Republicans and one Democrat, has introduced the new plan as a substitute for the McKellar resolution repealing existing legislative budget authority.

Senate Democratic Leader Lucas (Ill.) expressed interest in the proposal. Lucas said he particularly favors provisions for a permanent legislative budget committee staff, comparable to the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue corps of experts, to keep constant tab on Government income and outgo.

Incorporated in the plan is the omnibus appropriation bill idea of Senator Byrd (D., Va.), which, like the legislative budget, has been indorsed by the Committee for Economic Development and other business economists.

Byrd is one of the signers of the Wherry resolution. Republicans whose names are on the measure include Senators Butler (Nebr.), Ferguson (Mich.), Reed (Kans.), Saltonstall (Mass.) and Young (N. Dak.).

Representative Monroney said he has not closely studied the proposal, which has not yet been introduced in the House, but be-

Windup Action On Sales Levy Due Monday

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

District leaders on Capitol Hill last night predicted speedy conference committee action Monday on the city's 18-million-dollar revenue bill, including a 2 per cent sales levy.

The conference, set for 11 a. m., to resolve differences between the Senate and House versions of the new tax bill, with subsequent approval by both houses required, will complete congressional action and send the measure to the White House.

One House conferee last night indicated that the four major changes by the Senate in the House-passed bill would be compromised along these lines:

1. Liquor and beer gallonage taxes would be increased about 50 per cent. The House did not touch present liquor tax rates, while the Senate adopted a floor amendment to double them. The Senate District Committee had reported the bill with the 50 per cent hike.

2. The Senate-approved exemption for restaurant meals up to $1.50 might be trimmed down to about a $1 exemption since the House-passed bill carried no such relief for meals eaten away from home.

3. The Senate-passed amendment imposing a 1-cent-a-package

F. D. Roosevelt, Jr., Divorced By Socialite Wife in Nevada

Minden, Nev., May 21 (U.P.).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., today divorced her Congressman-elect husband—described by her attorney as a "future President of the United States"—on grounds of mental cruelty.

Mrs. Roosevelt, the former Ethel duPont of the millionaire family, drove with her attorney, George Springmeyer, from Reno to this small town, 50 miles to the south, in a vain attempt to escape reporters.

Hearing of the case took 10 minutes.

District Judge Harry Watson granted Mrs. Roosevelt the divorce from the son of the late President on grounds of simple incompatibility, or as it is referred to in Nevada, "extreme cruelty, entirely mental in nature."

A sealed agreement was approved by the court, covering a property settlement and providing for custody of the couple's two children, Franklin, 3d, 10, and Christopher, 7.

The same document also made provisions for establishment of a substantial trust fund for the children, who remained in an Eastern school while their socialite mother established her 42-day Nevada residence.

Franklin, jr., was the third of the late President's five children to be divorced in the small Minden courthouse. The late President's daughter, Anna, divorced Curtis B. Dahl on July 30, 1934, and her brother, Elliott, divorced Elizabeth Donner on July 17, 1933. James, the eldest son, also has been divorced but not here.

McCarran Subpenas Spy Files

Senator to Spill 'Alarming' Data If Justice, State Duck Showdown

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

A Senate Judiciary Subcommittee yesterday applied unprecedented pressure on the Executive branch to pry loose 168 files on "subversive activities" of foreign agents.

Chairman McCarran (D., Nev.) of the subcommittee said two subpenas were issued instructing the State and Justice Departments to produce the files. If they are withheld, he declared, his subcommittee will disclose confidential, detailed and "alarming" information already in its possession.

The subcommittee is considering legislation to tighten immigration laws to prevent entrance of espionage agents on diplomatic status and to make possible deportation of such agents already here.

McCarran described his action yesterday as a "showdown."

"If I am unsuccessful in compelling the production of these files," McCarran said, "I shall publicly reveal information, in the files of the subcommittee, which has thus far been confidential, respecting subversive activities which have been carried on in this country under the active direction and leadership of agents of foreign countries.

Information Is Extensive

"This information is extensive, conclusive and alarming, and includes names, places and events."

McCarran revealed that some of the information "has been copied from confidential reports now in custody of the Department of Justice and the Department of State." Some of it, he added, was "from persons whose identity cannot be revealed because to do so would jeapordize their lives." Then he added this blunt declaration:

"It is high time for a showdown on whether or not the people can be told the facts and I am confident that when the facts are revealed, the American people will insist on decisive action."

The subcommittee's move was just one more in a long battle between Congress and the Administration over production of individual dossiers for study by congressional committees. Since early last year executive departments have refused to make such records available by direct order of President Truman.

Records demanded by McCarran contain information accumulated by the FBI and the State Department on aliens admitted to this country, including FBI security reports. McCarran expressed dissatisfaction with the Administration's attitude when the hearings began two weeks ago.

Trying for Cooperation

"We have been trying to get cooperation," he told reporters at that time. "We haven't had much results but we shall continue to try."

The subpenas issued yesterday were returnable at 9:30 a. m. next Wednesday. That for the State Department was left at the office of John E. Puerifoy, Assistant Secretary of State for Administration. The Justice subpena was directed to Attorney General Clark but department officials could not say whether it had been served.

McCarran said yesterday that if

Civil Service Fires Employe Who Sought Seat in Congress

(Pictures on Page 5)

By Walter T. Pulliam
Post Reporter

The Civil Service Commission has ordered fired an $8500-a-year Army Department employe who last year ran for Congress in Pennsylvania against Representative Francis E. Walter, Democratic patronage chief in the House.

The employe, Roy E. James, 1210 S. Barton st., Arlington, said last night Walter had been "after his hide" since the election and that he also suspected White House interference.

Before the Army received a directive, dated May 12, from the Civil Service Commission to remove him, he said, he had been subjected to a special loyalty investigation and had been given to understand Walter instigated it.

Also, he said, the Pentagon "grapevine" had passed on to him information that Assistant Secretary of the Army Tracy Voorhees had been asked to report to the White House after Walter learned the Army had hired him.

Neither Representative Walter, nor H. B. Mitchell, president of the Civil Service Commission, could be reached for comment. A White House press aide said it would be "impossible" to check James' statements over the weekend.

The 40-year-old veteran Government worker, who said he has held permanent civil service status since 1931, when he took a $1260 file clerk's job, resigned from an Interior Department CAF-14 position last year to make his unsuccessful congressional race as a Republican in Pennsylvania's 20th District.

After he lost, he said, he "was shopping around" when the Army Department hired him as a programming specialist for the Army's European Recovery Group. He began work January 10 on a per diem basis, and on February 10 was given a CAF-14 rating, the same rating he had held in the Interior Department.

Then, he said, after his Democratic opponent found out about it, his troubles began.

He was completely cleared in the special loyalty check, which was in addition to the customary FBI one for all Government workers, James declared.

He said when Voorhees informed him about March 1 that he was to undergo the check, he had asked who had brought the charges against him, and Voorhees said he had "heard" from Representative Walter.

Next, he said, came the Civil Service order for his removal from the job.

The directive, as quoted by him, made no mention of his preelection Government service and experience, but said only the

Red Police Fire on Strikers In American Zone of Berlin; Russian Gunners Ride Trains

500 Hurt, Including Soviet Officers; Battles Are Waged For Rail Stations

(From Press Dispatches)

Berlin (Sunday), May 22.—East Berlin police fired on striking railway workers at two elevated stations in the American sector last night and early today, West Berlin police reported.

The new violence added to the more than 500 casualties reported earlier. A Russian general and a number of Russian officers were reported mobbed by strikers. The Russians posted Soviet machine gunners aboard a number of trains.

More than 200 shots were fired and at least five persons were injured when a train coming from the adjoining Soviet sector with a large number of Russian zone police aboard attempted to capture Neukoelln station, held by the strikers.

The Russian zone police opened fire immediately on strikers in the elevated station and drove them out. But after holding the station for a short time they ran out of ammunition and were driven out by the strikers.

An unknown number were hurt in an unsuccessful midnight attempt by west German strikers to wrest the key Wannsee station from strikebreakers and Soviet police.

More than 150 strikers stormed the Wannsee station in which the Soviet police and Communist strikebreakers had barricaded themselves. Warnings were shouted and at least 30 shots fired into the air by the Communists before they trained their guns directly on the strikers to stop them. Witnesses said the battle "looked like a revolution" before the strikers retreated. There was no immediate report of casualties in the Wannsee fighting.

Operations Partly Resumed

The Russians put armed troops aboard elevated trains late yesterday when savage fighting persisted all day in Berlin's rail terminals, elevated stations and in the streets.

Pitched battles between strikers and Communist strikebreakers and police involved the use of guns, pickaxes, clubs, stones and wire whips.

The German strikers, who had fought Communist strikebreakers all day, did not dare interfere with the Soviet troops. Part of the elevated system resumed operation under the Soviet guns.

The worst outbreak of violence in Berlin since the end of the war saw one Soviet general mobbed, seven Russian officers stoned and others cursed and spat upon. Soviet sector railway police were beaten and hundreds of strikers and Communists injured in the fighting.

Most of the violence occurred at elevated stations which are guarded

Wing Discovery to Increase Great B-36's Payload Six-Fold

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Old Point Comfort, Va., May 21.—Recent wind tunnel tests at the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics' Langley Laboratory have convinced scientists that modification of the wings of B-36 type aircraft will increase their payload six fold.

The experiments show, say NACA experts, that vast improvement in the lift qualities of such present-day planes is possible by making minute slots all over their wings and employing pumps to suck the airflow closely over their entire surface.

This research advance—which could boost the bombload of a B-36 bomber from 5 to 30 tons without lowering its 8000-mile range—was described by aircraft manufacturers at the Langley Laboratory's biennial inspection as the most significant development of this year's meeting.

May Effect Controversy

And it introduces an important new element into the Air Force-Navy controversy over the merits of the giant B-36. The House Armed Services Committee last week asked Defense Secretary Louis Johnson to stage a test of the ability of Navy jet fighters to intercept and shoot down the big inter-continental bomber.

Two other long steps in aeronautical research disclosed at the 1949 gathering of top aviation men, however, promise to improve greatly the performance of jet aircraft at high altitudes—and thus pos-

Shanghai Is Rocked by Blast When Huge Arsenal Blows up

Shanghai (Sunday) May 22 (AP).—One of Shanghai's biggest arsenals, only three miles from the downtown district, blew up today and burned fiercely as other fires sprang up in and around the besieged metropolis.

The explosion was at the huge Kiangnan Arsenal and dockyard on the Whangpoo River about three miles from Shanghai's center.

The blast shook the heart of Shanghai and echoed across the countryside.

The cause of the explosion was not explained. However, fighting has been reported in the vicinity of the arsenal.

The situation was extremely confused. Authorities offered only vague answers to the causes of at least 20 fires that raged in and around Shanghai.

Every type of gunfire boomed and chattered throughout the night. Fires leaped and glowed in many directions. Some were oil tanks. Some were warehouses. Some were dockyards in the Pootung district, across the Whangpoo east of Shanghai.

The more distant glows appeared to be suburban villages.

The Reds seemed to be pressing their attack at many points on Shanghai's defense perimeter.

The Chinese Nationalist garrison communique described only minor actions, including a drive by 300 Communists on the lower Pootung dock area directly across the Whangpoo River from Shanghai.

This push resulted in destruction of an oil tank at the Standard Vacuum depot, but the garrison said the Reds were driven back.

It said other Red attacks were repulsed all the way down the

AEC Plans to Insist On Loyalty Oaths

By the United Press

The Atomic Energy Commission acted under congressional pressure last night to root out Communists receiving commission fellowships for scientific study.

The commission announced that loyalty oaths and non-Communist affidavits would be required of all 497 persons now getting its Federal study grants for advanced work in medicine, biology and the physical sciences.

The regulation also applies to future applicants for fellowships and covers students engaged in nonsecret work as well as in restricted atomic research.

Fellows Cleared by FBI

Of the 497 grants, 240 become effective during the year beginning July 1. Of the 257 now in effect, only 103 are for research and study involving access to atomic secrets. The commission said holders of those fellowships have been investigated and cleared by the FBI.

The commission move stemmed from the disclosure before a Senate subcommittee that one of the commission's grants was going to an admitted Communist, 23-year-old Hans Freistadt, a student at the University of North Carolina.

Senators charged that two or three other Reds were sharing in the five-million-dollar-a-year program under which the commission finances scientific study by persons of ourstanding ability.

Under fire with Freistadt was Dr. Isador S. Edelman, a Brooklyn-born scientist now doing advanced medical research in Boston under a commission fellowship.

Fellowship Withdrawn

The National Research Council, which administers the grants, said Freistadt's fellowship is being withdrawn and that Edelman will lose his, too, if the Communist charges against him are proved.

Edelman, who denies the charges, tried to get into secret atomic research, but was shunted off to medical study when FBI reported what the commission called "derogatory" information about him.

Edelman will testify Monday and Tuesday before two congressional committees which are investigating the fellowship program, charges of monopolistic practices in the atomic program, and the disappearance of a small amount of Uranium-235 from the Argonne National Laboratory near Chicago.

There were strong indications that Congress might not be satisfied with the new loyalty regulations imposed by the Atomic Energy Commission on the fellowship program.

Favor Full Investigation

Senators Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) and Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), present and past chairmen of the Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee, said they favored a full FBI investigation of all applicants for the Federal study grants.

But Chairman O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) of the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee, which passes on all funds for the atomic energy program, said his group feels no investigation is needed for persons getting nonsecret study grants. O'Mahoney emphasized, however, that his subcommittee intends to make it illegal to give Federal grants to Communists.

Edelman will make his first congressional appearance before the Joint Atomic Committee on Monday. The following day he will be questioned by O'Mahoney's subcommittee.

Contracts to Be Investigated

After disposing of the fellowship question, O'Mahoney said, his group will investigate the Atomic Energy Commission's contracts with private companies, such as tl General Electric Co.
ested particularly in General Electric contracts for operation of the atomic works at Hanford, Wash., and the Knolls Power Laboratory at Schenectady, N. Y.

O'Mahoney said a contract awarded to GE in May, 1946, for $137,200,000 on a cost-plus one dollar fixed fee basis already has mushroomed to 375 million dollars.

'Fugitive'

Demand Sent To Britain for Eisler Return

By The Associated Press

An official demand on the British government for return of Communist leader Gerhart Eisler to the United States was dispatched to London yesterday by the State Department.

Officials said the requisition treats the 52-year-old runaway strictly as a convicted criminal and a fugitive from justice, rather than a political refugee—which is the first issue British authorities will have to decide.

State Department experts expressed the belief that State and Justice Department lawyers provivid in the requisition papers a firm legal argument to use with the British government in insisting on Eisler's return here.

If the British government rules he is not a political refugee, the question arises whether the accusations made against him, in the opinion of a British judge, are such as to warrant his extradition to the United States under terms of British law and the Anglo-American treaty.

Eisler left New York on the Polish vessel Batory two weeks ago, facing jail on conviction of passport fraud and contempt of Congress. He skipped out while he was free on bond pending appeal.

At Southampton, England, the United States obtained a warrant for Eisler's arrest as a fugitive from justice.

levy on cigarettes, but making them exempt from the sales tax, probably would stay in the bill. House members have indicated no opposition to the cigarette levy.

4. Sales tax exemption of all medicines, patent and prescription, stands a better than even chance of conference approval. The lower House, owing to objections of a few members, provided exemption only for prescription medicine.

Some House District Committee members have taken the position that a 100 per cent boost in liquor taxes would "encourage liquor bootlegging in the District."

Some also have argued that a resulting slowdown in liquor sales would reduce the total District income from that source.

The liquor increase item undoubtedly will be the principal point of discussion at the Monday meeting.

The omnibus revenue bill also:

1. Would provide a 1-year increase of 15 cents in the present $2 per $100 tax on real estate, starting July 1.
2. Would raise liquor license fees 50 per cent.
3. Would increase the personal income tax exemption in the District from $1000 to $4000, on income received after December 31, 1949.
4. Would reduce the unincorporated business income tax exemption from $10,000 to $5000, effective January 1, 1950.

On the present timetable, the sales and liquor tax changes will become effective August 1.

Dewey May Attend

Dulles said Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, now on a European tour, might sit in one of the Big Four sessions.

A short time after his arrival, Acheson met with Bevin and French Foreign Minister Schuman in the latter's office for nearly three hours. With him was Jessup, Charles E. Bohlen, State Department counselor, and Dulles.

The three ministers had before them a report on proposed strategy that had been drawn up in week-long meetings by their advisers. The ministers expected to meet again Sunday and perhaps Monday morning. Their conference was highly secret.

Their main task, it was reported, was to eliminate a few minor differences which their advisers had not been able to settle.

Diplomatic sources said Britain has suggested the four-power conference be in strict secrecy. Neither the French nor the Americans liked the idea.

The British view is that secrecy prevents the conference being used as a Soviet propaganda forum and is more conducive to old-fashioned diplomatic bargaining.

West to Use Fluid Strategy

The Americans and French, on the other hand, argue that the western case for Germany's future will sound as attractive to the German people as anything Russia may offer.

Official sources predicted that Western strategy will be fluid until it is learned what Vishinsky has brought in his briefcase.

They are expected to urge the extension of the Bonn constitution for western Germany to all Germany. But if Vishinsky rejects this, as is expected, they may offer a working arrangement by which a German liaison committee operating in Berlin would maintain a semblance of east-west German unity.

Official sources say formation of central German agencies to control communications, transport, currency and trade might keep Germany united on a functional, though not on a political, basis.

Well-informed French sources say the plan would leave Berlin an international city, perhaps under the United Nations.

This will be the first full Foreign Ministers Council since December, 1947, when Secretary of State George C. Marshall broke off the London Conference.

A new factor since then is the greatly increased unity among the three Western Powers, who at last have agreed to merge their occupation zones into a west German state.

The issues involve the political regime for Germany, reparations, frontiers, economic supervision, prevention of rearmament and Germany's place among her neighbors.

the area of the city, but not in it.

Red Cross workers set up quarters for 100 homeless persons in the American Legion home.

Roy Devasher, Granite City, said that he was driving through Wood River when the tornado hit.

A camp containing about 20 trailers was hit by the storm and some of them were thrown 300 or 400 feet, he said. He said the camp was "wiped out."

Oil Tanks Set Afire

Lightning hit the oil storage tanks at a refinery at Wood River, he reported. They were set afire, casting off heavy black smoke.

The two dead at Terre Haute were caught in a city park by a falling tree. Several small towns near the western Indiana city were struck, buildings unroofed and trees downed.

Details were lacking on conditions at Palestine, which State police said had a population of about 2000 persons. The officers reported that the northeast corner of Palestine was struck by the high winds.

Roads around the town, which is in the Wabash valley, were blocked by debris, and water and power were shut off, police said. They reported that a nine-man police crew sent from a station at Effingham had not been heard from for hours, apparently because of the difficulty of radio communications.

Debris Clutters Roads

Communication with Wood River likewise was difficult, State police said. They said telephones were knocked out, and roads were cluttered with debris by the roarirg winds.

The Indiana twister leveled 200 homes in the west end of Shelburn.

Early in the evening, 52 persons from Shelburn were brought in to nearby Sullivan hospitals. A nurse said casualties were "filling the halls and basement."

The storm at Shelburn leveled the high school gymnasium and cut the top floor off the two-story high school building.

The Red Cross estimated damage in the rural area north of Palestine at from $75,000 to $100,000. The tornado knocked out a water company's power plant serving the towns of Robinson, Oblong and Palestine.

In northwest St. Louis County, a twister struck the Bridgeton area. There were no immediate reports of casualties, but property damage was expected to be heavy. The twister lashed at Cyrene, Eolia, Perry, and Bowling Green, all north of St. Louis, and damaged trees, roofs, and window glass at Hannibal, Mo. At least one home was reported destroyed in both Cyrene and Eolia.

By States the towns reported hit by storms in the last few days:

MISSOURI — One tornado tonight in eastern part. Towns hit: Cyrene, Eolia, Perry, Bowling Green, Hannibal, Clarksville, Cape Girardeau and Bridgeton area in northeast St. Louis County. Communications lines out at Cape Girardeau.

ILLINOIS — Two tornadoes tonight. Hit vicinity of Alton, Wood River, Hartford and Palestine. Damage estimated $1,100,000 to two million dollars.

Indiana—One tornado tonight eastern sector Terre Haute and Shelburn to the south. At least 200 homes leveled.

Iowa—One tornado today at Keosauqua. Homes, farms damaged, trees uprooted.

Oklahoma — Twenty-one tornadoes in four days. Towns hit: Beaver, Balko, Woodward, Gage, Geary, Cherokee, Nash, Jet, Butler, Fargo, Shattuck. Others in rural areas. No estimate of damage because of wide area involved.

Kansas — Fourteen tornadoes yesterday and today. Towns hit (all small): Wilmore, Rozel, Gorham, Chase, rural areas hit near these cities: Garden City, Scott City, Hanston, Solomon, Junction City, Emporia, Wellington, Winfield, Iola, and Levant. No dollar estimate of damage. Seventy-five or more farm homes and buildings damaged or destroyed. At least 25 business buildings, churches and homes damaged in cities and towns. Extensive damage to utility lines.

COLORADO—One tornado near Wray in northeastern Colorado yesterday. Dozen farm buildings flattened. None injured.

NEBRASKA—One tornado yesterday near Haigler in southwest Nebraska. One injured. Two farms heavily damaged.

TENNESSEE— — Tornado yesterday struck Goin and Barn Creek community. Three injured. No estimate of damage.

Germany's Trade Financing Solved

Howley Speaking

Russians Told U. S. Objects To Kidnaping

Berlin, May 21 (AP).—Brig. Gen. Frank Howley said today the Russians have admitted sending "kidnapers" into the American sectors of Berlin.

In a blistering letter to Soviet commander Alexander Kotikov, Howley said he "appreciated the frankness" of the admission but added:

"I assure you that I will not tolerate kidnaping in the U. S. sector of Berlin. I will not countenance your sending police or other agents into the U. S. sector for the purpose of arresting Germans or any other nationals under our jurisdiction."

Howley rejected Kotikov's demand for return of nine eastern Berlin persons who tried to abduct a western Berliner and were caught.

Howley said the men not only would not be released but would be given a public trial. He reminded Kotikov that the Americans have a list of "thousands" of Germans reported "missing" in Russian hands.

The purported abduction attempt occurred four days ago. Howley said Kotikov wrote to him that the Soviet German agents had tried to take into custody Gerhard Schuett, a bookdealer, on orders from Soviet zone authorities. Kotikov is Berlin sector commander only.

General Kotikov said Schuett was suspected of conspiracy against the occupation powers. Howley retorted that Schuett and some of his associates already are under arrest for investigation of such a charge.

However, the American officer said, the presence of a Communist politician among the Soviet arresting party "casts suspicion as to the real reason" for the sortie.

He added:

"This is particularly painful to me because it marks the revival of practices which we had begun to hope had been abandoned. At the beginning of the occupation and for some time afterward, thousands of Germans disappeared mysteriously from their homes, frequently without trace . . .

"I have at hand a large dossier. It is marked 'Soviet arrests and missing persons.' Listed are the names of judges, officials, police, students, newspapermen, professional and business men and many others, all missing. There is the record of thousands of hours of search and inquiry and protest but most of the then missing are still missing today."

10 States Pass West German Constitution

Frankfurt, Germany, May 21 (AP). West Germany's constitution was approved by 79 per cent of the Parliament members in the 11 states of the new republic which it creates, final vote returns showed tonight.

Ten of the states ratified the document, which unites all of Germany except the Russian zone under a democratic self-government. Only one state rejected it.

The last state voted tonight. It was Wuerttemberg-Hohenzollern, in the French zone. Its vote was 34 to 16 in favor of the constitution, with Communists casting three of the opposition votes.

Ratification by only two-thirds of the 11 was required.

The combined vote of all 11 state Parliaments voting on the constitution showed 874 in favor and 238 against.

Sixty-six of the "no" votes were cast by Communists.

Another 101 "no" votes came from Bavaria, the only state to reject the charter. However, Bavaria announced she would not stay out of the new government if the other 10 states ratified the constitution.

The constitution will take effect Monday upon its official promulgation by the Bonn Convention which wrote it.

Berlin, May 21 (AP).—Financial questions holding up East-West German trade have been settled in four-power talks, Maj. Gen. George P. Hays said today.

The Deputy United States Military Governor said negotiations with the Russians have yielded a system of credits which carefully skirt the ticklish question of money in this two-currency land.

All that remains now is to resolve some details on the economic side, Hays said. This he expects to happen at the next meeting of the economic advisers of all four powers, probably Monday or Tuesday.

"I'm inclined to think the transport problems then will disappear," Hays said.

"Things look pretty good," said Hays. "Machinery has been agreed upon so that certain credits can be established. We plan to accomplish the flow of trade without a rate of exchange (for West and East marks) being set up."

He said the West was "perfectly willing" to reinstitute 1948 trade agreements but that they could not apply because of the double currency situation. By working out the credit plan, this demand of the Russians is being met, he said, and "in fact the 1948 trade agreements are now in force."

The items to be exchanged between Soviet and West Germany, under old trade pact, will be delivered, Hays indicated.

Moscow Press Ignores Rebuff On Proposal

By Joseph Newman

Moscow, May 21 (NYHT). — There was no mention today in the Moscow press of the State Department announcement at Washington yesterday rejecting Soviet proposals for ending the Greek civil war.

The matter is likely to be dropped for the time being, pending developments at the Council of Foreign Ministers' conference at Paris, beginning Monday. If the Paris talks bring a settlement on Germany, it is natural to believe a solution on Greece will prove much easier.

The Tass statement Thursday, which disclosed the Greek negotiations, suggested that the Soviet Union is interested in a broad settlement in Europe going even beyond a German settlement. Though Greece is excluded from the foreign ministers' agenda, it is possible that the idea of a broad settlement in Europe may now be fixed in the minds of the Paris conferees.

Washington's reply reiterated the American position that the Greek problem must be settled within the framework of the United Nations. It is observed here that there is nothing in the proposals by Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, as reported by Tass, that excludes settlement within the U. N. framework.

The principal point of Gromyko's proposals is an understanding on the withdrawal of foreign troops and the suspension of military aid to Greece.

Such an understanding would come as part of the over-all settlement on Europe, the key to which is a solution of differences on Germany.

The Foreign Ministers' Council provides an opportunity for testing a possible new approach, which envisages withdrawal of foreign troops from Germany, followed by withdrawal of troops from Greece. This would bring withdrawal of American troops from the European continent and could usher in a period of pacification that would make the North Atlantic Pact inoperative.

by German police, reinforced by Communist strikebreakers from the East zone. The Soviet officers were stoned at Schoenberg and Neukoelin stations yesterday. They had to be escorted to their cars.

The railway employes, mostly West Germans, are striking to paid in West Berlin marks, instead of East Berlin marks. The West marks are worth nearly four times as much.

The first two trains to break the picket lines under Soviet troop guard were sent through the American and French sectors. French troops chased strikers from one of the elevated stations in their sector. The French said the stations are railway territory in which Eastern police have had the right to function since 1945.

The United States commandant, Brig. Gen. Frank Howley, said United States troops would be used only if rioting got out of hand.

Almost all freight and passenger traffic between Berlin and western Germany ground to a stop. Trains to the Soviet zone, which never stopped rolling during the blockade, were affected, too.

Russia demanded help from the Western powers in maintaining order after Maj. Gen. P. A. Kvashnin, Soviet transport chief, was nearly mobbed in a heavy street fight near Tempelhof field yesterday.

An estimated 15,000 members of the Independent Trade Union Organization (UGO) living in western Berlin struck at midnight yesterday to enforce their demand against the Russian-controlled German Railway Administration.

In an effort to keep the trains moving, the Russians manned the "els" with members of the Communist-led Free German Trade Federation (FDGB). This touched off city-wide rioting, German pitted against German.

Violence flared shortly after midnight yesterday and German police squads raced to trouble spots. Fighting broke out at the big Tempelhof station, the Wannsee and Schoenberg stations in the United States sector and Charlottenburg station in British Berlin. Scores of other clashes occurred at "el" stations throughout the city.

The Russians dispatched Red army officers and men and east Berlin police to western Berlin. But only to the "el" stations which technically are under their control.

The Russians were met with curses, spitting and cries of, "Get out! You don't belong here." Nonstriking Communists singing the Internationale were jeered. At one point pickets set police dogs on nonstrikers.

On Russia's demand for help from the West, Maj. Gen. George P. Hays, U. S. deputy military governor said. "I won't use troops unless it is clearly shown that German police can't handle the situation."

On a report that the Russians might send a large number of troops over the sector border, Hays said, "Russian troops and police will NOT go beyond railroad property. If we find they are, we will take appropriate action."

General Howley, said he will keep hands off, but indicated support for the strikers' objectives.

"It is a legitimate dispute between employes and their Soviet-controlled rail management bosses," he said.

At the height of the violence, the Soviet Railway Administration announced it was "considering" giving into the workers' demands.

Heinz Bracht, head of UGO's railroad branch, said the Reichsbahn directorate's peace feeler had been turned down. He said there will be "no compromise."

The Soviet-licensed ADN news agency reported West Berlin police arrested 28 passengers and 38 Soviet sector police in the course of the riots. The United States-sponsored radio station, RIAS, said 500 Berliners were hurt.

The Allied airlift roared on as it has done during and since the blockade. The British and American planes assured west Berliners of 8000 tons of produce daily.

Peace Reigns As 60 Nations Set War Rules

Geneva, Switzerland, May 21 (AP). The representatives of 60 nations have been busy here for a month, revising the rules for any new war, and so far not a voice has been raised in anger.

The real showdown will come in about another month, however, when the completed conventions will be ready for final approval.

The Soviet Union has been conspicuous with a 29-member delegation supporting every humanitarian improvement and suggesting new regulations.

Russia pointedly ignored the conference for five months after receiving an invitation. Less than a week before it opened, she accepted the invitation. Most of her Eastern satellites, which had rejected or ignored invitations until then, quickly sent delegates or observers.

From the very first, the Soviet delegation emphasized its desire for more humanitarian treatment of war victims. However, Russia never signed the 1929 convention for the protection of prisoners of war.

European Aid Cut Slated, Cannon Says

By The Associated Press

Chairman Cannon (D., Mo.) said yesterday the House Appropriations Committee has agreed to cut funds for the European Recovery Program.

But the cuts are not expected to be deep enough to bring any loud wails from the Administration.

In fact, President Truman himself asked Congress to appropriate $157,800,000 less than the $5,430,000,000 it authorized for the 15 months ending June 30, 1950.

Representative Taber (N. Y.), top Republican on the Appropriations Committee, may try to put across a bigger reduction when the bill reaches the floor.

That will be Thursday, unless there is a rejuggling of the week's work schedule. The Appropriations Committee has called a meeting for Monday to approve the bill formally. It will announce then the exact amount of the cuts.

The Administration probably would fight larger cuts. It is letting word get around the Capitol that it would like to see the House approve a sizable fund for the program while Secretary of State Acheson is at the Foreign Ministers' Conference in Paris.

Truman and Dutra Launch Plan for Treaty To Speed Private U. S. Investment in Brazil

NYHT News Service

President Truman and President Eurico Gaspar Dutra ordered their governments yesterday to negotiate a treaty which would stimulate "the mutually beneficial flow" of private American investment in Brazil.

The two Presidents announced this and other plans for binding the United States and Brazil in closer ties a few hours before the Brazilian President's departure from Washington. Mr. Dutra went to New York yesterday afternoon after a four-day state visit with Mr. Truman, and a round of diplomatic and social engagements in the Capital.

In New York, he will attend 10 a. m. mass today at St. Patrick's Cathedral and lunch with Francis Cardinal Spellman. The city will offer him an official welcome at City Hall at noon Monday, following a parade up Broadway.

President Truman was at Union Station to see his guest off. President Dutra will remain in New York until Wednesday, then visit Tennessee Valley Authority installations in the South, flying home to Rio de Janeiro on Friday.

The joint White House statement on talks between the two chiefs of government said they discussed at length the desirability of fostering economic development and social progress through measures of many kinds.

The program they agreed upon—which will be worked out later by experts—involves mainly economic, financial and technical help to Brazil, joint efforts to eliminate double taxation, and Brazilian efforts to stimulate private American investment in that republic.

They also agreed to negotiate a second treaty to expand the present cultural exchange between the two nations.

In addition to agreeing to negotiate the treaty covering private investment, Mr. Truman assured Mr. Dutra that requests for public funds, as in the past, will be received by the United States Government with "the most attentive consideration."

"The two Presidents recognized the possibility of financing through public lending agencies appropriate development projects not suited to private financing, such as those projects which have already been accepted for financing by the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development and the Export-Import Bank," their statement said.

Mr. Dutra ended his Washington visit by addressing a special meeting of the Organization of American States at the Pan American Union, followed by a luncheon with Vice President Alben W. Barkley, diplomats and Government officials.

He told the meeting that the 21 American republics are bound together to defend and enlarge their common traditions of solidarity, peace and justice. Pointing out that it was the treaty of Rio de Janeiro which served as the model for the Atlantic Pact, he said the rest of the world should adopt inter-American principles.

B-36 Payload Is Increased

sibly more than offset any advantage gained by the propeller-driven B-36 bomber over jet fighters. They are:

1. Successful laboratory tests of a "super-charger" for jet engines which is expected to permit jet fighters to operate at much greater efficiency in the thin air 40,000 to 50,000 feet above the ground. It is a supersonic compressor or fan, which acts quite like the supercharger in reciprocating engines in boosting engine performance at high altitudes.

Having a much greater capacity for compressing air than present subsonic compressors, it will be particularly important to the high altitude performance of jet engines—a must requirement for successful fighter interception of high altitude bombers.

Automatic Controls

2. A highly promising means of overcoming the present lack of stability and control in transonic and supersonic aircraft through automatic controls employing electronics. By means of automatic changes in the rudder, elevators and ailerons to meet the air conditions, speed, etc., of the moment, it is believed that aircraft can operate equally well at high top speed and low landing speed, high and low altitudes—a condition not now possible.

All these developments, which promise great progress in civil as well as military aviation, still need considerable engineering work before introduction into service planes. But aeronautical experts attending the current NACA demonstration at nearby Langley Air Force Base consider them truly significant steps in aviation progress.

The biennial inspection is limited to invited guests from the armed forces, aircraft industry, other research establishments, the press and Government officials. Disclosures of progress—to advance further development—are weighed against military security requirements.

Other Developments

There were other developments in air research progress disclosed at the current demonstration.

John Stack, NACA scientist who shared the Collier Trophy this year for conceiving the design of the first aircraft to fly faster than sound, told reporters that American plane experts knew enough to build transonic or supersonic fighters in quantity within a reasonable time in a national emergency.

He stressed that at present we have not advanced to the point where we can build "a completely satisfactory supersonic tactical airplane." By the latter, Stack explained, he meant a fighter that would be a "good gun or rocket platform" and could perform to satisfaction in all respects in actual service. But he believes such a plane can be developed in short order under the pressure of an emergency where unlimited money and scientific brains are available.

Another disclosure was the announcement of a successful development of a transonic wind tunnel capable of providing aircraft research men with reliable test data in this range. Heretofore, the speed range between just under the speed of sound and through that speed had been a blind spot, as far as wind tunnels were concerned. We have had subsonic and supersonic tunnels, but have had to relay on other and less satisfactory tools for research in the crucial area of the so-called sonic barrier.

"Tremendous Importance"

J. Carlton Ward, board chairman of Fairchild Engine & Airplane Co., decribed the development of "boundary layer control" and the supersonic compressor for jet engines as "of tremendous importance" to the future of aviation if they can be applied practically.

"Boundary layer control" is the term applied by aircraft experts to the means of getting full lift from an airplane's wings, as demonstrated at the laboratory.

Maximum lift is obtained only when air flows smoothly over the entire wing surface. Normally, however, it partially burbles off—somewhat like water from a fast-moving ship's hull. The airplane then is very wasteful of its power.

The NACA experiments have shown that by employing suction in wings, air will flow smoothly over them and give much greater lift. This principle has been known for years, but now Langley Laboratory scientists believe they have a practical application of it. They have tested in wind tunnels, wings covered with tiny slots, employing pumps which suck the air into the slots.

Clears Slots of Rain

Some practical engineering difficulties remain to be solved, but the tests have shown, it was said, that the suction will keep the slots clear of rain.

NACA spokesmen did not identify the type of plane tested by name, but it was described as a six-engine craft with reciprocating engines capable of carrying a 10,000-pound bomb, of approximately the size, range and speed of the Convair bomber. "Boundary layer control," it was said, would permit such a plane's range to be increased from 8000 to about 10,600 miles or its payload multiplied about six times.

Mr. Ward described the NACA's work on a supersonic compressor for jet engines as "perhaps revolutionary."

One row of fan blades in the new design does the work of many rows of blades in the conventional compressor used in current jet engines. This means that future engines may be much lighter in weight, easier to manufacture and will be far less susceptible of failure.

Greater Safety Seen

A major current problem with conventional axial compressors is the extremely great number of blades, the failure of any one of which may wreck the engine. The simplicity of the supersonic compressor promises a solution of such failures which have been the cause of many jet aircraft crashes.

William Milliken, manager of the flight research department of Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory, told The Washington Post that the work being done in "automatic stabilization and control of planes by electronics has "tremendous possibilities in aircraft design, not very well appreciated."

He points out that the limited ranges of speed of aircraft in the past permitted aircraft designers to compromise on a design which fitted both their landing speed and top speed. With the much greater speeds now in view, the problem of building a plane with the configuration required both for landing and top speed is difficult. One type of wing, tail assembly, etc. is best adapted to low speed and another to high speed. The same is true of operations as low level and the thinner air now negotiable, 7 or 8 miles above sea level.

"By automatically moving the controls of an airplane—rudder, elevators and ailerons—through electronics," says Milliken, "we will have what amounts to built-in, adjustable fixed surfaces.

"It makes possible refinements in flying not possible to a pilot or the present automatic pilots, and, in effect, will let us have alternately a normal tail for low altitude and a large, vertical tail for high altitude, simply by constant, automatic adjustment of the movable surfaces."

This, if perfected, would solve the present key problem of having both good high and low speed and altitude performance in the same airplane.

Maryland Plans Drive To Reduce Accidents

Baltimore, May 21 (AP).—Declaring that "We can't go on killing them at this rate," W. H. Bishop, jr., State traffic director, announced today that he is preparing a long-range driver-responsibility campaign.

During the first four months of this year 150 persons died as a result of Maryland traffic accidents compared with 92 killed during the corresponding period of 1948.

Tariff on Watch Imports Assailed

Chicago, May 21 (AP).—An American watch manufacturer said today that an "inadequate, obsolete and unrealistic tariff" on watch imports is undermining the American watch industry's ability to meet possible war emergency demands.

James G. Shennan, president of the Elgin National Watch Co., told the United Horological Association convention that "tariffs on watches were reduced in 1936 by approximately 35 per cent.

O'Mahoney Fears Totalitarian Drift

Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), asserted yesterday that the United States is headed straight toward totalitarian government and trade cartelization.

He cited committee changes in Congress under the Reorganization Act as an example of "further concentration of control" of Government in fewer hands.

He said the millions employed by "gigantic corporations" are becoming a "proletariat," which he described as a group of workers who, though still having political freedom, are "economic serfs."

Chapters Being Formed

Senator O'Mahoney was addressing a luncheon meeting of some 40 members of the Association of American Executives at the Mayflower Hotel. The association was organized here less than a year ago, and chapters are now being formed in Richmond, Baltimore and Columbus.

Senator O'Mahoney declared the Reorganization Act has not resulted in any benefit either to Congress or to the people "because it was an attempt to deal with the fundamental vice of concentration by more concentrating."

This resulted from a reduction in the number of committees and the restriction that a Congressman may serve on only two standing committees, he said.

Under the old system, there were always at least half a dozen committee members at each meeting, he said, whereas now a subcommittee meeting will draw only the few members of that subcommittee.

Predicting that the Hoover Commission's report will be referred to the President with powers to reorganize the Executive Branch, O'Mahoney said "we are drifting into executive government right in the United States."

T. K. Quinn Speaks

A larger group of members had heard a discussion on big business in the morning session between T. K. Quinn, head of a New York management company, Dr. George Terbogh, research director of the Machinery and Allied Products Institute, and Dr. J. Freeman Pyle, dean of business and public administration at the University of Maryland.

Thomas E. Harris, assistant general counsel of the CIO, said legislation by itself cannot produce industrial harmony. On the other hand, laws like the Taft-Hartley Act destroy peaceful labor relations, he said.

Representative Burnside (D., W. Va.) was chairman of the morning session, and Representative Holifield (D., Calif.) presided over the afternoon session. General chairman was Lee Lloyd, War Assets Administration official and chairman of the association chapter.

Pact Attacked By Meeting at Cosmos Club

The North Atlantic Pact yesterday was called "not a treaty of peace but a military alliance" leading to an arms race and ultimately to war.

The declaration came from 125 men and women meeting at the Cosmos Club, clergymen, long-time pacifists, three left-wing labor representatives, and a scattering of Progressive Party workers, two prominent in the Wallace campaign.

For Soviet Settlement

The group called itself the Conference on Peaceful Alternatives to the North Atlantic Military Pact. Major alternative suggested by the group was a "peaceful solution of outstanding differences with the Soviet Union," based on such things as establishment of a united democratic Germany, strengthening of the United Nations, and outlawing of "all weapons of mass destruction."

Among sponsors of the gathering were Albert Einstein and Thomas Mann. Neither of these "big names" was able to be present. One sponsor present and active despite her 82 years was Emily Greene Balch, winner of a Nobel Peace Prize for the work of the Friends (Quakers), of which she is a member.

Active and skilled floor and chair leadership yesterday was provided by Clark Foreman and John Abt, both high in the Wallace hierarchy during last year's campaign.

Labor Leaders There

The labor members were Irving Richter, a United Auto Workers Union (CIO) legislative representative in Washington until Walter Reuther and the right wing captured control of the union; Tony Calebrese, a member of the United Electrical Workers, the biggest of the Communist-line CIO unions, and Hugh Bryson, head of the National Union of Marine Cooks and Stewards, another party-line union. Bryson also is California State chairman of the Progressive Party.

A dozen of those attending called yesterday on Senators Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) and Theodore F. Green (D., R. I.), both members of the Foreign Relations Committee. Both Senators indicated they will vote for the pact. Another conferee reported that Senator Forrest Donnell (R., Mo.) told him yesterday he would vote against the pact if it came up for a vote at this time.

Senate to Get Judgeship Bill Monday

A bill authorizing temporary appointment of a Juvenile Court judge will come up for unanimous consent consideration on the Senate floor Monday.

It would permit the President to fill the judgeship formerly held by Judge Fay L. Bentley. She is a voluntary patient at St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Representative Oren Harris (D., Ark.) chairman of the House District Judiciary Subcommittee, said yesterday that he would seek prompt action on a companion measure if the Senate acts favorably Monday.

month and seven days he worked on per diem could be regarded as qualifying him for his Army Department post.

Directive, as Quoted

The directive, as he quoted it, informed the Army that "inasmuch as Mr. James' experience and training indicate," he is "not qualified" for the job, and that "it will be necessary for the commission to request you either to separate Mr. James or to take other action to place him in a position for which he is qualified."

James said he had written the commission a letter protesting the decision.

He cited his educational background, previous Government service and his wartime naval service as qualifications for the post.

During the war, he said, he achieved the grade of commander, studied at the Naval Military Government School at Columbia University, taught military government at the Army-Navy Military Government School at Princeton, and later served in military government assignments in the Pacific of a kind somewhat similar to the duties connected with his Army Department position.

Interior Dept. Post

After the war, he became assistant chief of the Interior Department's Pacific Branch, and was head of that unit when he resigned to run for Congress.

As to education, he said he had attended Pennsylvania State, and Georgetown School of Foreign Service, and received a law degree from National University here.

Congressional Republicans immediately took up the controversy.

Senator Edward Martin (R., Pa.) called the situation to the attention of Senator William Langer (R., N. Dak.), ranking Republican member of the Senate Postoffice and Civil Service Committee. Senator Langer announced he would "look into the matter myself" and then bring it up at the next meeting of the committee.

Representative Walter, besides being chairman of the House Patronage Committee, also is chairman of the House majority caucus, and a member of the Judiciary Committee and the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Thorp Is Speaker At Luncheon of Columbia Alumni

Willard L. Thorp, Assistant Secretary of State for Economic Affairs, said yesterday that Congress will receive details of President Truman's Point 4 program "within a few days."

He made the prediction at the annual luncheon of Columbus University Clubs Alumni Group of Washington, before an audience of 100, at the Shoreham.

Those present included Mrs. Thorp, Associate Justice William O. Douglas and Mrs. Douglas; District Court Judge Alexander Holtzoff, Admiral Clark H. Woodward, retired, William Y. Webb, club present, and Mrs. Kathleen R. Clift, president of Barnard College alumnae.

U.S. Eats 10% More Than in '35-39 Era

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Americans are eating a lot more food than before the war, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported last night.

BAE said that each person this year is eating about 10 per cent more food than in the years 1935-39. So far this year, supplies of most foods have been larger than last year. Chiefly in pork, butter, cheese, vegetable oils and corn products.

'Supplies of many foods will increase seasonally during the late spring and summer," BAE predicted, "and retail food prices in the summer months are expected to average lower than last year."

This year the average American will eat more pork and better grades of beef than last year, but less veal, lamb, mutton and lower grades of beef.

Increases are expected for turkey, butter, cheese, and evaporated milk. Slight decreases are predicted for fluid milk and ice cream, eggs and lard.

Per capita consumption of canned fruits and vegetables and some of the corn products may be higher than in 1948, while a drop is expected for fresh apples, citrus fruits, canned fruits juices and sugar.

"No sharp decline in retail food prices from last year's level is expected for 1949," says BAE. "General economic activity has weakened somewhat from the 1948 record, but will remain high throughout the year."

Here are the amounts of food BAE says the average American will eat during 1949, compared with 1935-39 and last year:

| | 1935-39 | 1948 | This Year |
|---|---|---|---|
| Meat, lbs. | 126.2 | 146.4 | 146.8 |
| Eggs, | 37.3 | 48.2 | 47.9 |
| Chicken, lbs. | 17.9 | 23.0 | 22.9 |
| Turkey, lbs. | 2.6 | 3.7 | 3.8 |
| Milk (all milk products) lbs. | 801 | 750 | 753 |
| Butter | 16.7 | 10.0 | 10.8 |
| Lard | 11.0 | 12.7 | 12.7 |
| Margarine | 2.9 | 6.1 | 6.1 |
| Shortening | 11.7 | 9.6 | 6.9 |
| Other edible fats | 6.3 | 7.0 | 7.0 |
| Fruits | 137.7 | 133.8 | 131 |
| Citrus fruits, lbs. | 48.9 | 53.8 | 50 |
| Apples | 30.4 | 25.2 | 25.2 |
| Vegetables, fr. | 235 | 256 | 256 |
| Vegetables, can. | 29.9 | 36.5 | 38.3 |
| Vegetables, fr. | 0.4 | 3.0 | 2.9 |
| Potatoes | 131 | 108 | 110 |
| Sweet Potatoes | 21.4 | 14.0 | 14.0 |
| Beans, dry | 8.8 | 7.7 | 8.5 |
| Sugar | 96.5 | 96 | 90-95 |
| Corn meal | 22.9 | 14.5 | 15 |
| Corn sirup | 7.6 | 8.2 | 10 |
| Corn starch | 1.3 | 1.7 | 1.7 |
| Corn sugar | 2.7 | 4.0 | 4.5 |
| Breakfast cereals | 1.6 | 1.7 | 1.7 |
| Hominy | 1.4 | 2.4 | 2.4 |

| Wheat cereals | 3.7 | 3.5 | 3.5 |
| Rye flour | 2.2 | 1.6 | 1.6 |
| Rice, milled | 5.6 | 4.9 | 5.0 |
| Coffee | 14.0 | 18.9 | 18.9 |
| Tea | 0.67 | 0.55 | 0.55 |
| Cocoa | 4.4 | 3.7 | 3.7 |
| Peanuts | 4.4 | 4.3 | 4.3 |

The figures point out clearly that those foods most often dropped in dieting lists, such as potatoes, corn and wheat products, have shown a steady loss. In 10 years the consumption of corn meal has dropped about 35 per cent, and wheat flour 18 pounds from 153 to 135 a person. The effect of high prices on some other lines, such as cocoa and sugar, are shown.

In virtually every category, except fish, the per capita consumption has dropped slightly since 1947—the first year after the war, when consumption figures reached an all-time high.

As Exports Drop

Slump Plan Is Mapped By Britain

London, May 21 (AP).—The Labor Government of Britain, whose exports have fallen for the last three months in a row, is thinking in terms of a depression and has a rough plan to deal with one.

William Glenvil Hall, financial secretary to the treasury, let this out last night at a party meeting in Wisbech, Cambridgeshire.

Hall said:

"I can assure you we are not unaware that a slump may come, and we are not without plans to meet it if it does."

He suggested three ways the government might try to counteract it:

"Pay back 800 million pounds $3,200,000,000) in "postwar credits." "This money is still due from a special forced loan levied upon income taxpayers in wartime.

2. Put "three or four more shillings each week"—60 of 80 cents—into everybody's pocket by lowering contributions to the National Health Service. Now every worker pays around five shillings, eight-pence (one dollar 14 2/3 cents, a week into the National Insurance Fund, which helps finance health and other social services.

3. Put into effect a government "capital investment plan" for building schools, hospitals and the like.

By $2 Billions

Bipartisan Plan Would Cut Budget

By The Associated Press

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) forecast nearly solid Senate Republican support for a bipartisan move to slice about two billion dollars off appropriations.

Announcing that GOP members are abandoning their unsuccessful efforts to trim separate money bills, the Ohio Senator said he will ask his party members to get behind a proposal being drafted by Senators Russell (D., Ga.) and Cordon R., Oreg.). Taft is GOP Senate policy chief.

Russell and Cordon are working out a formula for percentage cuts. These would be applied to most of the appropriations to run the Government for the year beginning next July 1.

"I think we'll get all of the Republicans to support this," Taft said. "If enough Democrats go along we'll get some economy."

Russell said the plan is to hang the proposal on the last regular money measure which goes before the Senate. If Congress approves the measure with this rider, the authors think they will have a form of insurance against any presidential veto. They argue that President Truman wouldn't be likely to veto an important money measure just to strike out the economy move.

Mr. Truman has contended that his $41,858,000,000 budget is a rock bottom figure. But there are signs that Democrats who have led the way in beating down individual GOP efforts to cut expenses are beginning to feel uneasy about the prospect of a Treasury deficit.

Senator Lucas of Illinois, the Democratic leader, said he thinks the Democrats will work out an "equitable" formula to get some economies before the session ends.

President Truman has urged a 4 billion dollar tax increase to avoid a deficit and further reduce the National debt.

Congressional tax experts last week estimated the Truman-requested expenditures would mean a deficit of 3 billion dollars because of expected decline in revenues from present taxes.

Senator Tydings (D., Md.) has offered a proposal to require President Truman to make a 5 per cent cutback in spending. But Republicans are shying away from that, believing that Mr. Truman would veto any such measure, or that cuts made under it might prove politically awkward, with the Republicans getting the blame.

Economy Move Seeks Beginning in Expenditures of Both Houses of Congress

lieves any plan whereby Congress sets budget limits and observes them "will help."

"I think it very unfortunate that the Appropriations Committee, which has always opposed the legislative budget, has not made it effective during the three years of its existence," Monroney told The Washington Post.

"Today we are faced with the sudden problem of incurring a three-billion-dollar deficit with the session two thirds over and almost all of the appropriations bills passed by the House. We should and could have known by February 15 the approximate income and could have made up our minds how much we could therefor afford to spend.

"I hope that the predicament the Eighty-first Congress now finds itself in will lead to some new mechanism that will go farther in forcing Congress to face up to its fiscal responsibility, namely: 'How much will you take in and how much will you spend?'"

Monroney said he is convinced that "if this current economy wave fails Congress must meet its responsibility of levying taxes to prevent deficit financing."

Near the start of the session Congress postponed the effective date of the legislative budget from February 15 to May 15, then allowed the machinery to expire altogether. The McKellar resolution repealing the requirement has been inactive on the Senate calendar since May 5.

Wherry said he hopes with bipartisan support to substitute the new plan for the repealer. If the Senate floor move fails, he said he will seek action by the Senate Rules Committee, of which he is ranking member.

The new bipartisan proposal would:

1. Set up a comparatively small legislative budget committee of 20 members — five each from the House and Senate Appropriations and tax-making committees—which would hold its first meeting in July, 1949.

2. At the start of each regular session the joint committee would estimate over-all Federal receipts and expenditures. By February 15 the committee would recommend to Congress (a) a maximum to be appropriated for expenditures and (b) that public revenues or the public debt be increased or decreased as the case may be.

3. An expert staff (of from 75 to 100) to keep the committee constantly informed on budget developments.

4. Starting with the second session of the Eighty-first Congress, appropriations would be consolidated in one general appropriation bill. This might be divided into separate titles, corresponding in general to the separate appropriation bills Congress now considers individually.

5. The resolution provides that the aggregate appropriations in the omnibus bill "shall approximate the maximum total recommended by the legislative budget committee."

The theory of one omnibus appropriation bill is that Congress will be better able to deal with expenditures in an over-all way than by piecemeal enactment of departmental bills.

U. S. Steel Rejects Pensions Demand

New York, May 21 (NYHT).—The United States Steel Corp. today rejected a demand for pensions for 160,000 workers made by the United Steelworkers of America, (CIO). The union is one of the country's largest.

The company's position was made known in a letter sent today to Philip Murray, president of the Steelworkers' Union and also of the CIO, even before contract meetings began. The request for pensions is one of the steelworkers' three principal fourth-round demands.

The letter was sent by C. R. Cox, president of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp., a U. S. Steel subsidiary. Other subsidiaries will send similar letters shortly, it was disclosed.

Pensions Excluded

The company's position is that pensions are excluded as a subject for negotiation under the contract reopening clause, which permits negotiations on wage increases and insurance benefits, which the union also is demanding.

The company indicated that it was not looking forward to bargaining on the demands for wage boosts and for "life, accident, health, medical and hospital insurance benefits" made by the union.

It said it "regrets" that "the union has exercised its right to open the agreement on these subjects in light of the downward trend in cost of living and present uncertainties in the general business situation."

To Meet With Union

The company added that it would, "nevertheless," meet with the union on these demands on June 15, the opening date asked by the union. The meetings probably will be held in Pittsburgh.

The union has emphasized that its interpretation of the contract reopening clause included pensions as a subject for negotiation.

U. S. Steel, the largest basic steel producer in the country, traditionally sets the pattern for wage increases and other benefits in the steel industry, and this pattern often has much influence on negotiations in other basic industries.

Signs Point All Ways on Labor Law

The weekend's outlook on labor legislation was like the Potomac yesterday—muddied.

There was no telling which way the Administration would go in seeking repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act. And there was considerable doubt whether there would be any going at all for this session of Congress.

President Truman, supported by John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers, A. F. Whitney's Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, and the left-wing bloc of the CIO, is holding out for repealing the Taft-Hartley Act with the Thomas-Lesinski bill.

The Thomas-Lesinski bill would restore the Wagner Act with certain "improvements" suggested by President Truman. The right-wing Mine Workers, and the left-wing unions like the United Electrical Workers, would just as soon not have any of the "improvements."

Several of the President's stanchest backers on Capitol Hill, like Speaker Sam Rayburn, believe there's no chance of repealing the Taft-Hartley Act in this session of Congress unless a stronger substitute than the Thomas-Lesinski bill is available.

The CIO vaguely, and the AFL specifically, are reluctantly willing to recede from their original stand for an unamended Thomas-Lesinski bill. The AFL would even go so far as to permit, for a limited period, Government seizure of plants struck or threatened by a strike of national emergency proportions.

Both AFL and CIO say they are unswervingly opposed to the use of injunctions to prevent or break up national emergency strikes. But under its seizure power the Government would also have the power to obtain a court injunction to prevent a strike against Government operation of the struck plants. That, at least, is the opinion of some of the Government's top labor lawyers.

Under Taft-Hartley, the national emergency strikes are dealt with through an 80-day cooling-off period, backed up by a court injunction. The Thomas-Lesinski bill proposes instead a 30-day voluntary cooling-off period. Senator Robert Taft (R., Ohio) has come up with a new proposition on this vexing problem, one that includes the injunction, seizure and throwing the specific strike into the hands of Congress.

For the first time yesterday, a Democratic member of the Senate Labor Committee publicly suggested an amendment to the Thomas-Lesinksi bill. Senator Paul H. Douglas (D., Ill.) came out for giving the President limited seizure powers. Douglas said he also might be for other "adjustments."

On the House side, Representative Thomas H. Burke (D., Ohio), a member of the CIO United Auto Workers, proposed a new method of dealing with national emergency strikes. Burke would have the President issue an emergency strike proclamation that automatically would order management and labor to keep production going for 60 days.

During that period, negotiators for both sides would be required to sit around a table four hours a day, seven days a week. A fine or jail sentence would be meted out to those who struck or caused a lockout during the 60-day period. Burke says the plan worked out well in Toledo.

Representative Vito Marcantonio (American Labor, N. Y.) meanwhile has undertaken the initial step toward trying to force a showdown on the labor issue. He would repeal the Taft-Hartley Act and restore an unamended Wagner Act. He has introduced a resolution to make his bill a special order of business in the House. In seven legislative days, about the end of the week, he will be permitted to file a petition to discharge the bill from committee for action on the floor.

Ford Strike Peace Talks Fail Again

Detroit, May 21 (AP).—Peace talks failed again today to settle the 17-day Ford strike.

Ford and the CIO United Auto Workers set another session for Sunday, one day before a threatened bolt of the negotiations by the union.

The recess was called after the company rejected another UAW proposal and the union appealed to 40 leading Michigan citizens to hear the issues of the strike "explained first-hand."

UAW President Walter Reuther asked top company officials to join union leaders in the public airing Tuesday night of a production "speed-up" dispute.

Reuther sent the invitation to company president Henry Ford 2d, vice president John S. Bugas and leaders in religious, educational and civic fields.

The union's latest peace proposal was described as a modification of its offer of May 13. That offer brought a charge of "featherbedding" from the company.

The new proposal dealt with the allocation of manpower on the assembly line and was designed, the union said, to overcome the company's featherbedding charge. The latest offer also revised a clause in the original proposal concerning absenteeism, the union said.

The company quickly rejected it. Bugas said the new proposal was "virtually the same as the last one and is therefore unacceptable."

Just as quickly Ford turned down the invitation for public discussion of the issues.

"We feel this matter should be settled by established procedures, that is by arbitration or by negotiation," Bugas said.

About 65,000 workers walked out of Ford's big Rouge plant in Dearborn and its Detroit Lincoln-Mercury plant May 5. As the strike equalled in endurance the strike of 75,000 Chrysler workers a year ago, another 40,000 Ford workers and thousands of supplier plant employes also were idle.

The union has threatened to bolt the strike peace talks unless the company agrees by Monday to start negotiating on a new UAW contract.

The current agreement expires July 15, and the union had asked that contract talks start last Monday.

U. S. Factory Jobs Decline For Seventh Straight Month

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The Nation's industrial job rolls, on the decline since last fall slid downward for the seventh consecutive month, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported yesterday.

In April, according to the bureau's figures, factory employment was 1,500,000 below the postwar record high of last September. Between March and April of this year, jobs in manufacturing decreased by 330,000.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics also disclosed that the average weekly earnings for the 12,100,000 factory production workers decreased from $53.63 in March to $52.62 in mid-April. The $52.62 average weekly earnings represent a drop of $2.39 below the record level of $55.01 attained last December.

The drop in the earnings was caused by the decrease in the average work week, which in turn was a result of lowered demand for manufactured products. Over the month, weekly hours dropped from 39 to a new postwar low of 38.3 in mid-April. Thus the current average work week is almost two hours shorter than that of April 1948.

There was more bad news on the employment situation yesterday.

The Bureau of Employment Security reported that in the middle of the present month there were one million more unemployed claiming jobless benefits than a year ago. For the week of mid-May, 2,370,000 claims were filed as against 1,281,900 filed a year ago. The bureau also pointed out that the unemployed were out of jobs for a longer period this year as against 1948.

More layoffs were reported. The Delaware & Hudson Railroad has ordered the furloughing of 273 shop workers in New York communities. Westinghouse, which has already furloughed 2800 employes at its plant in Mansfield, Ohio, announced that 650 more workers must be discharged.

Meanwhile, John Green, president of the CIO Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers, called for a congressional probe of recent Pennsylvania Railroad layoffs. Green said that in the past two weeks the Pennsylvania had furloughed 15,000 workers, chiefly in Altoona, Pa., although they've already been laid off for an average of five weeks this year.

The reason for the dismissal, Green charged, is that the railroad wants to put through a 20 per cent pay cut in the first six months of the year. There was no comment from the rail company.

There was at least one ray of sunshine in yesterday's job overcast. Employment in nonfarm establishments leveled off at 43.9 million in mid-April, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, thereby arresting the decline of the preceding three months in nonagricultural employment.

Pinkerton's And CIO Union Found Guilty

By The Associated Press

Pinkerton's National Detective Agency, Inc., and a CIO union were held jointly guilty yesterday of violating the Taft-Hartley law by firing four workers when they failed to keep up on union dues.

Howard Myers, a trial examiner for the National Labor Relations Board, ruled both had discriminated against the four employed as waterfront guards by Pinkerton's regional office in San Francisco.

He recommended that the NLRB order the detective agency to reinstate the four and that both Pinkerton's and the union be required to pay them almost a year's back wages.

The union involved is the Contract Guards' and Patrolmen's Organizing Committee, an affiliate of Harry Bridges' CIO Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union. Although the international union was charged with the same unfair labor practices as the organizing committee, Myers recommended dismissal of these charges.

Montgomery Given Controversial Bills

By Phillip J. Austensen
Post Reporter

Two controversial bills, which seek to transfer to the Montgomery County Council authority which was denied by the General Assembly, were among 12 introduced yesterday at a legislative session of the County Council in Rockville, Md.

One provides for establishing a refuse collection and disposal system for the county under direction of the Director of Public Works and directs the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission to turn over all equipment and records incident to refuse collection and disposal to the County Council.

It provides further that all private systems or methods of refuse collection and disposal must obtain licenses from the Director of Public Works. The law provides that the county will take over all unpaid obligations of the refuse collection system but makes no provision for reimbursing the sanitary commission for the cost of the equipment ordered turned over.

The other bill directs the Liquor Control Board to turn over title to the Dispensary Building at Silver Spring to the County Council. Both features were contained in bills which were rejected by the General Assembly at its last session.

Four Laws Enacted

The four laws enacted yesterday provide for:

1. Establishment of a Department of Inspection and Licenses, with a Director of Inspection and Licenses appointed, and whose salary would be fixed by the County Manager. The department would be provided with an assistant county attorney to assist the State's attorney in prosecution of violations.

2. Payment to the city of Takoma Park the proceeds of a 12 cents tax rate on property located in Takoma Park in lieu of maintaining county police in the city, but reserving police powers to the county police in the town when needed.

3. Establishing a Sandy Spring fire tax area in the Eighth, and parts of the Thirteenth, First and Fifth Election Districts with a fire tax not to exceed 10 cents per $100 for the Sandy Spring Volunteer Fire Department.

4. Appointment by the judges of the Circuit Court of a court stenographer at a salary not to exceed $350 per month.

Other Bills Offered

Other bills introduced yesterday would authorize:

Issuance of one million dollars in bonds for road and bridge, stormwater drainage and building purposes as are ordered by the council and providing for collecting taxes to pay for the bonds.

Issuance of five million dollars for school building purposes and providing for collecting necessary taxes to retire the bonds.

Extending the boundaries of the Cabin John Park Volunteer Fire Department fire tax area.

Adoption of ordinances, standards, code regulation relating to licensing, keeping and protecting dogs, cats and other pet animals.

Licensing and regulation of auction sales in Montgomery County.

Collection of county finances and their handling by the newly created Director of Finance instead of the County Treasurer.

Delegation to the County Manager of authority to accept streets, roads and alleys for county maintenance.

Hyattstown Fire Tax Area

Setting up the Hyattstown fire tax area and providing for collection of a fire tax not to exceed 10 cents per $100.

Appointment of an additional number of members of the Juvenile Court Committee to bring the membership to 30 instead of the present 13 and including Juvenile Court staff members in the civil service system.

New boundaries for the Montgomery County Suburban District.

The council announced a hearing at 7:30 p. m. Friday on the two bond issue bills introduced yesterday and one Saturday at 9 a. m. on the Juvenile Court and Suburban District extension bills, to be followed by a legislative session of the council. An omnibus hearing on any bill for which no specified hearing date has been announced will be held Tuesday at 9 a. m. prior to the regular meeting of the council.

Civil War Duds Still Explode

Jackson's troops routed the Union Army in late August of 1862.

Treasury officials, newspaper reporters and curious onlookers watched as the Army and Navy experts dug up the old shells. They witnessed the explosions from a distance of over 200 yards. Precautions were taken to assure that the shells spent their explosive force in the ground.

The old missiles were discovered on a farm now owned by Bernard Innskeep. Students of Civil War history led the experts to the farm where Union batteries 2000 yards away directed fire at Confederate emplacements during the Cedar Hill battle nearly 87 years ago. Shells weighing up to 12 pounds have been found on the farm.

It was estimated that nearly 70 per cent of the cannon shells fired during the Civil War failed to go off when they hit the ground. Thousands of the potentially dangerous missiles were said to be still scattered over the historic battle area.

The demonstration was conducted as part of the campaign to encourage people to turn in war souvenirs for safety investigation, regardless of age. Thousands of persons have been killed, maimed or injured since the Civil War by similar explosive charges that failed to go off when they were fired, Treasury officials estimated.

Brooks told reporters that the Civil War missiles are among the most dangerous of all shells since they contain "unpredictable" black gunpowder.

TARGET—Odis Blasingame, of 3303 Ames st. ne., inspects 12-inch cut in his car's roof, which was slashed during the night

Negro Family Reports New Vandalism Acts

A Negro family which moved into a white neighborhood last month reported to police yesterday that their telephone wire had been cut and the cloth top of their car slashed.

Odis Von Blasingame, advertising salesman for the Afro-American, told Fourteenth Precinct police the wire was cut where it ran along the back of his home at 3305 Ames st. ne. Telephone company workers repaired the break yesterday afternoon.

Blasingame said the foot-long cut in the top of his 1935 Ford was made either before 9 p.m. Friday or after 3 a.m. yesterday since he and his wife, an employe of the Atomic Energy Commission, Office of Information, had been away during those hours at a banquet of the Capital Press Club.

The tall, slender salesman, who moved into the modest row brick house on April 3, said a three-foot hole was slashed in his car top the previous Saturday night. On April 2 when the family moved into the house they had purchased, Blasingame reported stones were thrown at the home twice and a trash fire was set in his backyard.

The reports of the latest incidents came less than a day after police lifted a 24-hour patrol of the section. After the stonings were reported, police were assigned to the block on a round-the-clock basis, but these were removed at 4 p. m. Friday, precinct officials said. The cuttings are being investigated, police said.

"We have become somewhat accommodated to it," Blasingame said, of the incidents. "We hope and feel it will resolve into an amicable arrangement. I have no intention to move; no intention to sell."

The Blasingames have an eight-month child, Otis, jr.

Two white residents of the area, declining to be identified, said the Citizens Association of River Terrace is continuing efforts to study legal means of evicting the Blasingame family, as well as soliciting promises from other residents not to sell to Negros.

400 Pentagon 1st Floor Workers Go to Basement

Four hundred employes of the Army Adjutant General's office files section will be moved from first floor offices to the Pentagon basement June 3 to make room for units coming in under the unification program.

The basement space has been used for storage, but the area will be renovated. Air conditioning is expected in about a month. Fans will be distributed, and cold air pumped in nights.

Asked whether the new space would lack natural lighting, a Pentagon officer said that was true for the basement, also about 70 per cent of the whole building.

Southern Identity Shed by Baptists

Oklahoma City, May 21 (AP).—The Southern Baptist Convention shed its identity as a denomination of the South today and served notice that geographical boundaries no longer will interfere with expansion eastward, westward or to the north.

The decision climaxed a chain of events during the ninety-second annual session pointing toward Southern Baptist infiltration into territory traditionaly dominated by the Norhern Bapist Convention.

The denomination split into north-south wings at the Civil War. Southern Baptists now claim 6,500,000 members, Northern Baptists 1,500,000.

Today's action came after Dr. George Ragland, Lexington, Ky., told the convention Southern Baptists face the prospect of finding northern Baptist churches throughout the South, overnight.

He referred to a proposed merger of Northern Baptists with Disciples of Christ, better known as the Christian Church. The Disciples of Christ denomination is popular in the South.

The convention unanimously adopted the report of a committee headed by Dr. T. C. Gardner, Dallas, Tex.—studying the Northern-Southern Baptist situation the past year.

Gardner explained that the wartime shift of population had scattered Southern Baptists to all sections of the United States. They have organized churches in the East, the West and the North, he said, requesting recognition by the Southern Baptist Convention.

The convention memorialized Congress to lower immigration restrictions so 400,000 displaced persons in Europe may come to the United States.

A move by O. K. Armstrong, Springfield, Mo., to create a cooperative committee on morality to clean up moving pictures, fiction, radio and television programs was referred to the social services commission.

A youth revival rally tonight and an evangelistic program Sunday night in Taft Stadium conclude the convention. Final registration was 9357. The record figure, 9843, was set last year at Memphis.

Southern Baptists Cite D. C. Chaplain

Special to The Post

Oklahoma City, Okla., May 21. The Southern Baptist Convention today cited the efforts of a Washington chaplain in ministering to airmen and called for qualified men to enter the chaplaincy.

Chaplain Charles A. Carpenter of Bolling Field, chief Air Force chaplain, heard his work praised by the Rev. Dick Hall, chairman of the chaplains' commission of the convention.

In his annual report, Mr. Hall said Chaplain Carpenter had received a presidential citation for his wartime chaplaincy efforts and is now serving both as AAF chief chaplain and director of the Southern Baptist Convention's chaplains' commission.

"In all our wars Baptist preachers have gone with the armed forces preaching the gospel and ministering to men," said Chairman Hall, and added, "that the record of these men will be forever glorious."

In addition to Chaplain Carpenter, other chaplains from the Washington area who attended today's sessions were chaplains Roy Reynolds, AAF, Bolling Field; Dow Heard of the Veterans' Administration chaplaincy; Leroy W. Raley, Army chief of chaplains' office and B. I. Ackiss, Navy chief of chaplains' office.

Presbyterians Plan Study of Divorce Law

Buffalo, N. Y., May 21 (AP).—The general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the USA voted today to define more clearly laws of the church dealing with remarriage of divorced persons.

This action resulted in part from the wedding of thrice-divorced Screen Actress Lana Turner to Henry J. (Bob) Topping, a spokesman said.

The ceremony was by the Rev. Stewart P. MacLennan, retired pastor of the Hollywood (Calif.) Presbyterian Church, three days after Topping and Arline Judge were divorced.

The church requires that divorced persons should not be married until at least a year after the decree.

The assembly approved an overture calling for a major organizational change. This proposal, which must be ratified by the 40 synods, recommends reducing the number of synods to approximately 12 with an average membership of about 200,000.

Three Presbyteries—Los Angeles, New York City and Brooklyn-Nassau—submitted overtures requesting clarification of the church's divorce law. The law states:

"Upon satisfactory evidence of the facts in the case, ministers may remarry the innocent party to whom a divorce has been granted on Scriptural grounds, but not until assured that a period of one year has elapsed from the date of the decision allowing the divorce.

"They should also refuse to unite in marriage any member of any other denomination whose remarriage is known to the minister to be prohibited by the laws of the church in which such person holds membership, unless the minister believes that in the peculiar circumstances of a given case his refusal would do injustice to an innocent person who has been divorced for Scriptural reasons."

The overture of the Brooklyn-Nassau Presbytery was approved.

It stated that "there is a serious question as to the wisdom of requiring one year after the granting of a civil divorce before re-marriage can take place."

It also asked that the church define more clearly what constitutes "satisfactory evidence" of the innocent party in a divorce.

The overture also objected to "the acceptance of the canon of another denomination as binding upon the ministers of our church.

Revision and codification of existing income tax provisions will be studied over the next three years by three law professors, guided by a policy committee which includes Randolph E. Paul, Washington attorney and former general counsel for the Treasury Department.

Another Washington attorney, Robert N. Miller, former chief counsel for the Bureau of Internal Revenue, is a special consultant to the group.

The revisions discussed yesterday covered tax on gross income and deductions.

Scalping Probe Extended to 2d Shubert Theater

New York, May 21 (AP).—A second Shubert theater—this one housing the hit musical "Kiss Me Kate"—came into New York City's ticket-scalping investigation today.

Investigation Commissioner John M. Murtagh subpenaed the box office treasurer, Irving Engel, and records of the Century Theater for appearance Monday in a probe of reports that show tickets are selling as high as $60 a seat.

He would seek to take away the license of the John Ahearn ticket agency because the agency did not maintain complete and accurate records of ticket sales and income.

The commissioner said Ahearn admitted buying 145 tickets to "South Pacific" but said he got only 19 of them from the theater box office and did not give the sources of the others.

Dr. Rutledge Denies 'Hating' Slain Man

Cedar Rapids, Ia., May 21, (AP).—A firm denial that he "hated" the man he is accused of killing was made today by Dr. Robert C. Rutledge, jr., 28, of St. Louis.

Dr. Rutledge underwent relentless cross-examination by the State during his second day in the witness box. He is charged with killing Byron C. Hattman, 29-year-old St. Louis engineer, in a hotel room here last December 14.

County Attorney William Crissman asked the pediatrician if he didn't "form a hatred" for Hattman after Rutledge's blonde wife, Sydney, 23, told him last August 10 that Hattman had been "forcibly intimate" with her a few days earlier.

"No sir, I didn't," Rutledge replied.

"You were feeling resentment, weren't you?" Crissman asked.

"Yes sir. Very strong resentment," Rutledge said.

The doctor testified this resentment continued until Hattman's death. The State claims Rutledge struck Hattman from ambush and deliberately inflicted a fatal knife wound from motives of "jealousy, extortion and robbery."

Dr. Rutledge continued to maintain he fought Hattman "in self-defense to save my own life" after the young engineer "drew a knife."

He insisted he met Hattman by appointment to try and pay him money to get him to leave Mrs. Rutledge alone. They fought a bloody battle, he said, and he left the hotel room thinking Hattman was only stunned.

Dr. Rutledge's wife again remained away from the courtroom as she did yesterday. Rutledge was still on the stand when court adjourned in early afternoon until Monday.

The defense objected to nearly every question Crissman asked and frequently was sustained.

As Crissman led Rutledge time and again over his story, Rutledge remained composed. Most of his replies were polite; some were sarcastic.

Rutledge balked when Crissman asked him to tell again what name Hattman called him in the hotel room.

Rutledge said: "It's in the record already and I don't think anyone wants to hear it again."

Court Backed By Mother Of Victim

Rutland, Vt., May 21 (U.P.).—A mother whose son was accidentally killed by one of three jailed ex-GIs said today they all should remain behind bars until they make restitution.

"I have no sympathy," said Mrs. Mary L. Mangan, 61, of Rutland. Her son, James, was fatally hurt a week after he returned from the Army when struck by an automobile driven by Bernard J. Smith, jr., 23, of Fair Haven, Vt.

Jailed for failure to pay damages were Smith, former newsman Ralph J. Fugatt, 29, of Springfield, Mass., and Frederick L. Lapan, 32, of Marshfield, Vt. Each was involved in a different accident, but Smith's was the only fatal one. He has been confined in jail and hospitals the longest—about 15 months—for failure to pay Mrs. Mangan $2675.

"A fair outcome would be just what the law calls for," she said. Referring particularly to Smith. "As long as he has made up his mind to do nothing himself he should stay in jail.

"I figure the loss of my son isn't to be compared to the time Smith is spending in jail," she declared.

The trio awaited possible help from veteran organizations or possibly President Truman, after Gov. Ernest W. Gibson of Vermont said he had no legal power to help them.

Crazed Man Is Captured

McHenry, N. D., May 21 (AP).—A former state hospital inmate who stood off the law with a shotgun and rifle for 30 hours was captured late today by an unarmed friend who leaped through a second story window from an adjoining shed roof.

Merle Hoggarth, about 45, who had fired on a party of officers who tried to take him in early yesterday for a sanity hearing, was placed immediately in a strait-jacket.

The delayed hearing was held late this afternon and Hoggarth was immediately recommitted to the state hospital, said M. P. Roberts, Foster County judge.

The man who first reached him was Steve Fisher. Hoggarth this morning had accepted a drugged soft drink and shortly before he was captured had taken a couple swallows from a second drink.

Truman to Address Highway Conference

Federal Works Administrator Philip B. Fleming, conference chairman, said representatives of 22 foreign governments here as observers, will hear the address.

Child Drinks Turpentine

Add to the list of things little children can do when mother isn't watching—the 17-month-old child who swallowed an unknown amount of turpentine and then swabbed the roof of his mouth with a paintbrush.

The child was one of 137 Washingtonians treated at hospitals last week because of home accidents, according to the District Red Cross Accident Prevention Service. Falls brought death to three elderly persons, the service reported.

A breakdown of injuries shows that 55 persons were hurt in falls, 12 sustained burns, 9 accidentally poisoned themselves, 36 suffered cuts, 7 had objects in the eye, ear, throat or stomach; 6 were bruised, and 12 had miscellaneous injuries.

A Divorcee, Now . . .

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

MRS. F. D. R., JR., WINS DIVORCE—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., pictured at the Flying Me dude ranch near Carson City, Nev., where she established residence, yesterday divorced the son of former President Roosevelt. The decree was awarded in Minden, Nev., where her attorney brought the case to avoid publicity ried Ethel duPont at her family mansion at Greenville, Del., in June, 1937, at a time when his President-father was being criticized as a "soak the rich" advocate. Mrs. Roosevelt had no comment to make about her divorce. In fact, she had nothing to say about anything.

Friends of Mrs. Roosevelt said she intended to return to the East immediately, probably going to her family home.

Springmeyer, at a press conference yesterday, pleaded with newsmen to handle the case "decorously."

"After all," he said, "it involves the future President of the United States. Besides, bad publicity has hurt the divorce business in Nevada. I know of a few cases which were taken to the Virgin Islands."

Truman Heads List Of Notables Who Get Disinflated

nished by the United States Marine Band Orchestra directed by Maj. William F. Santelmann, Marine Band leader and Gridiron Club musical director.

Among the distinguished guests at the Statler were Vice President Barkley; Chief Justice Vinson and other members of the Supreme Court; members of the President's Cabinet; top figures of the military establishment; ranking members of the Diplomatic Corps; Congressional leaders and other outstanding figures of politics, the arts, science and the professions.

The dinner opened with a rousing marching song written to the tune of "The New Ashmoleon Band" from the current musical hit, "Where's Charley?" Bravely, in this, the Gridiron quartet and chorus sang of the fond hopes of the Democrat Administration to build its "welfare state" despite many trials and tribulations. The song rolled out across the Statler ballroom as follows:

Here we are with the spotlight on his program
Here we are with his banner flying high
In our hearts we don't know where this is leading
But a bright gleam of pride is in his eye
Here we are with November's vote behind us
Here we are with our Congress—so we say
And we hope that by June they will be voting
What they sat on in March, what they turned down in May,
We're the new Non-Partisan Society and Fair-Deal-We-Got-the-Mandate Band.
Oh the doubting Thomases
Laughing at our promises
They'll see the situation well in hand—
There are those who favor the slightly Southern flavor
And for them we're the finest in the land
We're the new Jacksonian Welfare Society and Truman Anti-Lynching band.
Though we march only slightly out of tempo
Though we play just a trifle out of tune
From the cradle until you're just a dodo
We'll see to it that you receive a boon
If we force all our taxes to go higher
Don't you bawl like a badly-wounded steer
We'll protect you from troubles that are dire
And you'll shout and you'll cheer as you bring up the rear
Of the new Free Enterprise Welfare Society Without-A-Reactionary band.
If you're analytical, practical or critical
You'll like us more the farther back you stand
But for us it's bully, it satisfies us fully
Our utopia's really close at hand
We're the new Non-Partisan Welfare Society and Fair-Deal-We-Rule-by-Crony Band.

Foreign Affairs came in for a sprightly razzing in a musical skit with King Neptune's bottom-of-the-ocean court — complete with mermaids — as its locale. The North Atlantic pact seems to take in all the oceans so it seems a good idea to get King Neptune lined up as one of the signatories. The hilarity opened with a jolly chorus of sailors singing, in a Navy lament over Air Forces inner-services victories:

Schnorkling, schorkling, under the bounding main
Cause Congress is run by Symington and won't give up a plane
Oh!
Pacing, pacing, pacing the ocean floor
Rarin' to go, but all our dough, has gone to the Air Corps.

Admiral Louis Denfeld gives out with a solo to the tune of "My Bonnie"—

My carriers under the ocean
No atom bomb scuttled our pride.
One obsolete Cannon—named Clarence
Just blasted her open—but wide.

Statesmen of the world appeared at King Neptune's court, and British Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin sings of the pact, in lyrics set to a Gilbert and Sullivan medley:

Though it's really quite emphatic
It's not wholly automatic
It's a very, very voluntary pact.
And it is my firm impression
That it leaves complete discretion
To each nation as to how it's going to act.
While there is, in language floral
Quite an obligation moral
To go RIGHT to war when neighbors are attacked.
Still,
It's a triumph diplomatic
About which we're all ecstatic.
It's a very, very voluntary—
Oh, it's SUCH a voluntary—
Very, very voluntary pact.

The breadth and scope of the famed pact is seen as a wondrous thing, and in the sentimental strains of "Far Away Places," Senator Vandenberg sings:

Far away places, with strange sounding names
Are all quite familiar to me
For all of these places with the strange sounding names
Now border the very same sea.
The ocean that beats on the rough Arctic shore
And laps on the sands at Capri
Is just the same ocean that lies right at our door
Since I changed our whole ge-og-ra-phy
The Old North Atlantic has spread quite a lot
To Italy from Maine
There'll soon be no country that touches it not
With the single exception of Spain,
They call me a schemer, well maybe I am
But today I can follow the shore
Of our North Atlantic, all the way to Siam
There's no other ocean no more!

Generalissimo Stalin was on hand in King Neptune's Court for Soviet Russia, but he was a doleful figure. The Berlin blockade had backfired on him, the Marshall Plan was helping to beat him in Europe. So, Mr. Stalin bemoans his fate:

Yes, I was the sap who blockaded Berlin
At B-twenty-nines I should lead with my chin
Why sometimes I think I'd just better give in
These satellite nations are so hard to fleece
I can't make a nickel—not even in Greece.
Why sometimes I think I'd just better make peace.

That unbiquitous character, Mr. U. S. Taxpayer—identified as a "human schmoo" — inevitably drifted into the floor-of-the-ocean scene. He it is who is picking up the check for most of the overseas activity, and he laments:

All of me
Why not take all of me?
Can it be
This burden's unending?
Aid to Greece
You reckoned in millions
Arms for Peace
May run into trillions.
Now Point Four—
That costs a whole lot more
ECA will never stop spending
I've hocked my life,
My home, and my wife—
So why not take all of me?

The Gridiron Club produced an old-time minstrel show, interlocutor, endmen, yak-yak-yaking chorus and all, as the vehicle for a rollicking musical story based on the coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats in Congress. Senator Taft of Ohio was the interlocutor. The skit opened with a chorus singing, to the tune of "Cruising Down the River"—

Voting in the Senate on a summer afternoon,
And saying "NO" like Gro-my-ko In a Russian croon.
The roll-call bells are ringing,
Though slightly out of tune—
Voting in the Senate on a summer afternoon!
On every tax we swing the ax,
The same on each reform;
Our windy speeches make a screech
We all vote "NO" together,
We'll wreck each other soon—
Voting in the Senate on a summer afternoon!

Senator Maybank of South Carolina was depicted telling the Yankees they'd better not meddle with Dixie. To the tune of "Galway Bay" he sang:

If you ever go across the line to Dixie,
Then maybe sometime you will understand
Why the Dixiecrats will never say surrender,
Or let Fair Dealers conquer Dixieland.
Why, those Yankees come and try to teach us their way,
They scorn us just for standing on our own;
But they might as well go chasing after moonshine,
Or squeeze a drink of bourbon from a stone!
And if there is going to be a term hereafer—
And somehow I'm not sure there's going to be—
They had better seek forbearance and for ballots
From that dear land across FEPC!

The so-called "Young Turk" progressives on the Republican side of the Senate resent the pushing-around they're taking from Senator Taft and the party Old Guard. To a medley of airs they sing:

Oh G.O.P., fair G.O.P.,
The years may come, the years may go.
But still of thee we only see
A blissful dream of long ago!
Co-a-li-tion, won't hold together, boys,
Some are for filibuster,
All are for making noise;
G.O.P. all in a dither,
Dixiecrats run with the tide,
When danger threatens, they all vote together—
And fall, side by side!
They made them what they are today,
But they're not satisfied;
The Dixiecrats and G.O.P.
A Jenner and an Allender,
A Hoey and Capehart,
Do nothing but dodge,
So—God bless Lodge—
That's the cry of an Aiken—

Spoken by baritone: Stop the music! A-I-K-E-N!

Sung by quartet: That's the cry of an AIKEN heart!

Two of the minstrels, Senators Russell of Georgia and Wherry of Nebraska, sang to the swing of "Clancy Lowered the Boom":

Up in the Senate Democrats thought everything was fair;
They had a dozen extra votes and maybe more to spare;
They said, "Let's change the Senate rules and give the program room";
They asked for a poll and called for the roll—
Then we lowered the boom.
Now all the Senate G. O. P. thought civil right were lne,
They might promote the colored vote and bring it back in line.
But many disagreements plunged the G. O. P. in gloom,
They took off their hats to those Dixiecrats,
Then we lowered the boom!
Now if one year, six months from now
We start again to run;
They're going to blame the GOP
For what they haven't done.
We'll show that Democratic votes
Pronounced the program's doom—
And whether we flop or come out on top—
Then we'll lower the boom!

At this point, ending the skit, the Republicans received a gentle ribbing for their hope-springs-eternal persistence in trying to burrow out from under repeated Democratic victories. Senator Millikin was heard singing to the air of "Some Day":

Some day we are hoping to find him,
Some one, to restore G.O.P.
Some one, with defeats all behind him
Who can lead us and call us
To new victory.
Some day, when the Fair Deal is over,
Some day, when we sing jubilee,
We hope to discover,
The man who can recover
The world for the old G.O.P.!

The Democratic Party was taken over the Gridiron jumps in a musical charivari laid at a forks-of-the-creek railroad station where a crowd is gathered to welcome President Truman—but he never gets there because it seems he's kept busy in Washington celebrating his "victorious defeats." That wonderful mandate of the November election seems to have collapsed, and there is sung to the tune of "The Last Round-Up"—

I'm huntin' for our lost mandate,
Gonna look everywhere, even in Ioway,
If it ain't there I might just as well stay;
I'm huntin' for our lost mandate.
Tell me where, Mr. Murray, where is it? Where is it?
Tell me where, Mr. Lucas, tell me where,
Tell me where, Mr. Rayburn, where is it? Where is it?
Tell me where, Mr. Pepper, tell me where.

Senator McGrath, national Democratic chairman, appears to raise the question as to whether "Harry wants to stay past 1953." To the tune of "Once in Love With Amy," he warbles,

Once in love with Harry,
But now we're stuck with Harry,
Four years for sure now, fascinated by him,
We must put up with him—till then.
Once you plunge with Harry,
Throw in the sponge, it's Harry,
Ply him with billions, civil rights, and power,
Crises by the hour—so grin.

Then followed a satirical thrust at Defense Secretary Louis Johnson, portrayed as having his eye on the White House. To the air of "A—You're Adorable," Mr. Johnson sings:

A—I'm available,
B—I've been bountiful,
C—I'm a man who's full of charm.
D—Don't be desolate,
E—I'm election bait,
F—I'm a one-man fire alarm,
G—I look good to me,
H—Harry should agree,
I—I'm the one to idolize,
J—Johnson is the name,
K—I'm still keen for fame,
L—Is for Lou in Fifty-two,
M, N, O, P.—I could go on all day,
Q, R, S, T—Alphabetically speaking, I'm okeh,
U'll make no sacrifice,
V—Means I'm very nice,
Double U, X, Y, Z,
It's fun to wander through the alphabet with you,
To tell you what I mean to me.

Then along comes Chief Justice Vinson—but now he is Fire Chief Vinson of the Democratic Bucket Brigade. The fire chief tells his story with a song, to the tune of "I've Got My Love to Keep Me Warm":

His bills are failing,
The party's ailing,
And G.O.P. wants to rule—
This is no time for him to be cruel,
He's got Ole Fred to keep him cool.
The Vinson Cure
Has worked for sure,
Sweet words turn ruin to rule—
This is no time for us to be cruel—
You've got Ole Fred to keep you cool.

Three nonmusical skits also provided a serenade in satire for the Democrats.

In one, Amos, Andy and the Kingfish, leaning against the fence of a chicken yard, delved into the wondrous mathematics of Secretary of Agriculture Brannan's new farm price supports program. As the Gridiron actors portrayed it in relation to Amos and Andy's chicken and egg business, it was impossible for anybody—producer or consumer—to lose. It was all achieved through "deducks and gitbacks"—a flow of coin in which the right hand never quite knew what the left was doing.

"De farmers is happy, de government is happy, de chickens is happy and it all comes out equal—like de Lo'd made it to be," says the Kingfish.

In the end, though, Mr. Brannan was rolling up an egg surplus, and Amos demanded to know what he would do with them. Would he eat them all?

"Mr. Brannan don't eat no aigs," the Kingfish replies. "He lays 'em."

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

Career Workers, Veterans in Tense Federal Job Battle

The fight for Federal jobs is on in dead earnest. In it, unfortunately, Government people are being divided—veteran vs. nonveteran and veteran vs. veteran.

Unfortunately, too, the battle will get rougher if the economy group wins their fight to force the firings of thousands of Federal people. Under present layoff rules, the nonveterans are the first to go Many of them with years of faithful service are faced with discharges.

A group of 34 women, for example, with from 29 to 32 years of service, have appealed to the President to save their jobs. They were all given discharge notices by the Boston office of the Veterans' Administration. Similar career groups in New York have threatened to picket the White House unless layoff rules are changed.

It's easy to sympathize with the long-time career people who were under the impression that the entire tradition of the Civil Service is based on merit, job security, and rewards for long and faithful service.

On the other hand, another group of employes should have the sympathy of all of us. They are the veterans who suffered major disabilities in combat. Ninety of them came down from New York the other day to protest the firing of amputee veterans by VA in that city. One of them was blind.

Spokesman for this group said they were fired before able veterans and veterans who were rated disabled because they had flat feet and other minor disabilities. Steps already are underway in Congress to give absolute job preference to veterans with major disabilities irrespective of their status. It's a good bet Congress will rush a bill to save their jobs.

The odds, however, are against the enactment of the Langer-Klein bill which would give greater job security to career nonveterans despite its indorsement in principle by the Administration and most Federal agencies and employe groups. The measure would place veterans on an equal with nonveterans with more than 10 years of service during lay-offs.

The American Legion and other potent veteran groups want no part of the Langer-Klein bill. A spokesman for the Veterans of Foreign Wars said he personally recognized the justice of the nonveteran career employe's case and he suggested an 18-year service cutoff on lay-off preference.

The veterans' groups make the hard-to-answer argument that preference was given veterans for Federal jobs by a grateful Government for their service during the war years. The Government, they say, would be breaking faith with the veterans if it made any changes in existing rules.

Luther C. Steward, of the National Federation of Federal Employes, and others countered with this answer—that no one could foresee how the Veterans Preference Act of 1944 would work and that the way it was operating now was to the detriment of the time-honored career system which is based on merit.

Representative Klein (D., N. Y.) had testified that VA officials in New York had told him that it would take in many cases two veterans to do the job of one career employe who is to be laid off. Leaders of the veterans' groups were unimpressed by his testimony. Incidentally, Klein's bill would give absolute preference to veterans with 60 per cent compensable disability.

Where preference begins and ends also was brought up indirectly before the Humphrey Subcommittee of the Senate Civil Service Committee. One of the witnesses was a Navy employe, Charles Villar of Pensacola, Fla. Willar was one of the many Navy civilians who was captured and tortured by the Japs when they took over the Philippines. He spent 37 months in an interment camp. Even so, he told the committee:

"I don't have preference and I don't believe the Government owes me a thing, but I do want to hold my job and make a career of Government as long as I'm competent."

Summed up, the veteran vs. career worker problem is one of the most perplexing in Government. It's one for a Colomon. Let's all hope a fair solution for all concerned is found.

INTERIOR Secretary Krug has given gold, silver and bronze medals to 44 of his employes for outstanding service. Among the employes in this city to be honored were Max Ball, Gerald FitzGerald, William A. Kearney, Ted F. Bell, John H. Buscher, Marcus Goldman, Ethel M. Johnson, Ruth Richards, and Ralph W. Richards.

ECA: It has an efficiency rating system for its employes that is being studied by other agencies. Virgil L. Couch, personnel director of the European Cooperation Administration, has initiated a rating program under which supervisor. are not required to rate employes on the 31 standard elements listed on the Civil Service form.

Instead, supervisors use elements of their own making which are simply "work operations" or "tasks" of each job. In addition, ECA employes overseas are rated either satisfactory or unsatisfactory.

Fowler Asks D. C. Chiefs How to Vote On Race Issue

Director of Budget, Representative on Recreation Board, Requests Advice

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

The District Commissioners have been asked by their representative on the Recreation Board for instructions on how to vote on the playground segregation issue at the board's June 14 meeting.

This was disclosed yesterday by Budget Director Walter Fowler, Commissioners' representative on the recreation unit since its founding in 1942.

"I never have been instructed before on how to vote and have always voted as I felt the Commissioners would wish," Fowler said. "But on this issue I prefer to be instructed. I know the Commissioners have been getting a lot of mail on the subject. I know, too, that they have been considering my request.'

Fowler said he decided to ask for instructions last week on receiving a copy of the proposed new Recreation Board by-law which would abolish segregation on all play areas run and in other activities by the board.

Four Votes Needed

The proposed change has been offered by Irving C. Root, the Interior Department's representative. Root and Mrs. Alice C. Hunter are pledged to vote for the change but four votes in the seven-member board are needed to approve the new by-law.

The Board of Education's representative, Albert Steinem, has not been instructed by the board on the controversy as yet. He may or may not be instructed at a meeting prior to the Recreation Board meeting.

Commissioner John Russell Young, whose renomination has yet to be confirmed by the Senate, may be questioned on the matter of instructing Fowler when the Senate District Committee considers the nomination. Numerous groups have written the Senate committee asking that Senators have Young make clear his position on this and other public matters.

Hearing Ordered

A hearing on the Young nomination has been ordered but not yet scheduled. Current plans announced by Chairman McGrath (D., R. I.) are for a closed session.

Two members of the Recreation Board—James E. Schwab and Mrs. Andrew Saul—have indicated they will oppose the by-law change. The seventh member is Chairman Harry S. Wender, who has not indicated his position on this proposal although he is sponsoring a move to open school and other buildings run by the recreation unit to nonsegregated use.

Fete Begins Tercentenary At Annapolis

Annapolis, Md., May 21 (Spl.). Proud citizens of this city turned away from the Machine Age today for a backward glance at Annapolis of 300 years ago.

Rain threatened the historic occasion but nature held back to allow the premier of the birthday pageant "Song of the Severn," to be put on as scheduled in the Annapolis High School stadium.

There was trouble enough without rain, however. A little hamlet called Kannapolis, N. C., somehow got into the act and for several days it seemed that the week-long birthday celebration of Annapolis would have to be staged in mufti.

A freight train load of Colonial costumes for the 750 pageant actors, which was due to arrive here four days ago, was mistakenly shunted to Kannapolis, and was not found until Thursday.

Two historical collections which will be on view through the week were opened for public inspection. A State House exhibit shows swords, punch bowls, portraits and other personal possessions of past Maryland Governors. A display of Colonial furniture, costumes and other relics was opened after a home-folk preview last night at the armory.

Nightly performances of the pageant, "Song of the Severn," are scheduled through Wednesday at Annapolis High School football field.

Tercentenary Week opens officially at Home-coming Day Sunday at 4:30 p.m. with speeches by Governor Lane, Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, jr., Archbishop Francis P. Keough of Baltimore, Mrs. Henry M. Robert, jr., Tercentenary director, and other officials.

Maryland State Day Monday features State House ceremonies on the first day of issue of the Annapolis Tercentenary stamp. Governor Lane, Senator O'Conor (D., Md.) and Representative Sasscer (D., Md.) are among scheduled speakers.

Anne Arundel County Day Tuesday will spotlight a parade of county school children, firemen and other groups. Civic, fraternal, veterans and military units will parade Wednesday.

Sailing races and yacht parades are scheduled for Thursday. Lights from the carrier Leyte, anchored in Annapolis Roads for the week, will spot some 40 boats in the marine parade in Annapolis harbor.

120,000 See Parade Salute to Alexandria

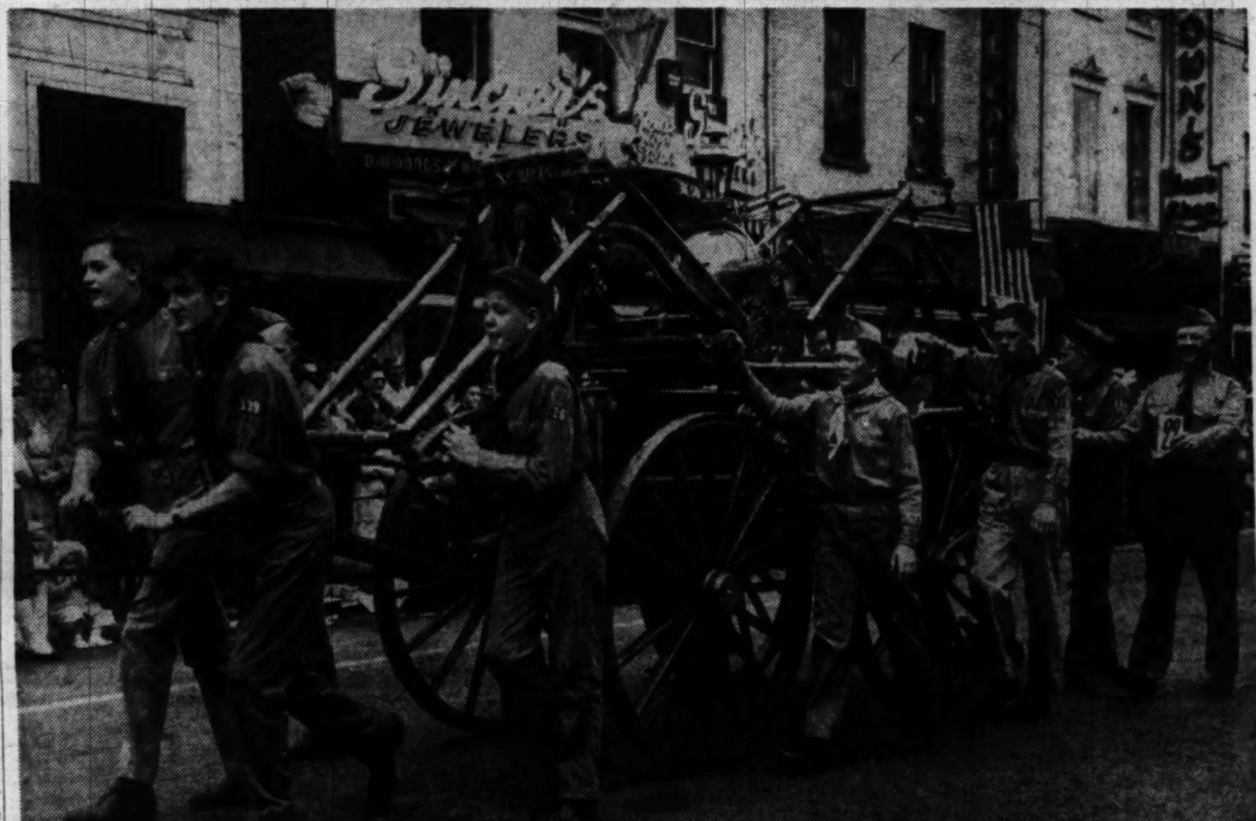
GIRLS ON THE A., B. & W. TRANSIT CO. FLOAT FOUND DAY A BIT CHILLY FOR PARADING IN BATHING SUITS



The Washington Post

ALEXANDRIA BOY SCOUTS PULL "ANCIENT" HAND PUMP OF FRIENDSHIP VETERANS FIRE COMPANY

Blaring bands, smartly stepping drum majorettes and swim-suited beauties joined in a bicentennial salute to Alexandria yesterday in a "Parade of Progress" witnessed by an estimated 120,000 persons.

The parade featured the city's year-long 200th birthday celebration. It required an hour and 40 minutes to pass the reviewing stand at King and Commerce sts., where city officials and members of the Bicentennial Commission were seated.

Included in the mile-long procession were 18 bands and drum and bugle corps, 27 floats entered by local merchants and civic organizations and a variety of marching units. From the standpoints of unit entered, it was the largest parade in the city's history, although other demonstrations have had more individual marchers.

Many of the colorful floats depicted progress, such as the 1915 Chevrolet roadster mounted on a trailer alongside a sleek, 1949 convertible. Others reflected pages in the city's history, like the Civitan Club's tableau of George Washington's conference at the old Carlyle House on French and Indian strategy with Gen. Edward Braddock.

Riding on many of the floats were some of Alexandria's prettiest girls, some in bathing suits and others in pastel-shade evening gowns. The sun's occasional appearances were welcomed by the swim-suited participants, somewhat discomfited by a pre-noon chill and the threat of rain.

Top prize in the parade was won by the Hargrave Military Academy Band of Chatham, Va., which won $100 awarded to the band coming the longest distance.

Among local winners of trophies were the Washington Elks Boys Band, which took first prize for the best appearing band representing a fraternal or service organization; the George Washington High School Band, winner in the class for high schools, and the Alexandria Citizens' Band, adjudged the best civilian band entry.

Soldier Admits Taking Myer Theater Funds

A corporal at the South Post of Fort Myer has admitted taking about $500 from post theater funds, after an audit revealed the shortage, officers of the Military District of Washington said yesterday.

Another audit showed a discrepancy of $13.51 in Walter Reed Hospital food ration accounts, but the major responsible was guilty of bad accounting rather than fraud, according to a Criminal Investigation Division report.

Corpl. Cyril M. Delosh of the 7025th Service Unit, who admitted taking the theater funds, is under company arrest, Col. William F. Nee, information officer, reported.

A three-man investigating board headed by Maj. Thomas Stacey, information and education officer at the South Post, will take evidence in the case, beginning Monday, and make recommendations.

The money was taken over a period of six months while Corporal Delosh was assistant manager of the post theater, according to the CID report.

No charges have been made against the Walter Reed major, but the CID report recommended that he be admonished for altering records.

The report, which said no one gained personally from the shortage, was sent to Brig. Gen. Paul H. Streit, commanding officer of Walter Reed.

O'Konski, I. F. Stone To Argue About Spain

Whether Congress should take action concerning Franco Spain will be debated at 9:15 o'clock tonight by Representative Alvin E. O'Konski (R., Wis.) and I. F. Stone, Washington correspondent for The Compass, the new tabloid in New York.

The debate will be heard over Station WWDC on Ed Hart's program, "Is Congress Doing Its Job?"

Jury's Discordant Note Denies Violinist 14 Practice Rooms

Violinist Matthew N. Mezzanotte, 3730 Davenport st. nw., doesn't need 14 rooms in which to practice, a Municipal Court jury decided late Friday.

Mezzanotte

As a result a 14-room house at 1815 H st. nw., will remain in the possession of Mrs. Anna Welsh who had leased the house from Leo and Norman Bernstein, real estate operators of 1415 K st. nw.

The Bernsteins' attorney, Mark K. Friedlander, in a suit to repossess the house for his clients, told the jury that his clients, as landlords, had contracted to sell the dwelling to Mezzanotte.

Friedlander said the violinist couldn't scrape through in a smaller place since his habit of practicing until 3 a. m. had struck a discordant note with other tenants and neighbors.

But Attorney Herman Miller, representing Mrs. Welsh, who rents rooms to 17 tenants, asserted the plaintiffs were fiddling with the facts.

"Does he need 14 rooms for the strains of Stradivarius to sift through?" Miller demanded.

He asserted that the agreement between the violinist and the real estate men called for the house to be sold for $45,000 with a $500 down payment and $200 a month rent.

"At that rate, it would take Mezzanotte 330 years to pay for the house in full," the lawyer declared.

3800 Attend Trade Board Outing at Chesapeake Beach

An attendance of 3800, the largest on record, turned out yesterday for the Board of Trade's fifty-third annual spring outing at Chesapeake Beach, Md.

The businessmen and their guests frolicked over the beach, ate their fill, took part in contests like horseshoe pitching, received souvenirs and applauded a series of vaudeville skits.

Edgar Massey of the Karl W. Corby real estate firm won the board's horseshoe pitching championship.

From a point of consumption, the outing was a whopper. Members and guests did away with 130 gallons of potato salad, 100 gallons of baked beans, 4800 dinner rolls, 7200 hot dogs and an equal number of hot dog rolls, 375 pounds of fried chicken, 135 gallons of sea food creole, and 100 gallons of coffee.

Those attending included members of Congress, judges and officials of the District Government.

The affair was strictly stag, except for a few women who participated in the skits.

An unusually large number of bankers attended in honor of Frederick P. H. Siddons, an American Security & Trust Co. official, recently elected Board of Trade president.

Andrew L. Devlin was chairman of the outing committee.

Other committee members were J. William Warner, Harold S. Harwood, Emil A. Press, William H. Dyer, Raymond M. Florance, Dr. J. Rogers Young and Maurice S. May.

Woman Faints Telling How Sailor Beat Her

A 28-year-old expectant mother collapsed in Municipal Court yesterday after she had testified to being beaten by a strange sailor who had knocked on her door.

The woman, Mrs. Lillie V. Nutter, 907 5th st. nw., mother of four, fainted in the first floor corridor as she was about to leave the building.

She was given first aid by a court nurse and removed to Gallinger in a Casualty Hospital ambulance.

The sailor, Carroll B. Connelly, 21, assigned to the Naval Receiving Station, Aanacostia, was sentenced by Municipal Judge Ellen K. Raedy to $150 fine or 180 days on three charges of assault including one against an officer.

"This man ought to be in an institution for the insane or in jail!" Judge Raedy exclaimed.

Mrs. Nutter testified that Connelly came to her apartment Friday, knocked on the door, and for no reason, struck her and one of her children. It was further testified that the sailor also kicked a William T. Bowling, 477 I st. nw., who was suffering from the effects of a broken leg.

Police Pvt. Thomas Carpenter testified that Connelly punched him and almost caused the scout car to be wrecked on the way to headquarters.

Connelly had no defense to make other than to say he had "been drinking."

Georgetown And Lubar's Hit by Fires

Firemen battled two fires last night, one in Lubar's radio and television store, 13th and G sts. nw., and the other in a historic three-story building in Georgetown.

Thousands of Saturday night strollers lined downtown streets to watch the firefighters work at the television store.

The alarm was turned in at 6:36 p. m. and the fire was under control within half an hour. Streetcar traffic on G st. was held up for about 40 minutes.

The blaze was confined to about one-fourth of the store's basement but heavy smoke billowed through the four-story brick structure.

Started in Basement

The fire apparently started in the basement where air conditioning compressors and other electrical equipment is located. The location of the blaze and the thick smoke made the firemen's work difficult.

Burton Ostrow, a vice president of Lubar's, said the basement contained records worth between $40,000 and $50,000. He said he believed a large part of the stock was either destroyed or unsalable.

The store had just been closed for the day. Lou Singer, one of the store's managers, who locked up, said he was waiting for someone in front of the store when a passerby stopped and told him the windows were clouding up.

Apartment Gutted

The Georgetown fire at 8:41 p. m. was of two-alarm proportions. A three-story building (where George Washington is reported once to have slept) was damaged and one of its apartments gutted.

The fire, on the top floor of 2618 K st. n.w., was discovered by three boys who turned in the first alarm after finding the apartment filled with smoke.

The apartment is that of Edward Botts, Army clerk. Botts' son, Lawrence, 11, was one of the boys who discovered the fire.

Damage was confined to the one apartment and the attic above. Cause of the fire could not be immediately determined, according to Acting Chief Engineer P. A. Davis.

2 Men Injured When Car Hits Tree in Fairfax

Two Washington men were seriously injured yesterday about 1 p. m. when the automobile in which they were riding left the highway and crashed into a tree on Route 50 2 miles west of Chantilly in Fairfax County, Va.

Fairfax Police Pvt. John Wahl identified them as Thor K. Mattson, 29, of 1344 North Carolina ave. ne., believed to be the driver, and Clyde M. Rosenberger, 39, of 440 15th st. se.

At Arlington Hospital, both men were treated for body cuts, shock, possible internal injuries and possible broken bones.

Wahl said the car apparently went out of control after striking a shoulder of the road.

Three-year-old James Jefferson, jr., was critically injured about 7 p. m. when struck by an automobile in the 900 block of 22d st. ne.

He was admitted to Children's Hospital with internal injuries, a possible fracture of the skull, a broken left arm and mangled left foot. He lives at 243 55th st. ne.

Police said the automobile was driven by John E. Johnson, 34, of 4652 Hayes st. ne.

In Washington the 3-year-old daughter of a first secretary of the British Embassy was injured yesterday afternoon when she was struck by an auto in front of her home.

The child, Clare Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher B. Wilson, was running across the street in front of 1413 29th st. nw., when the accident occurred, police said.

She was admitted to Children's Hospital with a fractured right leg and bruises to her face and both legs. Her condition was described as fair.

Police said the car was driven by Prescott L. Wetherill, 37, a contractor, of 2803 Dumbarton ave. nw.

Coroner Certifies Death as Accident

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald yesterday issued a certificate of accidental death in the traffic death of Edwin C. Rollins, 73, of 2607 Rhode Island ave. ne.

Rollins died Friday night at Casualty Hospital, seven hours after he stepped from a streetcar loading platform in the 2100 block of Rhode Island ave. ne. into the path of an auto driven by W. Ramsey Frederick, 52, of 2708 10th st. ne., police said.

ICC Closes Hearings On Freight Rate Hike

The Interstate Commerce Commission took under final advisement yesterday the railroads' request for a new 13 per cent long-term freight rate increase. They filed the request last October.

The commission gave no indication when it will act as it wound up six days of closing arguments, in which shipping interests generally opposed any further advance. The commission sat in an unusual Saturday session.

Commission On Hospital Study Named In Arlington

PUC Members And Zone Appeal Officials Renamed By County Board

The Arlington County Board yesterday set up a five-man commission to study hospital needs in the northern Virginia area.

In other actions, the board reappointed the members of the Public Utilities Commission and the Zoning Appeal Board.

The Hospital Study Commission will include State Senator Charles T. Fenwick, Dr. John T. Hazel, Leonard Hilder, Gilbert Hall and Eugene de Hegh.

The commission is authorized to confer with other similar groups in the nearby Virginia area on plans for development of an area communicable disease and mental health hospital unit. It will report its findings to the county board.

Reappointed to the PUC, now in the midst of a study of wholesale gas rates charged by the Washington Gas Light Co., were Lester Conley, Albert A. Carretta, Neil Foss, Laurence S. Knappen, Clifton G. Stoneburner, William G. Watt and Gustav A. Moe. All were named for one-year terms.

Zoning appeal board members named for two-year terms were J. H. White, Ashton C. Jones, jr., Edward Goucher, Malcolm Devers and Lawson Wimberley.

At yesterday's meeting, the county board adopted an ordnance requiring Arlington motorists to display county automobile license tags. The tags went on sale for the first time this year. The ordnance provides fines from $10 to $300.

The measure was adopted after the board received complaints that many motorists had purchased the tags but had failed to display them on their automobiles.

Carpenter Dies In Home Row, Relative Held

A 50-year-old carpenter was killed with a bullet through his heart yesterday as an aftermath to an argument in his brother-in-law's house in Wildercroft, Md.

The victim was Penn A. Witt, 1218 D st. se.

The brother-in-law, Lester Watson Tudge, 49, 3d and Chestnut sts., Wildercroft, was charged by Prince Georges County Police with murder. He is held in Hyattsville jail for hearing May 26 in Trial Magistrate's Court.

Police were notified of the killing by a neighbor who was asked by Tudge to telephone that he had shot Witt, they said.

Witt, whose sister is Tudge's wife, was building a house for himself next door to Tudge, police said, and had spent Friday night at the Tudge home. The argument started yesterday afternoon, they said, and the shooting occurred about 6 p. m.

Witt was dead when the Brentwood Rescue Squad responded, a squad spokesman said. He was officially pronounced dead by Dr. John T. Maloney, county medical examiner, at the scene.

He was killed by one bullet from a .32-caliber revolver which pierced his heart, police said. The weapon, with one bullet expended, was found at the scene.

Witt was a bachelor, according to police.

Jewish Appeal Wins Pledges Of $1,300,000

With its campaign "rapidly drawing to a close," the United Jewish Appeal has received pledges for more than $1,300,000 toward the $2,500,000 sought in the Washington area.

The report was issued yesterday by Joseph Cherner, UJA chairman in Washington, who said that pledges are running ahead of last year when $2,100,000 were raised.

Two major fund-raising meetings are scheduled this week. This evening at 7:30, Paul B. Edwards, who has worked extensively with refugees in Europe and the Middle East, will speak at a dinner meeting of the food division in the Mayflower Hotel.

The women's division will hold a $100-a-plate luncheon meeting at 12:30 Tuesday in the Mayflower

Pharmaceutical Group Approves Drugstore Bill

Indorsement of a bill introduced by Representative Carl T. Durham (D., N. C.) for stricter regulation of drugstore operations in Washington has been voted by the executive committee of the District Pharmaceutical Association, Dr. Harold C. Kinner, president, announced yesterday.

The bill would provide for additional annual license requirements by the District Board of Pharmacy. These include regulation and enforcement of conduct and operation, location, and technical and professional equipment.

Dr. Kinner said pharmacies are required to obtain apothecary licenses from the superintendent of licenses which are revenue producing only, and over which the Board of Pharmacy has no control.

Army Wife Is Held On Forgery Charge

A young Army wife who "wanted a lot of nice things" is facing grand jury action on a forgery charge—thanks to the Pyramid Club craze.

The woman, Mrs. Loretta Nienaber, 18, of 1701 South Monroe st., Arlington, was arrested by Mark Roberts, S. Kann Sons Co. store detective, charged with forging the name of another woman customer to charge account purchases.

Roberts had obtained Mrs. Nienaber's signature from a note she had written to a man concerning a Pyramid club. Police handwriting experts linked the handwriting to that on the charge slip.

United States Commissioner Cyril Lawrence held Mrs. Nienaber, whose husband is stationed at Fort McNair, in $500 bond for the grand jury after she told him she "wanted a lot of nice things I couldn't get any other way."

Post Reporter

Alumni enthusiasm generally runs thickest soon after graduation and peters out as the years drift by, but with the class of '94, Central High School, it works just the opposite.

The spirit of the class of '94 lay dormant for 54 years. Then, as its members mellowed into the class age of 69, they suddenly remembered Dear Old Central and put on their first class reunion. That was 1948.

Last night in the Willard Hotel, they had their second and they were as frisky as sophomores about it. As in 1948, only about 25 were present and the stalwarts resolved to round up the slackers next year.

After all, Mrs. Sallie Mason Selke of 1954 Columbia rd. nw., the class secretary, had been able to locate 55 of the original class of 171, 44 of them right here in the city.

Despite her perseverance and even the help of the FBI, Mrs. Selke couldn't find 54 classmates. She knew that 62 others were dead.

Dean of the gathering was Harry A. Heitmuller—"past 75"—whose dad, Alfred, is the oldest living Washington native. Heitmuller, sr., recently celebrated his 100th birthday.

Young Heitmuller, an attorney who lives at 1325 Gallatin st. nw., doesn't know too much about high school boys nowadays, but he suspects they have things too much their own way.

He thinks the storied "informality" in school nowadays lowers the dignity of the teacher and may have a little to do with the growth of "isms." A boy "who's always doing what he pleases doesn't learn to respect another man's rights," Heitmuller says.

Still, it isn't all one-sided. "I don't hear of anyone burning geometry books nowadays," Heitmuller confessed with a gleam in his eye.

Miss Lindsley Dies; Managed Dodge Hotel

Miss Mary Augusta Lindsley, manager of the Grace Dodge Hotel, now the Dodge Hotel, from 1919 to 1936, and an instructor at American University during World War II, died yesterday in her home at Morristown, N. J.

A heart condition that forced her retirement was the cause of death, according to word received here.

A native of Green Village, N. J., Miss Lindsley was graduated from Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, and became dietitian at Cook County Hospital, Chicago.

Overseas in War I

She gave up the position at the outset of World War I to join the American Red Cross. One of the first 500 women sent overseas, she served as a dietitian at a British base hospital in France.

Miss Lindsley came to Washington after the war to become dietitian at the Grace Dodge Hotel. In 1925, while manager, she instituted a "no-tipping" policy that brought the hotel Nation-wide publicity. She resigned in 1937 to become manager of the Williamsburg (Va.) Inn, leaving there shortly thereafter because of her health.

Taught Club Managers

During World War II, she taught club management at American University to men and women who were to operate overseas clubs. She was an active member of the Daughters of the American Revolution. She lectured on the Williamsburg restoration.

Miss Lindsley is survived by four nieces and two nephews. They are Mrs. Donald Bennett of Arlington; Mrs. Frances Meissner, Brooklyn; Mrs. Harold Veidt, Maplewood, N. J.; Mrs. Edward Hobbie, Madison, N. J.; Oscar L. Sturges, Madison; and Silas Lindsley, Newton, N. J.

Interment will be at 2 p. m. Wednesday in the New Vernon, N. J., cemetery.

C. P. Northrop, Alexandria, Publisher, Skipper, Pilot Dies

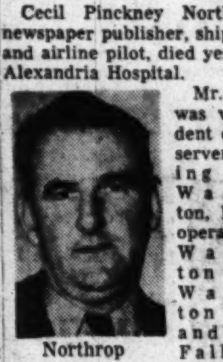
Cecil Pinckney Northrop, 48, newspaper publisher, ship's master and airline pilot, died yesterday in Alexandria Hospital.



Northrop

Mr. Northrop was vice president of the Observer Publishing Co. of Washington, Pa., which operates the Washington Observer, Washington Reporter and Beaver Falls (Pa.) News-Tribune. His home was at 318 Mansion dr., Alexandria.

Before he assumed the publishing post he had attained top rank in both sea and air transportation. When only 23 he had earned captain's papers to become the youngest master mariner in American service. Quitting the sea, he took up flying as a hobby and pursued it so diligently that, turning to aviation as a vocation, he rose to become chief pilot for Pennsylvania Airlines, now Capitol Airlines.

Mr. Northrop, son of a newspaperman, was educated at King's College, London, where his father was a correspondent, and in Rome and Paris. Graduating from the New York State Merchant Marine Academy, he took to the sea, making 10 trips around the world.

His sea adventures, before he returned to life on land in 1927, included a 20-day stay on a deserted island near the Bahamas after his ship was wrecked in a typhoon, and three months spent ice-locked in the Baltic Sea.

He operated a newspaper in Morgantown, W. Va., for a short while until the urge to fly led him to his pilot's job.

He piloted for Pennsylvania Central Airlines and later for Capitol Airlines after the merger of the two lines, for more than a decade before he again entered the newspaper field in 1940. He once safely landed a loaded plane on a golf course when its motors failed after take-off from Norfolk, Va.

Mr. Northrop is survived by his wife and two sons, John, 18, and Billy, 14.

Persons suffering loss of hearing enjoy not hearing after-dinner speakers, just as you and I.

Anyway, that was the explanation given last night for the absence of a guest speaker at the annual banquet of the Middle Zone Conference, American Hearing Society, at Hotel Washington. It was only one of the special considerations the host chapter, the Washington Hearing Society, took to make some 150 guests happy during the weekend regional convention.

Other "extras" included a 150-earphone amplifying system so hard-of-hearing delegates and guests could follow the scientific presentations; a crew of five "lip speakers" who condensed and reformed lengthier talks for the lip-reading audience unable to hear speech even when amplified, and special pages posted at the meetings to run errands and otherwise serve the visitors.

Even the meeting hall, the Washington Room on the top floor of Hotel Washington, was selected with an eye to the comfort of the hard of hearing, said Miss Rose V. Feilbach, executive director of the host chapter, a Red Feather agency. A central location, high above traffic noises, was needed, she explained. "Background" noises, she said, are "particularly distressing" to persons having difficulty in hearing speech.

Speakers at the sessions appeared before two microphones, one hooked up to a normal public address system and the second to the special amplifying system which carried their voices to self-adjusting earphones distributed through the hall.

On opening day, Friday, the public address system failed, and the delegates who didn't wear hearing aids welcomed the earphone set-up. Besides the special amplifications and other aids, the meetings were made "more realistic" for the delegates by careful programming to emphasize "vision aspects."

These included a play Friday night by members of the staff of Forest Glen, the speech and hearing center for Walter Reed General Hospital, and a marionette show, "Willie Butts and His Friends," put on at last night's banquet by the Junior League Marionettes.

The conference winds up today with it annual business meeting. And if the delegates want to telephone, there are special amplifying boxes attached to the two pay telephone booths outside the meeting room.

Vivisection Bill Mail in 'Flood'

The Senate District Committee "is being flooded" with vivisection mail—mostly against the practice—committee sources said last night.

A special three-member District subcommittee will open at least a two-day hearing Tuesday at 10 a. m. on a bill authorizing licensed scientific institutions to use unclaimed animals, lawfully impounded here, for experimental medical research.

A committee clerk said the letters received on the controversial subject thus far are "in the hundreds, with the great majority registering opposition."

Meet a Polio Pen Pal . . .

The Washington Post

"IRON LUNG" CORRESPONDENT—Mrs. Robert Averill of 3288 N st. nw., talks with her nurse, Dorothy Averill, of Evanston, Ill., about the Pen Pal group of iron lung correspondents

Prisoners of Iron Lung United by Letters

Polio prisoners of iron lungs are joined together in what is perhaps the most unusual Pen Pal grouping in existence.

So says Mrs. Robert Averill of 3288 N st. nw., who ought to know. She is and has been a captive of the iron lung now for some 27 months.

The paralyzed members correspond, muscles permitting, in whatever medium they can, be it strong bold handwriting or a picture laboriously formed with a stylus gripped by the teeth.

"Once you're a 'Polio' you somehow manage to keep in touch with all of them," she explained.

Mrs. Averill, mother of three children and wife of the assistant to the president of Capital Airlines, admitted however that she hasn't been doing much corresponding since last November when she entered her fifth-floor bedroom at the new Georgetown Hospital.

"I've been waiting until I'm strong enough to get out of this iron lung long enough to write," she declared, proudly showing she can still manipulate her hands though the rest of her body is almost completely paralyzed.

She spoke without difficulty or apparent distress, gamely recounting her life since infantile paralysis struck the three children and then herself in February, 1947, at their Chicago suburban home in Evanston, Ill. The kiddies all recovered, without paralysis.

Where the Crippler came from, why it struck in the supposedly nonpolio month of February, and why it chose four members of a family of five neither she nor medical science can explain.

"We were the only cases in the area," she said, in questioning tone.

It was on February 26 that doctors rushed Mrs. Averill to the Evanston Hospital and placed her in one of the costly iron lungs of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. She stayed put until January of last year when she was transferred to Respirator Center, Children's Hospital School, Baltimore, Md.

And it was in the Baltimore Center where she met most of her Pen Pals, other captives of other iron lungs.

That was after they had taken the tracheotomy (breathing) tube, out of her lower neck, and she had learned to breathe with her neck muscles instead of with her "useless" diaphragm. That, too, was after she could swallow, and didn't have to be fed through her nose.

At times, then, she was relatively happy. She could even manage outside her cylindrical cell for hours at a time. Reading, writing, knitting, or just looking at the iron lung.

She wasn't complaining, yesterday. But what could have been interpreted as wistfulness showed in her voice. Since last November, explained her private nurse, Miss Dorothy Erickson, she hasn't been out of the iron lung more than 10 minutes at a stretch.

"She can't keep her pulse down, so back she goes," said Nurse Erickson in her most professionally reproving tone.

For diversion, Mrs. Averill said she had the visits of her husband and their three children, Peter, 7; Robert, jr., 5, and Ann, 3. Then there's the radio, and reading.

The same type stylus that some paralyzed patients use to write letters or draw pictures with their teeth is tipped with rubber for Mrs. Averill, and becomes her "reading stick." With such an arrangement, she can deftly turn the pages of the book clipped to the mirror above her head.

But what the 33-year-old mother likes most to read are the "communications" from her Pen Pals. Maybe soon she will be getting off some letters to them, she said, flexing her fingers inside the chamber that is her haven and her prison.

A wristwatch suspended above her head told her the visiting hour was approaching. A card calendar taped to the chamber close by showed all of 1949, in small cold type.

Documentary Photo Show Opens Friday

An exhibition of American documentary photography will open Friday at the Corcoran Gallery of Art and will continue through July 8.

It was assembled by Edward Steichen, director of the department of photography at New York's Museum of Modern Art and its appearance here is sponsored by The Washington Post.

The exhibition is entitled "The Exact Instant: Events and Faces in 100 Years of News Photography."

It attracted wide attention when shown in New York at the Museum of Modern Art. After the Washington showing, the exhibition will be circulated throughout the country in a much smaller size.

Steichen thumbed through more than 10,000 photographs to find just what he wanted. He collected his material from press ohotpotographers and publications and from the files of the National Archives, the Library of Congress and the Smithsonian Institution.

Civic Group Plans Fire Area Talk

Action on pending Montgomery County legislation to extend the Silver Spring, Md., fire area will be taken by the Allied Civic Group, composed of delegates from more than 20 civic associations, at its meeting Monday at 8 p. m. in the Liquor Dispensary Building, Colesville rd.

Maintenance of highways and park playground equipment will be discussed according to Victor Richter, president. He will appoint a nominating committee to select a slate of officers for election at the June dinner meeting.

Business Outlook

By J. A. Livingston

A Source Of Negative Strength

You'd not notice the slight change in sentiment for the worse by looking at stock prices. United States Steel common is quoted just about where it was a month ago; ditto for American Can, General Electric, General Motors and the Dow-Jones average for industrial stocks. Nevertheless, the pessimists are becoming more confident. They're increasingly willing to bet on a decline in the stock market and business.

Livingston

You see that in the statistics of short selling on the New York Stock Exchange. Between April 14 and May 13, speculators sold 130,000 shares in the hope they'd be able to buy them back at lower prices later. That increased the total short interest to 1,628,000 shares, or the highest level since February 27, 1933. Seemingly more persons (or persons with bigger bankrolls) are jumping on the we're-going-to-have-a-recession bandwagon.

The theory is obvious enough: Why be long stocks when business is heading into a decline and profits are going lower? Yet the case isn't open and shut. Enough people were willing to bet the other way to buy the stock the short sellers offered. That's why the market did not go off much—only two points in the Dow-Jones industrial average.

Standard & Poor's Corp. offers this explanation of the stock market's strength in the face of "bad" news: "For more than 2½ years, it has prepared for the change now taking place in the economic trend." Investors and speculators have taken it for granted that the profits of 1947 and 1948 would not last forever. So stock prices did not go up. And now that earnings promise to go lower, stocks—not having risen—show no disposition to go down.

The stock market has become a source of negative strength in the economy. Heretofore, during periods of rounding a top in business, the stock market—by its volatile declines—has increased the tendency toward bearishness. Each decline in the market generated another wave of bearishness in business. Result: Today the resistance of the market to decline is a psychological bracer against reduced sales, orders and backlogs.

Rationale For Depression

The pessimists have a logical case. They argue: After every war, you have a boom and then you have a correction for the boom. Prices go up during wars, and inevitably after wars prices decline. (Sewell Avery, chairman of Montgomery Ward & Co., uses a chart which shows the price drops after all American wars to justify his conservative conduct of the company's affairs. He's not going to get caught in a price drop!)

The argument goes on: When prices drop, manufacturers, wholesalers, retailers and consumers live on their inventories and wait for lower prices. At the same time, industrial plant which had been increased to catch up with high postwar demand seems more than ample to meet demand. New industrial construction stops. Thus, contraction piles on contraction. You get a period of subnormal consumption—or depression—until inventories are hopelessly inadequate. Then a turn comes.

FREIGHT CAR TURNAROUND

Backlog rose thru '47, hit a peak in mid-'48, and is now back where it started.

Data: Association of American Railroads. Prepared for J. A. Livingston

Evidence Piles Up

Right now, the rationalists for a repeat performance a la 1920-21 have plenty of evidence. David A. Crawford, president of Pullman, Inc., complained to shareholders at the recent annual meeting at Wilmington, Del.: "I have never seen a time when there was such dearth of inquiries for freight cars." The railroads are waiting for lower steel prices before placing orders for freight cars. As a consequence, freight cars on orders are the lowest they've been in two years (see chart).

As further evidence of the declining trend, Kennecott Copper Corp. will curtail production at the end of hte month. Eastman Kodak has announced price cuts. Sears, Roebuck's midsummer catalogue shows quotations on some items down as much as 50 per cent. American Woolen has reduced its dividend from $1.50 to $1 quarterly, reflecting the drop in earnings from $5 a share in the first quarter of 1948 to $1.25 this year. Steel operations are now at 95.6 per cent of capacity as against a high of 102 per cent. And business loans continue to contract.

Aside from the stock market, the business signals—the statistics—point downward. Yet the very resistance of the market to the trend suggests that pessimism is not all-pervasive. Many persons feel that on a yield basis stocks aren't too bad a bet. So they're saying, by inference, that the economy isn't ready to go to pot.

Stocks Score Small Gains In Dull Market

New York, May 21 (AP).—A four-day decline came to a full stop today in the slowest Saturday stock market in more than seven months

A mere puff of buying was enough to keep most prices veering upward. Few gains, though, exceeded small fractions and a good handful of issues backed down a trifle.

More stocks were ignored entirely, or remained at Friday's closing levels, than showed any change.

Only 240,00 shares changed hands, the smallest total since 190,000 on October 9. A week ago volume amounted to 360,000 shares.

Bethlehem Steel, for instance, dropped to a new bottom with a loss of just ¼ point and closed ⅛ off at 27⅛. U. S. Steel hovered over its low for a while but came back and finished with a gain of ⅛ at 70.

| WHAT STOCKS DID | Sat. | Fri. |
|---|---|---|
| Advances | 225 | 202 |
| Declines | 161 | 502 |
| Unchanged | 205 | 254 |
| Total issues | 591 | 958 |

Marked up ⅛ each were Chrysler at 50¼, Packard 3⅞, and Studebaker 19⅝. General Motors, however, dipped ⅛ to 57¼ despite an encouraging statement by Alfred P. Sloan, jr., chairman. Sloan told stockholders that second quarter results will be equally favorable in comparison with the good first quarter showing.

In the carrier section gains were posted for Santa Fe at 87, Southern Pacific 41⅝, Southern Railway 31¾, Baltimore & Ohio 9⅜, Chesapeake & Ohio 32¾, and Illinois Central 27.

Bond traders showed even less enthusiasm than stock men. Trading shrank to the lowest amount in nearly 35 years. Price movements were sluggish.

Grain Embargo Asked

Dallas, May 21 (AP).—A speedy embargo on rail movement of all grain was asked by the Southwest Shippers Advisory Board. The group wound up its annual meeting with election of officers yesterday.

Power Plants Grow As Demand Slumps

New York, May 21 (AP).—Demand for electric power is falling off right smack in the middle of the electric power industry's huge nine-billion-dollar expansion program.

The declining demand probably will have little effect, however, on the plans for expansion—the largest ever undertaken by the industry.

A few power companies indicate there may be some shifts in their construction schedules. But the shifts they are contemplating are more in the nature of postponements than cancellations.

Most of the power people are going ahead with the big expansion program without change.

Philip Sporn, president of the American Gas & Electric Co., reflected the present feeling of most power executives, in a speech at Huntington, W. Va., this week.

His system serves a tri-State area of the Ohio Valley covering West Virginia, Kentucky and Ohio. Sporn felt that the growth in demand for electric power might slow down but would not stop.

"We must go on to assure that an abundance of power will continue well into the future," he said.

Decline Varies Regionally

The decline in demand varies with different regions of the country; in some areas there has been no slackening at all. It stems from a common source—curtailment of production by industrial customers. In addition this is the traditional season of lower demand for power as the days grow longer and the weather milder.

The decline is something of an indication of how things are going in the big industrial areas, power men say.

The easing has followed postwar readjustments and a leveling off in various industries.

It is a slow but steady leveling off that has been apparent for some months. It has not been any rough and tumble overnight drop.

Peak Loads Recalled

Perhaps what pointed it us most was the fact that it came in the middle of an expansion program that added a little over four million kilowatts to the generating capacity of the privately owned power companies last year.

It was only a comparatively short time ago that power men were running a nip and tuck race to keep ahead of the peak load demand of their customers.

The combination of tremendous postwar calls for more and more power from industrial customers, the subsequent leveling off of production in many industries and the speed of the power men's expansion program emphasized the decline as it gradually grew in some areas.

It was the weekly power production figures of the Edison Electric Institute that gave the clearest picture of the trend.

Last week those figures showed electric power production ran to 5,256,976,000 kilowatt hours, the lowest since September 11, last year. It was the sixth successive week that output of electric power had declined.

The figure still was 2.9 per cent over the production of a year ago, but that was the smallest rate of increase since August, 1946.

Consumer Loans Cut by Trade Slump

New York, May 21 (NYHT.).—The business slow-down has started to cut the volume of consumer credit extended by the Nation's commercial banks, but it has not yet had much effect on repayment by borrowers, according to delinquency figures gathered by the American Bankers Association.

Based on reports for March from 250 representative member banks scattered over the country, the statistics show a decline from the February rate of delinquencies in personal, home appliance, FHA Title 1 loans and direct automobile loans.

There was a small rise in overdue indirect automobile loans, however, and a relatively sharp upswing in the category of property improvement loans, particularly on the West Coast. In the latter case, March tax payments are presumed to have been an important factor.

The March totals for the reporting banks showed a delinquency rate of 2.692 per cent in personal loans against 2.819 for February; 2.975 per cent in home appliance loans against 3.266 per cent; 3.464 per cent in F.H.A. Title I loans against 3.569 per cent, and 1.970 per cent in direct automobile loans against 2.009 per cent.

In property improvement loans, on the other hand, there was a rise in March to 4.686 per cent compared to 4.289 per cent for February. Indirect automobile loan delinquencies amounted to 2.747 per cent in March against 2.528 per cent in February.

New York, May 21 (AP).—Cotton futures trading was extremely small today with price changes narrow. Final quotations were 10 to 15 cents a bale lower.

Dealers estimated that the aggregate volume of business transacted was the smallest in many months.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, May 21 (AP).—The short interest in May contracts got a mild squeezing on the Board of Trade today. With the exception of rye, all May contracts ended higher as dealing in these futures was closed out.

It was not in wheat, which had attracted the most attention, but in soybeans that the shorts took the worst beating. May soybeans ran up sharply in the closing minutes, and in the final price showed gains of 5¼ to 8 cents at 2.40@2.43.

Trading was extremely active in May wheat, in which there was an open interest in excess of nine million bushels at the start this morning. Three minutes before the close May sold at 2.25. A minute later it was at 2.22. It closed at 2.24@2.25, a gain of ¾ to 1½.

May corn finished 2½ to 4⅝ higher at 1.34¾@1.38. May oats unchanged to 3½ higher at 67⅜@6.71. May rye unchanged to ⅛ lower at 1.37½@1.38, and May lard 2 cents lower to 18 cents a hundred pounds higher.

Attracting considerable attention was a report the Association of American Railroads would place an embargo on the movement of all grain to elevators in the Southwest. It was said the embargo would become effective June 1 in the area south of the Nebraska-Colorado line.

Newsmen on State Payrolls Stir Critics

Chicago, May 21 (AP).—A series of newspaper reports that some Illinois newspapermen have been on the State's payroll has stirred widespread interest, criticism and controversy.

The payroll stories were first carried April 14 by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News.

They reported that 51 editors, executives or other employes of 14 daily and 33 weekly newspapers recevied State paychecks totaling nearly $480,000 between 1943 and 1949, while they were directly or indirectly associated with their newspapers. (There are 90 daily and 687 weekly newspapers in Illinois).

Some newspapers editorially have called the "revelations" a disgrace to journalism and a newspaper "family scandal." Some comments criticized newspapers and news services which failed to carry the reports or delayed carrying them.

No Apologies to Make

On the other hand, comments from State officials and newspapermen involved stated there was nothing disgraceful, that the newsmen earned their State salaries and had no apologies to make, or that the reports were distorted.

Dwight H. Green, the Republican former Governor whose 1940-1948 administration hired the newsmen, called the reports politically inspired. He lost to Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson last November 3 in his bid for reelection, after a campaign in which the Post-Dispatch and the Daily News editorially opposed him.

Editor & Publisher, newspaper trade magazine, said the reports are "a stink as unhealthy and corrupt as any that has ever soiled the reputation of American journalism." It added:

"No man can serve two masters."

Some Held Big Jobs

Some of the newsmen held major State jobs, put in full time, or were generally known to the Illinois public as having newspaper affiliations. Some of those named said they were no longer with newspapers.

Some were listed on the payroll as clerks, messengers, or investigators. Some worked part time, and some were not generally known to be State employes. All contended they earned the State salary they got.

Most of the newsmen named still are working for their newspapers. Three on one paper have resigned. They were the executive editor, the sports editor, and the advertising manager of the Danville (Ill.) Commercial News. Most of those named in the reports no longer work for the State.

Green denied any of them were hired to further his political interests. He referred to the various editorial charges and to the Post-Dispatch and Daily News stories that many newsmen rode "the gravy train" and printed editorials and news stories "from the Green publicity mill . . . to keep the Green machine oiled."

Green Proud of Them

Green said, "The charges are untrue and unfair to Illinois newspapermen. They earned their money. They were not paid to write canned editorials in favor of my administration. They were paid to perform certain jobs. I am proud of what they did."

Some newspaper editorial comments declared that whether the newsmen earned their State salaries was beside the point.

But the Daily News said editorially: "To us it seems to make a great deal of difference. Moreover, it seems to us that one ethical factor in the situation is whether the employment was open and public, as in the case of several well-known officials, while it was going on."

The reported pay roll payments for the varying periods ranged from $50.50 to $21,399, exclusive of a $41,281 total reported paid to one State worker who said his only connection with a newspaper was as a minority stockholder and as an uncle of a publisher.

Some of the newspapermen were reported to have held State jobs classified as field investigator for a State department, such as highways, revenue, labor or public safety. Some said they did various kinds of writing or reporting in the State work. Some said they did messenger or clerical or public relations work. One said he worked 5½ days a week in a State oil laboratory while his son put out the paper.

Several editors or publishers held major jobs. Their State appointments were well known within the State from the time they entered service. Among these were the director of the State Department of Agriculture, the superintendent of printing, and the superintendent of multigraphing. The fact that the sports editor of a large down-State daily was a salaried member of the State Athletic Commission also had been officially announced and reported.

The Republican State auditor, who supervises the payroll records and who recently retired, told a reporter he saw nothing unusual in the practice of having newspapermen on the State payroll.

The former auditor, Arthur C. Lueder, said: "It is my personal opinion that the practice of hiring newspapermen to work for the State always has been done, although I never was in office under any other Governor."

Several members of the Legislature, which has not taken formal cognizance of the reports, also said the practice was not uncommon under previous administrations.

Lueder was asked why some newsmen were listed as highway messenger clerks on the payroll records under his supervision, although some said they did other types of work.

He said the practice is similar to one "in the postoffice, for instance. Lots of times there were no openings in one classification under which they were hired, so they were put in another department."

The International News Service said it had made no exhaustive check of its files, but one of its responsible editors said the first story he could recall was also the Rochester announcement May 10.

The delay in transmission of the reports by the wire services, and the further delay or failure by some newspapers to publish the reports after they were received, resulted in criticism.

The Washington Post said that "at best this looks like crass indifference to a particularly juicy bit of news; at worst it looks like a cover-up of scandal within the family."

The Post-Dispatch said that with the blow caused by this Washington Post editorial "the conspiracy of silence cracked wide open." It added: "This is a shameful chapter in American journalism, and the failure of the press nationally to take it up is a second blot."

Radio, Newsmen Found On Florida State Rolls

Tampa, Fla., May 21 (AP).—A radio station manager and two free lance radio news commentators are on the Florida State payroll and two newspaper columnists recently have drawn State money for special services, James A. Clendinen, State news editor of the Tampa Morning Tribune, said Capitol records showed today.

Clendinen wrote, "There may be others in radio or newspaper work also collecting State pay checks." He said records show the following on State payrolls:

Frank Pepper, general manager of radio station WRHP in Tallahassee, $150 a month plus traveling expenses. He is a brother of United States Senator Claude Pepper.

Carl R. Gray, mayor of Panama City and former State senator, news commentator on a North Florida radio hookup, $250 a month.

Kenneth Ballinger, Tallahassee attorney and president of the Tallahassee Chamber of Commerce, commentator on radio station WRHP, $250 a month.

John Kilgore, political columnist for the Tallahassee Democrat and Orlando Sentinel, paid $600 in March and April.

Allen Morris, political columnist for 11 Florida newspapers, vice chairman of the State Advertising Commission, a nonsalaried job. He recently received $700 as compensation and $1945 as expenses.

Stanmore Cawthon, until recently an editor of a Jacksonville weekly, $545 a month.

Raymond Nunez, publisher of the Ybor City Sunday News, Tampa, $3300 a year.

Miss Burklin Marks Career Of 40 Years

"We've always managed because we had faith . . ."

In those words yesterday, Miss Lydia Burklin, mistress of Friendship House, summed up her 40-year career as director of the neighborhood settlement at 619 D st. se.

Miss Burklin, whose working hours are tailored to suit the center's needs, lives right around the corner at 416 6th st. se. Youngsters have labeled her home "The Little Friendships" since it often serves as an annex for overflow or ill children.

A native Washingtonian and graduate of Central High School, Miss Burklin came to Friendship House, then called the Rochford House, in 1909. She had six years of church work behind her, and had got a good look at the city's many overcrowded, insecure homes while canvassing the "unchurched" for two Washington churches in search of new members.

When she took over Friendship, on a $50-a-month salary, Miss Burklin inherited "six months of unpaid rent and a house (then at 324 Virginia ave. se.) that was just in pathetic condition."

Two groups were using the house then—a mothers' club and a once-a-week kindergarten club. The staff consisted of Miss Burklin and a friend, Miss Ada Lowe, now a teacher at Kalorama Day School.

"The mother's club went around and collected the rent each month in small contributions from the neighborhood," Miss Burklin reminisces. "I used to go six months sometimes when there weren't any funds."

In 1911 the day care home began, when a 13-year-old girl appeared at the Friendship door with a sick baby sister in her arms.

"Mother's sick and she says she just can't stand the baby's crying another minute," the girl recited. "She said you promised to help if you could. . ."

With 40 full years of effort behind her, Miss Burklin isn't resting on her laurels. She's dreaming these days of a housing project for working mothers, with a cafeteria and nursery school—everything to make it easy for mothers who must work to keep their families together."

University Women Posted On Television

Buyers of television sets were assured again yesterday that receivers of today will not become obsolete within a few years, when more channels are added.

Adaptors to convert sets for reception of ultra high frequency stations will be available for from $30 to $50, according to Joseph B. Elliott, vice president of the Radio Corporation of America, a speaker in a panel which addressed a luncheon meeting of the D. C. Branch of the American Association of University Women at the Willard Hotel yesterday.

Television is not cutting down on reading, according to Charles A. Batson, of the Broadcast Advertising Bureau of the National Association of Broadcasters.

"If you turn back the clock 25 years, you'd probably find another meeting similar to this about what effect radio would have on movies, books, newspapers and sports," Batson declared.

Mrs. Gladys M. Jeselsohn, a member of the Washington Booksellers Association, explained that books have faced competition ever since the invention of printing, but the book business remains steady.

Classroom Study of Atom Energy Urged

School teachers should stimulate their students to learn more about atomic energy—and then take the consequences, an atomic scientist advised educators here.

Whatever event, they'll probably have to sprint to keep up with the students, Dr. Paul C. Aebersold told members of the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development, in regional conference here.

"Just think how quickly students were embarrassing their teachers in the fields of radio and aeronautics," he reminded them.

Dr. Aebersold, chief of the Isotopes Division, Oak Ridge Operations, Atomic Energy Commission, was guest speaker at the conference in which educators are studying curriculum and supervisory policy for the American educational system.

Whether or not atomic sciences should become a part of the school curriculum is up to the educators to decide, he declared. But something should be done to spread knowledge of the productive potentialities of atomic energy, he said.

"Unfortunately, the early emphasis on the destructive side of atomic energy has tended to overshadow its constructive side, its brighter side," Dr. Aebersold declared.

"Today, more facts are available on atomic energy than is ordinarily supposed. Indeed, most of the facts of basic atomic science and its nonmilitary applications are openly available.

"Dissemination of these facts would do much to replace the misinformation about atomic energy which is prevalent today."

Differences Here Weaken Acheson's Strong Hand

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

DEAN ACHESON can find at least 4,080,290 reasons for confidence as he sits down in Paris tomorrow for his first major diplomatic conference with the Russians.

The 4,080,290 are the German voters who, by official Soviet admission, voted last weekend against the Communist candidates for the "People's Congress" in the Soviet zone.

For some reason that the West cannot fathom, the Soviet authorities announced that 33 per cent of the voters in their zone had written "nein" on ballots that had been printed with one word: "Ja." This was a startling admission; until now, none of the Soviet policed elections anywhere in eastern Europe had been allowed to show more than a tiny fraction of dissenting votes.

The official figures probably did not tell the whole astonishing story. There was some evidence that hundreds of thousands of other ballots had been invalidated because of anti-Communist slogans written on them.

The vote was more than a damaging blow to Soviet prestige, coming only two weeks after the collapse of the Berlin blockade and on the very eve of a conference on which the Russians had pinned high hopes.

It was also a reminder that millions of Germans in the eastern zone did not want to be Sovietized and would risk life and liberty rather than vote Communist. The reminder was bound to strengthen the hand of the West in the Paris meetings.

The West could throw the voting figures back at Soviet Foreign Minister Vishinsky if he should claim that communism was really the will of the German people. And they would be official Soviet figures which Vishinsky could not challenge.

Some Powerful Cards

IN GENERAL, the United States, Britain and France will go into the Paris meetings in a strong position, due to the success of the Marshall Plan, the signing of the North Atlantic Pact, the economic recovery of western Germany and the triumph of the Berlin airlift.

One would imagine that all three governments would be sure of themselves and would face such a meeting without a qualm. Yet the American and British, in particular, are deeply suspicious of Soviet motives and Soviet tactics, and can only guess what the Soviet delegation may have up its sleeve. Western tactics, moreover, seem to have been improvised in a hurry, without the careful preparation which such a conference should have.

In the United States there has been a running battle within the Government between those who believe in a tough and inflexible attitude at Paris and those (a minority) who think even a slight compromise might be worth while.

Briefly stated, the tough thesis is that the West has Soviet diplomacy on the run; that boldness and firmness have already paid great returns in the Marshall Plan, the Atlantic Pact and the airlift; that the least sign of compromise now would be fatal.

Keep up the pressure without the slightest interruption, the advocates of toughness have argued; make no concession whatever; remember that the West did not want this conference anyway, and that the Russians want it only for its propagandist effect upon the Germans.

It would be imprudent and dangerous, they say, for the West to take any initiative in the form of new proposals. Let nothing interfere with the formation of a western German government linked to the rest of western Europe. Keep Germany divided for a year or two, or longer, rather than give the Communists even the slightest chance to upset German recovery. Give western Europe time to strengthen itself with the help of the Marshall Plan and the coming military aid program, and the West will be in a stronger position to settle with the Russians in the long run.

Such, very briefly, is the attitude that has been urged on Secretary Acheson, not only by the Russian experts in the State Department but by persuasive officials in the defense departments and elsewhere in the Government.

But there is a second attitude as well, and the Secretary has by no means shut his mind to it. This thesis is the Cold War can be eased in Germany without the abandonment of any vital principle or any hard won position. Its advocates take the line that insecurity and fear have already been a drag on western Europe's economic and spiritual recovery, and that a relaxation of tension would be in the interests of the United States and western Europe alike.

Combination Is Possible

THE debate between these two schools of thought has caused a good deal of soul-searching, first, within the State Department itself in the three weeks since the agreement to lift the Berlin blockade, and last week in the preliminary talks in Paris among the delegates of the three Western powers.

There are signs that a combination of the two positions may emerge at the Paris conference. In public, Secretary Acheson has been inflexible on big issues but by no means unyielding on every point.

He gave one guide to his thinking in his speech to the American Newspaper Publishers Association on April 28. On that occasion he enunciated four points:

(1) He assured the people of western Germany that the United States "will agree to no general solution for Germany into which the basic safeguards and benefits of the existing western German arrangements would not be absorbed."

(2) He assured the people of western Germany that the United States would 'continue to lend vigorous support to the development of the western German program" until an all-German solution could be reached.

(3) He assured the people of Europe that the United States 'will agree to no arrangements concerning Germany which do not protect the security interests of the European community," and

(4) He assured the people of the United States that in Paris he "will have foremost in mind their deep desire for a peaceful and orderly solution of these weighty problems."

In other words, democracy in western

Does High Living Hurt High Flying?

USING volunteer "human guinea pigs," the Navy is seeking to determine the exact effects of liquor and various drugs on man's flying skill.

The experiments have been under way for about a year at the Naval Medical Research Institute, Bethesda, Md. Officers in charge are not yet ready to talk about results, but here are some of the questions they hope to answer:

What effect, if any, do a couple of drinks have on a pilot's flying proficiency?

Are normal doses of benzedrine and other stimulants harmful or helpful to flight skill? If the latter, could not such drugs be taken to ward off fatigue on long flights?

Can aviators be kept on flight status while taking certain drugs, such as atabrine to ward off malaria, some of the new anti-allergy prescriptions and the new sulfa drugs? Or do any of them so affect cockpit performance that they endanger life?

Air Tests Possible

THE experiments at Bethesda are under the direction of Comdr. Simon W. Eyer of the Navy Medical Corps. He employs a new type Link Trainer which closely simulates actual flight conditions. A small group of Navy seamen are his "guinea pigs."

Later on, if the results of the laboratory experiments warrant it, they may be further tested in the air with skilled pilots. Dr. Eyer feels, however, that the present research closely approximates actual flight conditions.

The Link Trainer has been used for many years to measure the reactions of candidates for flight training and the proficiency of pilots in controlling such flight variables as bank, pitch, rate of turn and air speed.

"It is easy to determine the effects of large doses of drugs," says Dr. Eyer, "particularly in how they affect man's ability to perform simple tasks.

"However, it is very hard to measure the effects of small amounts of drugs while the subject is performing such a complex task as flying an airplane."

'Think' They're Better

TWO drugs only have been tested thus far—alcohol and benzedrine—and Eyer is reluctant to comment on these without further evaluation of results. But he had this to say about the effects of small amounts of whisky on flying skill:

"Alcohol depresses the higher brain centers. Thus they have less of a limiting or restricting effect on normal thoughts and acts. In some persons, this release of tension may improve their skill slightly.

"But more often, a couple of drinks lessens flying proficiency. In most cases, people think they drive or fly better after drinking. Our own tests tend to bear out this general rule, but the results are not clear cut and we want to gather additional data."

Two former Waves, Miss Adele Fochtman and Miss Lucille Lay, both of 2202 Washington ave., Silver Spring, Md., are assisting Commander Eyer in the tests. Now Navy civilian workers, they were Link Trainer instructors during the war.

They teach the sailor-volunteers how to "fly" the Link Trainers. They also monitor the actual tests and score the proficiency of the "subjects" while under the influence of the drugs. A new electronic scoring and recording device, built by Link Aviation, accurately measures performance.

Employing several electric stop clocks, the device determines whether or not the man keeps the nose of his trainer in position and performs his banks and turns within tolerated limits.

One in Six Improved

IN THE alcohol tests, each man was given a two-ounce drink of whisky and then had to "fly" for a three-hour period. The same test was repeated daily. A normal dose of two tablets was given in the benzedrine experiments.

Miss Lay reported that the flying performance of five of the six men in the first alcohol test fell off from normal. The sixth man's ability improved.

"He had an inferiority complex and the whisky seemed to give him more confidence," she explained.

Every effort is made to eliminate outside influences during the tests. The men take no drinks or stimulants the night before, and retire early. They are questioned to assure they have no emotional problems, such as "girl trouble" or bad news from home.

Careful check is made of their blood pressure, pulse, respiration, etc. This is partly to evaluate their physiological reactions and correlate them with the Link Trainer data. More important, however, it is to assure that they suffer no harm from the experiments.

Two groups of "human guinea pigs" have been used in the tests and a third group

Bunche a Diplomat Even on Job Rumor

By Thomas K. Ford
Post Reporter

TWO WEEKS ago the American Association for the United Nations made its annual award for distinguished service in the cause of peace to an American named Ralph Bunche. Among those who attended the dinner in New York and paid tribute to Bunche's work as the U. N.'s acting mediator in Palestine were some of the world's leading statesmen.

A short time before, when Gen. Walter Bedell Smith resigned as United States Ambassador to Moscow, rumors flew that Ralph Bunche might be named to succeed him. Now another prize is supposed to be dangling before his eyes—one of the new assistant secretaryships in the State Department.

Dr. Bunche—he is a Harvard Ph.D.—would not comment on the assistant secretaryship rumor. With diplomatic skill that would do credit to any habitual wearer of striped pants, he turned aside this reporter's questions on whether the post had been offered to him and whether, if it should be, he would accept.

This, his colleagues agree and his record of achievement confirms, is characteristic of Bunche. He has an innate tact in dealing with people, and a disarming directness in dealing with problems, that put formal diplomacy to shame.

Without such qualities he could not have operated so brilliantly as Count Bernadotte's successor in the Palestine negotiations. There he had to bring together the stubborn and somewhat trigger-happy Israeli and Arab states. At peak strength he had about 1000 men and women of 20 different nationalities under his command in the truce operations. Some 500 military observers, 200 civilian secretaries, and the crews of four small war vessels all took their orders from the one-time professor at Howard University.

Except in the technical sense, however, it would be inexact to say that Bunche "gave orders." Ordering people around is not his method. He gets people to do things, rather than commanding them.

Likes First-Name Basis

DR. BUNCHE is 44 years old, a solidly built man and a very informal one in manner. He dresses carefully and conservatively. With coworkers, he quickly gets on first-name terms, and in the corridors and lounges of the United Nations he is continuously stopped by people who want his advice on some matter or other.

His days are crowded, but he is a tireless worker, smoking cigarettes in an endless chain.

His hair is beginning to gray a little bit. Pleasant brown eyes look at you directly out of a square face that is never far from a wide smile or hearty laugh. For Bunche has a good sense of humor.

Those who work with Bunche, and even those who meet him fleetingly, almost immediately lose consciousness of his race. He seems to be unconscious of it himself—though he is by no means immune to the unpleasant consequences it has often brought to him and his family, especially in Washington.

One story they tell around the State Department illustrates the effect his personality has in erasing the race consciousness of others.

During the war, Bunche was chief of the African section of OSS. One day he had occasion to discuss some matter with Dean Rusk, now an Assistant Secretary of State but then an officer in military intelligence. The discussion in Rusk's office lasted into the noon hour. Rusk, who comes from Cherokee County, Ga., suggested they continue the talk at lunch. So the man from the Deep South and the grandson of a slave went to the cafeteria together and shared a table.

Deeper Than Embarrassment

INCIDENTS of the other kind could be recounted, too. Bunche is not inclined to make much of the unpleasantnesses he has faced in Washington, but he will speak of them occasionally, and with feeling. Yet

Cautious Danes Gambled on ECA—and Collected

By Frank Gervasi
Post Reporter

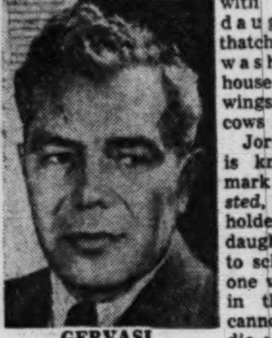
COPENHAGEN, May 21.—Anton Jorgensen is a widower of about 55 who owns a 10-acre farm just off the highway between Silkeborg and Aarhus, in Jutland. He lives with two teen-age daughters in a thatch-roofed, white-washed, U-shaped house whose two wings shelter five cows and a horse.



GERVASI

Jorgensen is what is known in Denmark as a husmandsted, a small landholder. The younger daughter still goes to school; the older one works with him in the fields. He cannot afford a radio and seldom sees the newspapers. His workday is 16 to 18 hours long. Most of what he knows about what is going on in his own country and in the outside world he learns at meetings of his dairymen's cooperative or on visits to Silkeborg for provisions.

But Anton Jorgensen has heard of the Marshall Plan. So have the bigger farmers who have radios and have the papers delivered to them daily. The operators of the farm-machinery cooperatives know about the Marshallplannen, too, as do the merchants and manufacturers in Aalborg and Odense and Copenhagen.

To all of them, Marshall aid has meant economic salvation in one way or another. But to Jorgensen, Marshall aid has meant most, and Jorgensen is Denmark. Half of the country's farms have under 25 acres.

Of Course He Knows

JORGENSEN clattered in his wooden shoes across the clean cobbles of the yard, opened a creaky door and showed us his cows, the famous Danish Reds which are the foundation of Denmark's butter economy. They are the world's best milk producers.

"They are giving more milk now," Jorgensen said, "much more than last year. But last year I could not buy oil cake. Not enough can I buy yet, but I can get some. I get anyhow half of what I need."

Oscar Hansen, an official of the Agricultural Council—which is the Danish equivalent of our Farmers' Union, National Grange and practically every other American farm organization rolled into one—translated. Hansen asked the little man if he knew why he could buy oil cake now whereas he could not a short while ago.

"Yes," Jorgensen replied, obviously wondering whether Hansen was pulling his leg. "Marshallplannen. American help. We get more oil cake now and more coarse grains for the cows and pigs and chickens . . ."

Oil cake is the dry, flaky stuff that is left when soya beans, cottonseed, sesame or copra are pressed. It provides fat and protein for animals. The cake and coarse grains—corn, oats and barley—are the bread and meat of Denmark's vast animal population, particularly during the long, grassless winter months.

Without those foods Denmark could not produce milk, and without milk this little country, only about a third larger than Maryland and containing about as many people (4,200,000) as New Jersey, could no more survive economically than could Britain without coal, or Sweden without iron ore and pulpwood.

Bacon a By-Product

MILK IS the raw material of Denmark's chief export, butter, and contributes to the manufacture of another, bacon. What is left from the churning is fed to the hogs.

Butter constitutes more than a third of Denmark's exports. Bacon, which in Denmark means all pork products, accounts for most of another third. Eggs and cheese make up the rest of the country's agricultural exports, 62 per cent of the whole export pie.

Denmark's animals annually consume about four million tons of oil cake and coarse grains. Its intensively farmed and fertilized acres—Danish farmers even laboriously collect animal urine for its nitrogen—produce all of the country's requirements in breadstuffs for humans and some three million tons of food and oil cake for its animals. But there is an annual deficit of one million tons.

War and the German occupation left Denmark physically untouched. But they damaged the Danish economy as badly as bombs hurt the economies of other nations.

Normal European suppliers kept their coarse grains. No oil cake came from the United States, Argentina and other producers. Denmark's 3,326,000 cattle dropped to 2,300,000. Butter production fell from 183,000 tons in 1939 to 120,000 tons by 1945.

When the war ended, animal feeds and not iron and steel were Denmark's essential needs. But how to buy them? Before the war the problem was relatively simple.

A Balance in Dollars

DENMARK is a food factory for Britain. It sold its butter, bacon and eggs to Britain and received sterling. Since Denmark always sold more to Britain than it bought from there, it always had a balance of sterling which could be converted into dollars which, in turn, were used to buy feeds and fertilizers from the United States and Argentina.

But in the summer of 1947, Britain was obliged to suspend convertibility of sterling into dollars. Britain continued to take its lion's share of Danish butter and bacon and sent Denmark what raw materials and manufactured goods it could spare, but no dollars.

A poor harvest that year added to Denmark's troubles. Then came the added wallop of one of the worst winters in a century. Denmark was confronted with a choice between watching its herds shrink or using up its paltry supply of dollars, about 40 million dollars, to restore the cattle population and revive Danish agriculture generally.

Denmark's pig population, depleted by pork-loving Germans, was down from a prewar three millions to less than half. The chicken flocks were down from nearly 28 millions to about 20 millions. Denmark needed to export bacon and eggs almost as much as it did butter. And the Danes, not by nature a gambling people, took the chance.

At Harvard, one George C. Marshall had spoken. In Denmark his words spelled hope. Danes spent their precious dollars for feed.

Much Done With Little

THE next year their hope was realized. Economic Cooperation Administration dollars began to flow into the dry pumps of trade. For 1948-1949, approximately 130 million dollars was allocated to Denmark. The biggest single item, a significant 40 million dollars, has since gone for feeds and fertilizers.

The remainder of the 130 million dollars has meant gasoline, fuel oil and coal. It has meant cotton for Danish mills, textiles for its clothing factories, metals for Denmark's industries, plates for the shipyards, tractors, equipment for a penicillin factory, and lift-trucks (Danes call them one-man gangs) for its cargo docks.

Compared with Marshall aid to other countries, the amount earmarked for Denmark was small. Nowhere else, with the possible exception of Norway, was it better spent. In Denmark it has meant an economic revival as heartwarming as Britain's.

The country's labor force of some two millions is fully employed. In Silkeborg, a manufacturer of dairy machinery—Danes make some of the world's finest—was obliged to turn down a dollar order from Chile recently because of a labor shortage. In Aalborg and Copenhagen, shipyards have restored the Danish freight fleet to more than prewar tonnage.

Most importantly, however, it has helped the Jorgensens produce more butter, cheese, bacon and eggs which Danes ration to themselves so that they might export more. Danes eat margarine produced from what vegetable oils they obtain from their own oil cake industry, so that they can earn dollars, sterling and goods with their butter abroad.

Five Years Telescoped

IN AALBORG, Jutland's biggest city, Lars P. Frederiksen sat in his handsomely modernistic office and elaborated on what Marshall aid has meant to Danish agriculture. Frederiksen is the director of the National Dairy Association, the governing body of Denmark's dairy cooperatives. Of the country's 1600 dairies, 95 per cent are cooperatively owned and operated and account for 91 per cent of the milk output. The association cooperates with the government in formulating export policies, and fights the dairymen's battles—chiefly over regulations—in the Rigsdag, or Parliament.

"With the help of Marshall Plan dollars," Frederiksen said, "Denmark has been able to accomplish in one year, agriculturally speaking, what it might have taken us 5 years or 10—nobody can say how long—otherwise. In another year, we will have many more cattle than we ever had before."

The biggest boost in animal population has been in pigs, from a 1948 low of about 1,500,000 to 2,400,000, or only 600,000 under the prewar high. By the end of 1949, Denmark will have 30 million chickens, some three millions more than before the war.

Denmark's problems are all in the future. The key export, butter, faces competition from margarine and a declining price situation. Looking beyond 1952, when Marshall aid, at least in its present form, will end, Denmark's trade prospects look grim.

Sterling Surplus Expected

FOR TWO or three years to come, the outlook is good. By the end of '49, Denmark will have its accustomed sterling surplus with Britain, it is estimated. The pounds won't be convertible into dollars, but Marshall aid will presumably continue to be available.

But after '52, what? There will be dollar earnings from shipping services and from the sale of dairy machinery in South American countries. Denmark's fine porcelain and silver will bring in a few more greenbacks. But, according to Danish and American ECA officials, a gap of around 40 million dollars will exist.

It is, for Denmark, an all-vital 40 million dollars. At the moment, Britain is taking about three fifths of Denmark's food products. Most of the remaining two fifths go to our occupation forces in Germany and earn approximately 30 million dollars a year—just about what Denmark is spending for oil cake, feed and fertilizers. But the 30 million dollars from Bizonia won't be forthcoming forever.

After 1952, moreover, Britain may not buy as much butter—and this would mean less sterling to be converted into dollars, assuming that convertibility will be feasible after '52.

Britain is currently engaged in a vast and costly experiment in peanut-raising in Kenya. The idea is to get oil for margarine manufacture. If it succeeds, the project may go far toward filling Britain's fat requirements.

A Marshall Plan lift truck unloads a ship at a Copenhagen dock. The Danes call them "one-man gangs"

They Cling to Butter

FREDERIKSEN and other Danish agronomists realize this but seldom admit it. Rather than force themselves into thinking along new lines—such as tinned hams, more attractive to consumers in dollar countries—they insist that the post-Marshall aid solution is sale of more butter to the United States.

Whether Denmark can sell more butter to us, however, depends on whether the high Danish price—about 68 cents a pound—can be brought down to a competitive level.

"Danish farmers," Frederiksen said, "are a little disappointed that they cannot sell butter to your country now. You have the highest tariff on butter in the world (14 cents a pound in the winter months, 7 cents in summer), which brings our price up so high that we cannot sell it. Your butter is only 60 cents, in prints, in New York.

"You say you must put on a high countervailing duty because we subsidize butter. Well, we are not interested in subsidizing butter. I know that we can bring our price down and compete with yours."

Our countervailing duty is equal to the amount of government subsidy on the imported product, and is mandatory. Although the Danes insist that their butter price is not subsidized, we take an opposite view. Antidumping duties are discretionary on goods offered on our market under prevailing prices. Unless we radically revise those tariffs, the Danes will need to look elsewhere for markets.

MEANWHILE, Denmark is increasing its East-West trade. The Danes are building a tanker for the USSR and a trawler for the Poles, with Russian and Polish materials.

Before the war, Russia was not a customer for Danish butter. But the USSR took 11,400 tons from Denmark in 1948, 10 per cent of the total butter export, in return for fertilizers, grains, wood and cellulose. Only 4 per cent of Denmark's prewar exports went to Russia and what are now Russian satellites. Today East-West trade with such nations absorbs 16 per cent of Denmark's surplus.

But Danish farmers are anti-Communist. They are not "interested," as one prominent agriculturalist put it, in developing trade with the USSR and most of its ideological companions.

One of the most significant results of Marshall aid to Denmark has, in fact, been political. The farmers' Moderate Liberal Party holds 49 seats in a Parliament of 150, only 8 less than the Social Democrat government. They supported the Atlantic Pact and have forced the Social Democrats to split away completely from the Communists, whose support the Social Democrat Party was often obliged to court.

Denmark's eight or nine different parties disagree about a lot of things, including the virtues of the Atlantic Pact, but they are united in opposition to Communist Party doctrines. The strongest anti-Communist sentiment is among the class which the Marshall Plan has aided most—the farmers.

It is also among the farmers that fear of a new war is most prevalent and that awareness of the East-West struggle is strongest.

white companions who have been rebuffed with him say he seems less embarrased than they.

He admits, in fact, that his reaction is not so much embarrassment or humiliation as silent anger. An emphatic note creeps into the voice when he says, "I don't like Jim Crow."

The discriminations present in this town certainly hurt him and his family. He has been happier on that score in New York. It is a matter that he will weigh carefully in considering any offer to return to the State Department.

Against the personal discomforts of being a Negro in Washington, Bunche very likely will weigh another consideration. That is the good he might do for his race by coming back in such a high position. For Bunche has a keen appreciation of the racial obstacles he has overcome.

Occasionally he has spoken out in public against second-class citizenship. But his approach seems to be rather that his best contribution is in a personal demonstration of worth that refutes the myth of white "superiority."

Only a Musical Observer

RALPH JOHNSON BUNCHE was born in Detroit August 7, 1904. His father was a barber. His mother has often been described as a "musician," but this is an exaggeration insofar as it makes it appear she was a professional musician.

Actually, the whole Johnson family was musical, and Ralph's mother sang and played the piano. The son did not inherit any musical abilities. They tried him on the piano and the drums, he says, but it was no go. He is, nevertheless, a music lover when somebody else makes the music.

When he was 7 or 8, young Ralph sold newspapers on the streets of Detroit and served briefly as mascot for the Detroit Tigers baseball team. As he recalls it, he brought the Tigers no particular luck that year.

In Detroit the Bunches lived with Ralph's maternal grandmother, as did the rest of her five sons and daughters. It was a sort of clan, held together by this small but strong woman. She was clearly the dominant personality in the family until she died in Los Angeles in 1928.

In 1914, however, Ralph's father took his wife and son to Toledo, where they stayed only one year. Ralph's sister was born there, and his mother acquired at the time a rheumatic condition that demanded a warmer and drier climate. So they went to Albuquerque, N. Mex. There the grandmother and all the rest of the clan joined them.

But the change in climate was not enough. Ralph's mother died, and three months later his father, too. So in 1911, led by the matriarch, they all trekked to Los Angeles. Ralph's sister and his other relatives still live there.

Screen Star's Houseboy

RALPH worked for a while during his high school years as houseboy for Charles Ray, the silent film star. Then he got a job as messenger at the Los Angeles Times and later as "pig boy," carrying the pigs of type-metal in the composing room. His grandmother, who had heard frightening stories of "printers' consumption," made him quit that job. The next one was in a carpet dyeing plant, where he worked full time in the summers and after school the rest of the year.

He was a husky lad, a fine athlete and an excellent student. The combination got him a veiled athletic scholarship as a freshman at the University of California at Los Angeles. He was supposed to be a janitor in the women's gymnasium. As it happened, football, basketball and baseball occupied most of his spare time. But the gym somehow got cleaned, Bunche got his pay and nobody complained.

During his first college year Bunche continued to work in the carpet factory. In the summers he served as "petty officers' messman" on ships of the Admiral Line, plying up and down the Pacific Coast. In his last three years at U.C.L.A. Bunche held a scholarship that relieved him from the necessity of outside work.

He graduated in 1927 summa cum laude—with the highest honors—and with a collection of four small golden articles. One was a Phi Beta Kappa key and three were miniature basketballs. An injury to his leg as a freshman forced him to drop out of football. He concentrated on basketball and played guard on the U.C.L.A. team three years.

Myopia a Boon

THE FALL of 1927 saw Bunche leaving for Harvard. He had a scholarship there, too, for his first year. But he also had in his pocket $1000 raised by a Negro women's club in Los Angeles and a note to the proprietor of a bookstore just across the street from Harvard Yard.

The note had been written by a bookstore man at U.C.L.A. for whom Bunche had done some odd jobs. It asked his friend in Cambridge to give Bunche a discount on the books he bought. But the recipient had very poor eyesight and thought the note was a request to give the young man a job. So he did.

The store was run in a rather helter-skelter fashion, as many old bookstores are. Bunche fixed things up more shipshape, dressed the windows, and when his boss was away on buying trips he took care of the business—which picked up under his care.

One day, however, the man's wife entered the store and looked at Bunche rather closely. The next day the employer said, "My wife tells me you are a Negro. Is that right?" "Yes," Bunche replied, "what did you think I was?" Then the truth came out that the bookman had such poor eyes he couldn't tell. But it made no difference in the job. Bunche was so valuable in the bookshop that the proprietor kept him right on.

Fellow Named Ozias

AFTER one year at Harvard, during which he earned a master's degree and some extra cash playing semipro basketball, Bunche came to Howard as an instructor in political science. One of his students was a school teacher from Alabama named Ruth Ethel Harris. He went back to Harvard the next year, took his oral examinations in May 1930, and the next month married Miss Harris.

The second year at Harvard Bunche held the Ozias Goodwin Fellowship—and thereby, hangs another little tale.

The Bunches have three children, Joan, Jane and Ralph, jr. But some gremlin got into his Who's Who biography and tossed the punctuation around so that it seems to name a fourth—Ozias Goodwin. That, says Bunche, is a name he does not think he and his wife would ever pick for a baby—though it works all right for a fellowship.

The Bunche girls are 17 and 15; Ralph, jr., is 5. Joan graduates this year from Westtown School, a Quaker school in Pennsylvania. Joan will do so a couple of years hence. Mrs. Bunche is an attractive home-loving woman who suffered many anxious moments while her husband risked death in Palestine.

Bunche acquired his interest in colonial problems while he was still at U.C.L.A. The spark was Prof. Parker Moon's book on modern imperialism. He followed this bent until he is now recognized as one of the foremost authorities on colonial issues and colonial administration, particularly in Africa.

Thesis Won Prize

HE WENT to Africa first in 1931 as a Rosenwald Foundation fellow, investigating the differences in administration between French Togoland, which was a League of Nations mandate, and Dahomey, a French colony. This was the subject of his doctoral thesis at Harvard, where he received his Ph.D. in 1934. It also won him the Toppan Prize for the best essay written during the year by a graduate student in the social sciences. The prize came as a complete surprise to Bunche, who hadn't known there was such a thing.

In Who's Who in America, Bunche describes himself as an "educator." Actually he hasn't taught since he left Howard in 1941 to enter the Government service. But teaching was his first love, and he still looks forward to returning to the classroom and the library. He is not wedded, he says, to the idea of being a bureaucrat—either national or international—all the rest of his life.

If he does go back to the academic life, though, it may not be at Howard. He has had several attractive offers from other universities.

Bunche's teaching experience really began while he was still in college. During his last two years at U.C.L.A. he served as an assistant and "reader" in political science. He took care of smaller sections of the large undergraduate courses taught by Professors William Bennett Munro and John F. Sly. These two men, along with the celebrated Charles H. McIlwain and George Grafton Wilson at Harvard, were his most inspiring teachers.

At Howard, Bunche rose from instructor to assistant professor in 1929, associate professor in 1933 and full professor in 1938. He was head of the political science department from 1929 onward, and also was assistant to the university president for a year.

Aid Myrdal Survey

BUT HIS teaching career was hardly continuous. The 1931-32 trip to Europe and Africa was followed in 1936-38 by another studious journey to Africa, Malaya and Indonesia on a Social Science Research Council fellowship. In preparation for this trip Bunche took courses in anthropology at Northwestern University. And during the trip he attended the London School of Economics and the University of Capetown.

As chief assistant in 1939 to Gunnar Myrdal in the Carnegie Corporation's survey of the Negro in America, Bunche took Myrdal on the latter's only field trip through the South. They were run out of more than one town with possible lynchers at their heels. The two-volume result of that study, "The American Dilemma," Bunche helped to write. And he still has four unpublished manuscripts on phases of it that he hopes some day to be able to finish into books.

The approach of war took Bunche into the Government before Pearl Harbor. Experts were needed who knew various parts of the world. Bunche moved into the Office of Coordinator of Information as "senior social scientist in charge of research on colonial and African areas in the British Empire section." Actually he set up the office and staffed it.

COI later became OSS—Office of Strategic Services—and Bunche moved up to become deputy chief of its Near East-Africa section and then chief of the Africa section. In this capacity he was a key man in preparing for the invasion of North Africa.

Helped Write Charter

IN JANUARY, 1944, he was brought into the State Department as a specialist in territorial studies. There he worked on plans for postwar disposition of colonial areas. These plans eventually became the basis of the United Nations trusteeship system for dependent peoples. As an assistant secretary of the United States delegation to the Dumbarton Oaks conference and an adviser at the San Francisco Conference, Bunche was instrumental in carrying this idea to fruition. He worked closely with Harold Stassen in writing chapters 11, 12, and 13 of the U. N. Charter.

During his State Department stint, Bunche also served as adviser or member of delegations to two conferences of the International Labor Organization. And he was appointed by President Truman to be a member of the Caribbean Commission.

When the United Nations organization was in its formative stage, Bunche went to London as the United States delegate on trusteeship affairs at the preparatory meetings and the first session of the General Assembly. And when the organization formally began its work in New York City in 1946, Bunche was one of the first men to join it. Secretary General Trygve Lie picked him to set up and head the trusteeship division of the secretariat.

Escape From Death

THE FIRST time Bunche went to Palestine was in June, 1947, with the United Nations Special Commission on Palestine. This was the commission that recommended partition.

When the British dropped their mandate over Palestine in May, 1948, and the new state of Israel came into existence, the special commission came to an end. But then the fighting began. Bunche went back as assistant to Count Bernadotte, the U. N. mediator. On Bernadotte's assassination last September, Bunche became acting mediator.

Except for a last-minute change in plans, Bunche would probably have been in the car when Bernadotte and Col. Andre Serot were cut down by machine-gun blasts outside Jerusalem.

Ordinarily they traveled together. This time Bunche was delayed in Rhodes to put the finishing touches on the Count's report to the U. N. He arrived in Jerusalem just after the assassination—to read that the Stern Gang was out to get him, too.

As acting mediator in the Palestine affray, Bunche was a choice target. Sniper's bullets more than once hit the jeeps he was riding in.

True Impartiality

AT RHODES, Bunche's first aim was to establish his own objectivity and integrity in the eyes of the contestants. As to objectivity, Bunche personified it. He neither knew much nor cared much about Palestine when he first went there.

Having convinced the parties separately that he was okay, his next job was to get them around the same table. This was no small trick. Bunche did it by a sort of persuasive persistence that eventually broke down resistance.

The next task was to get them to modify their inimical demands. Again it was a process of patient diplomacy. There was "a crisis every day," Bunche says, and he had to begin all over again.

The end result has been one of the outstanding achievements of the United Nations. A very great part of the credit goes to Bunche himself. But he is very tired now. He looks forward, when the Syrian negotiations are over, to a long rest, and then to getting back into his primary field of interest—colonial problems.

Dr. Bunche relaxes in the billiard room of the Hotel Des Rhodes, from the tension of the Israeli-Arab armistice negotiations early this year. Watching his play is Col. Ygal Yadin, chief of operations for the Israeli army and a member of the Israeli delegation. Bunche's first task at Rhodes was to "sell himself" to both sides

Red Strategy Proved By Hungarian Results

By Edwin D. Gritz
Post Reporter

COMMUNISM'S triumph at the polls in Hungary last week is regarded here as the final maneuver in what apparently is now the approved pattern for Communist conquests in the rest of Europe and perhaps South America.

A somewhat improvised variation had already been tried in Poland and Czechoslovakia, but the strategy became a perfected proposition in the mountain-bound Magyar nation of 9,201,158 people.

With this in mind, special caution was urged against dismissing the election results as meaningless simply because the voters could only accept a single list of canidates or expose themselves to retaliation. The fact remains that the Communists demonstrated an impressive disciplinary power by getting 95.6 per cent of 5,238,793 votes cast.

Furthermore, the tactics used are said to be already evident in Germany, while less obvious beginnings are reported among political dissidents and labor groups in South America.

The Hungarian elections were all the more amazing because they were called through what western observers can only describe as political whim. Acting on orders from the Communist praesidium of the Hungarian People's Independence Front, President Arpad Szakasits merely told the Hungarian Parliament on April 12 that it was dissolved—and that a new Parliament would be named in the May 15 elections.

A first hand observation on the temper of the Hungarian people on the eve of the elections is provided by Dr. Arthur Karasz, last independent governor of the National Bank of Hungary before its nationalization. Dr. Karasz, who has just arrived in this country, declared in an interview:

"The people are very tired . . . they want peace. They have little strength to struggle any more . . ."

Bela Kun Lesson

THE beginnings of the Communist triumph in Hungary are traced to the armistice agreement which was signed in Moscow January 20, 1945. In agreeing to make the chairman of the commission a Soviet representative, the British and Americans unwittingly cleared the way for a series of unilateral actions which eventually placed Hungary's economy and populace under Soviet domination.

Soviet strategy was based on thoroughness with constraint, having clearly in mind Bela Kun's abortive revolution of 1919 when seizure of power was attempted by old-style Bolshevik violence. After 133 days of terror, Kun's government collapsed under pressure of an aroused people.

Kun and his fellow revolutionaries, among them the present Vice Premier, Matyas Rakosi, fled to Moscow where they were taught more devious methods of achieving the same end. Rakosi, for one, admittedly intelligent, capable, came back, and obviously he has found the subtler methods superior.

The first stage of the revised approach to conquest involved intensive propaganda in behalf of Russia plus censorship of all criticism. The only apparent setback, and this was primarily a matter of overconfidence, was in the elections of 1945. Anticipating wide appreciation of what was propagandized as national progress under communism, the Communists permitted a relatively free election. The result was a humiliating defeat at the hands of the Smallholders Party.

The Communists then stepped up the second stage of their strategy—a Soviet-backed policy of economic usurpation and a gradual whittling away of opposition parties by persuasion or public accusations of disloyalty.

The effects of this policy showed up in the 1947 elections, which were not so unfettered. The results gave the Communist 22.3 per cent of the vote and 100 seats, while the Smallholders got 15.4 per cent and 68 seats.

Although this was highly exploited as a great Communist victory, Moscow observers were reported considerably concerned about the vote-getting power of the other non-Marxist parties, the Independent Democrats, the Democratic People's Party, the Christian Women's Party, the Independence Party.

A 'Front' of Five

THE Hungarian Communists went to work on these parties. Through merger and forced dissolution, they succeeded in establishing a Communist-dominated "front" of five parties.

With the opposition thus liquidated, the Communists embarked on their third and final stage.

This was the reorganization of the Hungarian National Independence Front, into the Hungarian People's Independence Front, a propaganda device which had the effect of rallying greater enthusiasm under the guise of change. The policies of the old front, however, were merely extended, with concentration on final consolidation of all politically "amorphous" elements.

The Communists themselves underwent a consolidation which tightened up the membership from one million followers to a more dependable force of 800,000.

Admitted Achievements

NATIONALLY, attention was directed to the fact that the three-year plan will achieve its goals in two years and seven months by January 1. The fact is that the three-year plan has achieved remarkable results, although somewhat at the expense of the people's well-being.

Observers point out, however, that the people have generally borne their yoke in silence, anticipating a better future which to some extent is already unfolding.

How many benefits the people will be allowed to enjoy in the future is difficult to surmise in the light of Russia's increasing economic domination of the Magyars by more direct means than those of industrialization.

Court Disappoints Many Liberals

By Clarke Beach
Associated Press Staff Writer

THE Supreme Court that Presidents Roosevelt and Truman appointed has disappointed many New Dealers.

They had hoped it would be as partial toward New Deal theories and measures as the court of the mid-thirties was against them. But many labor leaders now feel that the court, on the eve of another annual recess, has let them down.

It has upheld the right of States to ban the closed shop and to pass legislation which was even more restrictive toward labor unions than the Taft-Hartley Act. It even upheld an injunction against peaceful picketing, although picketing is a privilege the court has repeatedly protected.

A so-called "liberal wing" has emerged—Justices Murphy, Black, Douglas and Rutledge. But all of these men joined in unanimous decisions in some of the labor cases. They divided on many other cases involving civil rights and other social issues.

The justices have in effect said in their opinions, however, that no one should be astonished or disappointed; that the court now is only tying together the loose ends left by its New Deal revolution. Between 1937 and 1948 it reversed previous Supreme Court decisions in 30 cases—more reversals than it had ever delivered in so short a time.

Recourse Is to the Polls

JUSTICE WILLIAM O. DOUGLAS gave his view of what has happened in a recent speech to the New York City Bar Association. At least some of his brethren on the high bench are known to agree with him.

In the 1920s and 1930s, he said, certain factions used to rush to the courts to get relief from legislation they didn't like. The courts often gave the relief, nullifying acts of State Legislatures and Congress.

In doing this, Douglas said, the courts were enforcing their own social or economic theories, in opposition to the acts of the people's elected representatives.

If the people don't like what legislative bodies do, they should go to the polls—not to the courts—said Douglas. He said this was good old constitutional doctrine, ignored by the courts for some decades.

From the time of the 1937 revolution, Douglas continued, the general tendency of the court has been to give free rein to Legislatures, regardless of whether the justices liked what they did. The court has checked them, he said, only when it believed their acts were clearly unconstitutional.

The present court seldom nullifies the acts of legislative bodies. It has not nullified an entire act of Congress since 1936. It last invalidated a section of a congressional act in June, 1946.

One effect of this has been an increasing trend this term to uphold the rights of States to tax and regulate business within the States. This is a return, in Douglas' view, to a constitutional decision of 1876 in the case of Munn vs. Illinois. Decades of justices gradually whittled away the doctrine of that case and finally overthrew it, according to Douglas, because it did not coincide with their personal opinions.

New Protection for Convicts

LAYMEN and lawyers classing themselves as liberals have found solace in some decisions this term. The court has been increasingly insistent on strict interpretation of employer liability laws, thus giving a break to injured employes. It is showing more and more interest in protecting the civil rights of prisoners, agreeing to review larger numbers of cases in which persons claim they have been illegally handled.

These abuses of prisoners are nothing new. The new thing is that the Supreme Court is letting local jurisdictions know that it will no longer tolerate such infringements of the Bill of Rights.

Decisions involving other types of civil rights have not been numerous this term. The most striking one came last Monday, when the two wings of the Court divided sharply on their interpretations of the right of free speech.

The "liberal" wing won when Justice Reed joined it in a 5-4 decision which ruled unconstitutional the interpretation that Illinois courts had placed on a Chicago City ordinance. Arthur Terminiello had been convicted under the ordinance of disorderly conduct for giving an inflammatory speech February 7, 1946, at a meeting of the Christian Veterans of America called by Gerald L. K. Smith.

The majority held that a man could not under the Constitution be prosecuted for giving a speech that stirred up anger and created a disturbance. Justice Jackson in a dissent called the decision a "dogma of absolute freedom for irresponsible and provocative utterance."

"There is danger," he added, "that if the Court does not temper its doctrinaire logic with a little practical wisdom, it will convert the constitutional Bill of Rights into a suicide pact."

A characteristic of the Roosevelt-Truman court that disturbs the legal profession is the increasing division of opinion among the justices. Experts say that no Supreme Court has ever split so consistently.

Only 27 per cent of the decisions up to mid-May were unanimous. Between 1919 and 1935, from 84 to 89 per cent of the court's decisions were unanimous. The number has been gradually falling since 1937.

Equally disturbing to lawyers is the number of cases decided by a 5-4 or tie vote. (In ties, the decision of the lower court stands.) Up to mid-May, 32 per cent of the term's cases were decided by such votes.

"Such disagreement undoubtedly weakens the force of the majority view," said an eminent authority. Lawyers reason that if there is so much room for difference of opinion, lower courts will be hazy and perhaps a decision will be reversed next time the issue comes to court.

Nine Individuals Now

THERE IS, however, no solid bloc within the court, as there was in the mid-thirties. The justices seem to be nine highly individualistic men with firm views of their own.

The so-called liberals often split up, and the liberal faction is still more often joined by one or more of the so-called conservatives—Justices Jackson, Burton and Frankfurter. Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson and Justice Reed shift from side to side; their votes often swing the balance.

Justice Hugo L. Black had written 17 majority opinions by mid-May, more than any of the others. Douglas was the chief dissenter. He dissented or joined in the dissent 26 times.

Vinson dissented nine times and wrote three majority opinions. He nearly always was on the winning side. It is one of the closely guarded secrets of the conference room whether "the Chief" often manages to persuade other justices to his way of thinking or whether he himself is easily persuaded.

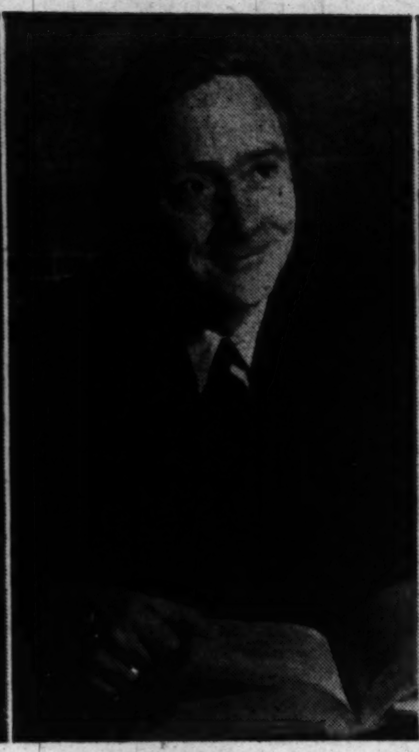
JUSTICE FELIX FRANKFURTER
... "Most noticeable" on bench



JUSTICE WILLIAM O. DOUGLAS
... Back to "good old doctrine"

JUSTICE HUGO L. BLACK
... Major spokesman for majority

As to how strongly the Chief Justice rules his court, outsiders can only guess. The justices' written opinions are more temperate than they were a few years ago, and it is thought the Chief's genial nature may have calmed his brethren.

On the bench, Vinson is decorous and alert, but he doesn't preside with the cold majesty that characterized such a Chief Justice as Charles Evans Hughes.

Little Social Contact

WHEN SEEN together, the justices seem friendly to one another—particularly Robert H. Jackson and Black, who engaged in a public tiff at the time of the Nuernberg trials.

The nine brethren, however, do not mix much after hours. Each has his own social circle. Vinson, Harold H. Burton and Felix Frankfurter go in for a good deal of the Capital's social life. The others seem to avoid it.

Vinson likes to play bridge (Mrs. Vinson doesn't), and the Vinson and Truman families see much of each other. The Chief is an ardent sports fan, once played on the congressional baseball team.

Black—at 61—is a first rate tennis player. He has his own tennis court and sometimes takes on tennis champions and makes a creditable showing.

Stanley F. Reed is a golfer. Jackson likes gardening, deer hunting and horseback riding. Burton likes to work out in gymnasiums.

Frank Murphy, Vinson, Reed and Burton live in hotel apartments. The others have their own homes. All have children except Murphy, who is a bachelor, and Frankfurter.

Frankfurter, 66, is the oldest. Douglas, 50, is the youngest.

Frankfurter likes to walk at least part way to work, and he often rides the street car. On the bench, he is the most noticeable. He keeps in continual motion, writing notes to friends in the audience, summoning page boys to bring him books or water. When he reads an opinion which greatly interests him, he repeatedly raps on the bench and wrings his hands.

Once last January he remarked with obvious sarcasm that on the Supreme Court in 1930 "sat men who understood the laws." Vinson and the other justices chuckled at him repeatedly until Frankfurter seemed to get a little sore. He told them the case he was discussing was "no matter for levity."

'Total War' on Gambling

Heat's on Vice All Over Nation

FROM COAST to coast and border to border, "the heat is on" gambling and organized vice. At the same time, most municipalities are striking at juvenile delinquency through crime prevention work.

Even Chicago, still sensitive about its prohibition reputation of lawlessness, is attempting to clean house, but the current emphasis there is on a "long list" of unsolved murders. On May 8, the Sun-Times offered $100,000 in rewards for clues that would clear up the first 20 of these homicides. The newspaper said FBI reports showed the city had the highest murder figure in the Nation.

But most communities are more concerned about gambling and vice. One of the first pronouncements of Portland's new woman Mayor, Mrs. Dorothy McCullough Lee, was that pinball and slot machine laws, long blinked at, would be strictly enforced.

Operators of public places and private clubs believed her, and the machines started to disappear. The movement spread to other Oregon communities, and the campaigns are still in progress.

In California, an all-out effort to cope with a festering crime situation has turned into a strange battle between Gov. Earl Warren and his attorney general, Frederick N. Howser. It's a complicated situation, with Warren charging that information obtained by the Special Crime Study Commission on organized crime has seeped through Howser's office into the hands of the very racketeers it was aimed against. Thus far, the din of politics has been louder than results.

On the opposite side of the continent, Florida declared war on bookmakers. Gov. Fuller Warren ordered the arrest of every bookie at the height of the winter resort season. The intelligence unit of the Internal Revenue's Miami branch said it was preparing income tax evasion cases against some 150 gamblers.

Campaigns against handbooks have been undertaken by police of Louisville and Lexington, Ky., both horse racing centers. Widespread gambling probes in North Carolina were touched off last year by the slaying of a man near Winston-Salem and the torture robbery of a restaurant owner near Greensboro. In both trials references were made to the numbers—or "butter and eggs"—racket. A number of arrests on numbers charges were made.

Twenty-four Norfolk, Va., policemen are accused of accepting bribes for protection in the numbers racket. The case was sparked by a raid in December, during which a list containing 100 police names was turned up. A special grand jury reported widespread gambling and vice and recommended reorganization of the police department. Meanwhile, the city fathers have imposed tighter controls on hotels and rooming houses in an attempt to fight commercialized prostitution.

Tempest in Ohio

OUT in the Midwest, Ohio's Gov. Frank J. Lausche opened in January a State-wide drive against slot machines and organized gambling. This precipitated major political squabbles, some arrests and charges and countercharges concerning wide open gambling.

Gary, Ind., is in the middle of a housewife-led fight against crime. On March 3, a schoolteacher was shot to death by a purse snatcher, and four days later 1500 housewives marched on City Hall.

Result was that all houses of prostitution were ordered closed. They opened a week later, but the women carried their campaign to the Governor. Some police reshuffling resulted, but the women now are determined to set up a crime commission to keep an eye on enforcement.

Many communities throughout the Nation—including New Orleans and Detroit—have clamped down on risque cabaret entertainment. Recently two Detroit dance halls lost their licenses when an investigation indicated some of the hostesses were soliciting men.

Kids Get Badges

ALL OVER the country, law enforcement officials and civic groups are concerned with juvenile delinquency and have in progress broad programs for halting crime before it is committed

New York City—with a special deputy police commissioner in charge—is underwriting a big juvenile aid bureau, enlisting the help of social agencies, the Police Athletic League and civic groups. Pittsburgh has a special youth organization, with its own municipal officers who preside at trials of offenders against the city code.

Juvenile delinquency programs are not limited to the largest cities, either. Many, like Little Rock, Ark., are working along lines recommended by the National Sheriffs Association. As junior deputy sheriffs, the youngsters are sworn in, receive badges and have meetings. The aim is to teach kids that those who enforce the law are their friends.

'I Have Cancer—I Am Going to Die'

This is the column by Forest Warren, veteran columnist on the San Diego Daily Journal, which attracted Nation-wide attention when it was published last week. The Journal said Warren's column would continue as long as he could dictate to his wife.

By Forrest Warren

I have cancer and I am going to die of it—
But I am not afraid.

I have made my peace with God. My heart is filled with love. Only happiness will surround me until the end.

My doctor, after I had been ill seven weeks, told me what was wrong. I have malignant melanoma, a type of incurable cancer.

I am glad he told me. I think that all cancer sufferers should be told. It is not pleasant news—no one wants to go—but it does give you a chance to get your house in order. And that is so important.

I have called in all of my family and we have had a long talk. And I've pretty well worked out the funeral arrangements. I've called the men I want for pallbearers and they've accepted. And I've had a chat with my preacher, and asked him to keep his remarks brief.

So far, I have had little pain, but I am very tired and sleepy. I tell my friends I could qualify in a laziest-man contest.

The thing that bothers me most right now is that the doctor says I must have no visitors and no phone calls. I've tried to argue, but the doctor is firm. On that rule, he just won't budge at all.

My very life has been wrapped up in newspaper work—for more than 50 years. I will be 72 next August.

In my career, I have written every type of story, but this is the most unusual. I am dictating it to my beloved wife Nina, who has been of such strength to me down through the years, and particularly in these days. She is seated by my bed with our portable typewriter, putting down what I have to say.

I AM writing this column for only one reason—or perhaps, I should say for two reasons.

First, I feel it might bring a measure of comfort to others who are hopelessly ill and face-to-face with their Maker, just as I am.

Then, I would like to say a word to those who are not ill, but who are blessed with health and strength, and have time ahead of them.

I would like to appeal to them to give to the Cancer Research Fund, so that it may become possible to detect cancer more quickly, and even perhaps find a cure.

Many people have been telling me what a wonderful life of service I have had. I say to all, "If you think I have done good, why not do likewise? Now is the time to begin. Help somebody today."

When I was a very young man, my first wife was killed by a train, and I was left alone with a baby boy. For a time, I was battered and broken, and my little world seemed at an end.

It was my mother's counsel that shook me out of my despondency. With an arm around me, she said, "Son, sorrow too much indulged soon becomes a weakness. The only way to lighten it is to share the sorrow of others."

I acted upon my mother's advice. In all humility, I tell you that from that day I have shared the sorrows and lifted the cross from the overburdened wherever possible.

My stories and columns in the San Diego Journal have all had one purpose—to bring happiness. I am grateful to the management for giving me the privilege of writing columns and stories to help others. The Journal is truly a metropolitan daily with a heart.

We have a revolving wheel chair plan. A chair is used by a person as long as he needs it, then returned, repaired and passed on to someone else.

Chairs and funds for their maintenance are obtained through the Journal columns. Archie Cairns is my right-hand man in this project, and I know he will carry on.

We have a Santa's Helper's fund, operating the year round to give aid to the needy. At Christmas time, hundreds of dollars in money, toys and clothes help to spread cheer.

Through appeals, five "projected" books have been purchased by individuals and clubs. These are projected onto the ceiling, to help brighten the days for the bedridden.

The Indoor Sports received several thousand dollars for their clubhouse through my solicitation in the Journal.

The Golden Wedding Club, sponsored by this newspaper, has brought happiness to many couples who have been married 50 years or more. We hear and read a lot about divorce and marital unhappiness—but there is so much on the other side.

WHY do I write about these things?

I do it only to say that when you help someone, you receive more than you give. I am so grateful for the full life I have had; I am so grateful for my friends, and I am so grateful for the privilege of serving by being a sort of middleman between those who have and those who have not.

I have no monopoly on that gratitude. You may share it, too.

I am tiring now, but I want to say that my doctor and his associates are wonderful. They are doing everything for my comfort. It is a joy to know that I am leaving three grown children, all good citizens, and six grandsons. My wife, who has been my constant companion, nurse and partner in my writing, will carry on the work I love.

The time is not set for my departure. Only God knows when that will be. I face the future with faith and, in my heart, love for all.

Editorial Comment

Press Also 'Split' on Terminiello

NEWSPAPERS — Like the Supreme Court justices—held contrasting editorial opinions in a sampling of comment on the high court's decision in the case of the Rev. Arthur W. Terminiello.

The court, by a 5-4 decision, freed Terminiello, a Catholic priest, from a disorderly conduct charge growing out of a Chicago speech on February 7, 1946.

Speaking with Gerald L. K. Smith at a rally sponsored by the Christian War Veterans of America, Terminiello attacked Jews, Henry Wallace and Eleanor Roosevelt.

More than 1000 persons picketed the auditorium, fights broke out between pickets and the priest's followers, and rocks and stench bombs were thrown.

Terminiello was convicted of disorderly conduct by a jury and fined $100. Two appeals courts upheld the verdict before it reached the Supreme Court.

St. Louis Dissent

THE St. Louis Globe Democrat said the decision "would justify agitators who incite to riot." However, the New York Post Home News said it "proclaims the strength and self-confidence of democracy."

The Louisville Courier Journal said, "We believe the Supreme Court . . . acted wisely in setting aside his conviction . . . Father Terminiello airs the views of a Mussolini. But his case could apply just as well to a Communist.

"If our country ever grows so frightened of communism that it no longer dares to grant its citizens the right of free speech, then the Communists will have conquered us."

The Atlanta Constitution said it agreed with Justice Jackson that the court "substituted a dogma of absolute freedom which sterilized the power of local authorities to keep the peace," and added:

"We join in the Jackson dissent, but regret the necessity for it."

Instigators Untouched

"HAD the Terminiello conviction stood, the net result would have been curious," said the Chicago Daily News. "He and his followers were the victims, not the instigators, of the violence that actually took place. None of those who planned and perpetrated the actual disorder were punished or seriously prosecuted.

"At least the Supreme Court avoided taking the position that a man with bitter enemies is guilty of disorderly conduct if he appears in public where they have a chance to get at him."

Said the Detroit News: "The issue is clearly one of democracy's right to protect itself, though the majority neglected to point out that the kind of protection urged by the minority also has its dangers."

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch said: "Terminiello's remarks were highly offensive . . . yet the right to make hateful remarks cannot be taken away without doing infinitely more harm than hateful remarks themselves do."

Farce of Freedom

"TO GRANT freedom of speech only when the speech is blandly innocuous is to make a farce of the grant," said the St. Louis Star-Times. "It is precisely the unusual, the counter-current, even the inflammatory that needs protection of this fundamental right."

The Hartford Courant said that "while little can be said in the defense of speeches that incite riots, much can be said for Justice Douglas's defense of speech that provokes thinking and even unrest.

"It is far better to lean toward keeping the channels of free thought open than to risk damming them by what local authorities may think people should hear or think."

"It would be horrendous," said the Miami Herald, "if the dissent by four justices reflected a conviction on their part that set limits should be placed on free speech. The court could establish restrictions and interpret the Bill of Rights to suit their fancy as to when a citizen could speak his mind and when he would have to keep a silent tongue in his head.

"That way would lie eventual ruin of all our rights as free men. . . . The decision is along the historic path we have moved as a people."

Stalled Promotions

President Truman has shown a timely appreciation of General Clay's invaluable service in Germany by acting to raise his permanent rank on retirement from major general to full general. The promotion will have warm approval in Congress and by the public generally. The very promptness with which the President has moved in this instance, however, makes all the more strange the delay which an Army promotion eligibility list has encountered at the White House.

The promotion list for high ranking officers was compiled by the Army selection board early in February, approved by Army Secretary Royall, and forwarded to the President. Ordinarily presidential approval of such selections is routine. The list merely means that when vacancies occur, the officers named will be nominated for promotion subject to Senate confirmation. But the list remains bottled up at the White House. Ugly rumors have arisen that the delay is inspired by political reasons, and the Senate Armed Services Committee has appointed a subcommittee to investigate the cause of the suppression.

Press Secretary Ross did not allay the suspicions with his statement Wednesday that the President "did not choose to okay" the list sent over by Secretary Royall before his resignation. Senator Tydings, who has received a "personal" letter from the President, explains that the list has been held up to insure promotions "on the basis of merit." Presumably this is a slap at Secretary Royall's objectivity. But it also is a reflection on the work of the selection board headed by Lieutenant General Gillem, a board which supposedly operates impartially under the Army's new promotion system.

If the President has reason to believe that the selections were not impartial, he ought in fairness to make his reasons public. As it is now, he has cast a blight on the whole promotion procedure. Moreover, there is nothing to prevent the President from sorting out the promotions he does not consider meritorious and releasing the remainder of the list. Without a fuller accounting, President Truman invites the charge of political tampering that is the bane of the merit system.

Judgeship Inquiry

Mr. John G. Buchanan, chairman of the American Bar Association's judiciary committee, has imposed a formidable task upon the Senate Judiciary Subcommittee which is conducting hearings on the nomination of Representative Eberharter to a Federal judgeship in Pennsylvania. If proved, the charges leveled at Mr. Eberharter would clearly render him unfit to be a judge on any bench. Consequently, the charges will have to be investigated with the utmost care before any conscientious Senator will feel free to vote on this nomination.

One must not, of course, take it for granted that Mr. Buchanan's accusations are established facts. He merely offered the results of his committee's research as the basis for a full inquiry. Some of the incidents cited are so ancient as to be of little significance. All of them need to be tested against court records and first-hand testimony. It is well to note, however, that Mr. Buchanan is no rumor-monger or crackpot but a highly respected citizen and lawyer who speaks for the organized bar. It is difficult to believe that a lawyer of his standing would assume the grave risk of accusing a nominee for the bench of drunkenness and criminal offenses without careful investigation.

Too often it is assumed that if a man is a member of Congress he is ipso facto qualified for a judgeship. The fact is that some of the most useful men in Congress would be misfits on the bench because of either lack of legal experience and judicial temperament or long preoccupation with politics. A member of Congress, morever, can be ousted by the voters if his conduct proves to be disgraceful or unlawful. Judges are appointed for life. To be sure, each judicial candidate is investigated by the FBI, but some recent appointments suggest that the White House gives scant attention to the FBI's findings.

In the Eberharter case it is understood that the FBI report has been made available to some members of the committee, but in the face of such grave charges that certainly does not relieve the Senate subcommittee of making a searching inquiry of its own, with free use of its subpoena powers. In our rule-of-law system the judiciary is too precious to permit of only perfunctory attention to appointees.

"Liberty With Order"

The Supreme Court caused quite a stir last week with its 5-to-4 decision upholding the right of Arthur Terminiello to make a fighting speech that "provoked a hostile mob and incited a friendly one." Few if any voices have been raised against the principles enunciated by the court. But many students of judicial trends lament its efforts to make a silk purse out of a sow's ear.

Justice Douglas was mouthpiece for the majority in restating the principle of freedom of speech: "The vitality of civil and political institutions in our society depends on free discussion . . . The right to speak freely and to promote diversity of ideas and programs is therefore one of the chief distinctions that sets us apart from totalitarian regimes." Free speech may best serve its high purpose, he continued, "when it induces a condition of unrest, creates dissatisfaction with conditions as they are, or even stirs people to anger." These basic principles cannot be too often reiterated, cherished and applied to the day-to-day affairs of freemen.

Those who are interested in delving into the case before the court, however, will find that in this instance it has applied a gloss of impeccable generalities to one of the ugliest riots that totalitarianism has produced in the United States in recent years. For these facts, unfortunately, one has to turn to the minority opinions approved by four of the court's nine members. There is scarcely a hint in the opinion of the court as to the provocative, riotous and disorderly nature of the performance to which it has given constitutional protection. Terminiello's tirade occurred in Chicago under police protection while a shouting, cursing, hostile mob surged around the building, threw stones through the windows, tore clothing from people trying to enter, and broke down some of the doors. In this environment, Terminiello delivered a typically fascist speech calling his enemies "slimy scum," spoke of his program as an "all-embracing bloodsoaked reality," and then launched into a bigoted assault upon minority groups. The result was an outburst of cursing and threats to kill on the part of some of the listeners.

To link this sort of disorder and incitement to violence with the free debate on which democracy flourishes seems to us not only naive but downright dangerous. It was not democracy in action in Chicago, but the sort of anarchy that prevails when totalitarian factions collide. To leave local authorities helpless in the face of this sort of violence is a strange way of upholding democratic principles.

"Civil liberties, as guaranteed by the Constitution," said former Chief Justice Hughes in another case involving similar issues, "imply the existence of an organized society maintaining public order without which liberty itself would be lost in the excesses of unrestrained abuses." To this Justice Jackson adds in a powerful dissenting opinion: "No mob has ever protected any liberty, even its own, but if not put down it always winds up in an orgy of lawlessness which respects no liberties. . . . The choice is not between order and liberty. It is between liberty with order and anarchy without either."

There are other vital elements in the case that have nothing to do with freedom of speech. Chief Justice Vinson and Justice Frankfurter especially protested against the court basing its decision upon an offending sentence in the trial judge's charge to the jury—a point that was disavowed by Terminiello's counsel and which had not in any degree entered into the judgment of the Illinois courts. "This matter touches the very basis of this court's authority in reviewing the judgments of State courts," wrote Justice Frankfurter. "This is a court of review, not a tribunal unbounded by rules." It is difficult to suppress the impression that the court has dealt with a vital case in a cavalier manner likely to win popular applause instead of really coming to grips with a serious problem of our day in the best constitutional tradition.

Greenbacked Monster

The pecuniary jealousies of the Congress are never very far beneath the surface when administrative salaries are in question. What members of Congress pay themselves is, with few exceptions, the salary ceiling for officials in the Executive branch. Partly on this account the House Rules Committee is holding up the bill to increase top Executive salaries. Representative Colmer voiced the feeling when he said that "generally speaking, it seems a bad precedent for the master to pay the servant more than he himself receives."

Even if this were a valid basis of measurement, which it is not, the master-servant analogy is false. The master is not Congress but the people. The legislative and executive branches are constitutional equals, each serving the people in a different manner. The fact that Congress holds the purse strings is a consequence of the check and balance system of American Government; it implies no priority or superiority in the legislative branch.

Where responsibility is obviously highly concentrated, as in the President, Vice President, or the Speaker of the House, Congress has of course broken through the ceiling. It has done so in other instances, such as the chairmanship of the Atomic Energy Commission. But Cabinet members still get $15,000, approximately the same pay as members of the House and Senate. And lesser officials largely come up against the top at or slightly above $10,000 a year.

No one is opposing more pay for Congressmen, and they could give themselves raises with ample reason. But they should not let jealousy stand in the way of salaries compensurate with responsibility for public servants in the Executive branch.

Freedom Of Education

It cannot be stressed too emphatically, in view of the vast confusion of issues, that the student fellowships have no connection with the secret work of the Atomic Energy Commission. All details of the fellowships have been handled by the National Research Council of the National Academy of Sciences. The Atomic Energy Commission acts as a sort of patron of the sciences in lieu of a national science foundation, and the commission's only role is to furnish the funds. The benefits of the research thus sponsored accrue to industry, to medicine, to the nonsecret phases of science far more than to the limited work of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Every fellowship recipient who may have access to classified data is subject to the same rigorous security checks by the FBI as apply to employes of the Atomic Energy Commission itself. This is as it should be, and the presence or absence of the fellowship program has no bearing on such clearances.

Under the $1600 grant made to him, Mr. Freistadt would have access to nothing more than is available to any citizen. In light of what has since been disclosed, it seems clear that the National Research Council pulled a blooper in not inquiring more about him prior to his nomination. The standard employed, however, was not politics, but scientific competence. In his appearance before Congress, Mr. Freistadt conducted himself well, and indeed, seemed better grounded in American history than some of his senatorial inquisitors. It is hard to regard him as any great danger to this country's security. Nevertheless, it must be assumed that as an admitted member of the Communist Party he is a potential agent of Soviet Russia.

If, as now seems inevitable, a prophylaxis against Communists is to be added to the criteria of scientific competence, it is of the greatest importance that this be done in a way that will not frustrate the program of scientific inquiry. The first step is to divorce the fellowship program completely from the Atomic Energy Commission and place it under a national science foundation. Beyond this, applicants for aid could be required to take an oath such as suggested by Dr. D. W. Bronk of the National Research Council and Chairman David E. Lilienthal of the Atomic Energy Commission. This oath would consist of an affirmation that applicants were not members of the Communist Party or any group advocating forcible overthrow of the Government. False statements would be punishable as perjury.

Even this procedure, necessary as it may be as an expedient, has its dangers as an entering wedge for exploitation. If it is adopted, it ought to be hedged with a flat prohibition against the elaborate loyalty inquisitions which Senator Hickenlooper supposedly would apply to all persons receiving Federal funds. Many persons espouse ideas in college which are considered radical by outsiders, and this includes students benefiting from the GI Bill of Rights. Loyalty tests as a condition of Federal aid could mean that the suspicion of subversive bent would haunt them the rest of their lives. It would be but a step from this sort of political means test to the kind of totalitarian fiat that drove free minds from Germany and Italy and now is perverting science in Russia.

Freedom of education is something very precious to the American tradition. A principal reason why the Federal aid to education bill was acceptable to this newspaper was its precaution against Federal interference:

> Nothing contained in this Act shall be construed to authorize any department, agency, officer or employee of the United States to exercise any direction, supervision, or control over, or to prescribe any requirements with respect to any school, or any State educational agency, with respect to which funds have been or may be made available or expended pursuant to this Act . . .

The principle is a vital one to remember in these days when the erosion of our liberties comes both from subversion and the hysterical reaction to the possibility of subversion.

"Wisdom Teeth"

It is a known fact that the dentists in Washington appreciate the good sense in your May 18 editorial, "Wisdom Teeth." We hope that great numbers of the general public, so easily won by the "something-for-nothing" appeal of national compulsory health insurance, will read and think carefully upon the dental health matters you have discussed with such a compelling tone of calm reason.

In this country nearly all the people are in need of some kind of dental care. The insurance principle will not apply in a situation of this kind. The Federal Government definitely has a place in the picture; but compulsory health insurance would result in poorer, not better, dental health care.

The solution to the problem of dental health in this country lies in expanded research leading to prevention and control of dental disease; Federal grants to dental schools and students to increase the supply of dentists; grants in aid to State and local public health services; improved community and State planning of dental health programs, with emphasis on treatment of children, and public education to create an awareness of the real nature of the dental health program in this country.

There are provisions in the Administration's new "omnibus health bill" and other legislation now before the Congress that would help to bring about these constructive forward steps. But they have been (strategically) wrapped up with the plan for compulsory health insurance that would spread the sprawling octopus of Government bureaucracy and paperwork over practitioners of the health professions —and their patients, which means all the people.

Lilienthal On the Spot

Mr. David Lilienthal seems to be in a tight spot. His championing of scientific freedom sits ill on the documents regarding young Freistadt. He asks us to "search our minds and our souls and find out what it is that we believe about democracy and about America" and hold fast to that. "Fears are abroad in this country" he announces "fear of the cynical and ruthless forces of communism, fear of the unknown, fear of fear itself."

It is an odd position to champion the Government training of a young Communist in nuclear physics on the ground of academic freedom. No one objects to young Freistadt learning all he wishes and saying anything he likes. But as taxpayers we prefer to train boys with an American, not a Communist, background, especially for service with our Atomic Energy Commission.

A good many of us have searched our minds and our souls and this is what we believe about democracy and about America. We believe that men have human dignity and are not to be herded like animals; we believe in the rule of the majority and not by a minority of hoodlums; we believe in freedom of speech, freedom of the press and freedom of peaceful assembly.

Of course there is fear in this country when we see all that we believe in, ruthlessly sacrificed in country after country abroad. But it is not fear of the unknown, it is not fear of fear. It is fear of 13 men in the Politburo and of the sycophants of subversion they place in high positions in the other countries of the world still outside their control.

It is fear of the naivete or worse, of those who prate of scientific freedom and condone subversive tactics; it is fear of those entrusted with scientific secrets which may mean our very survival, who cannot or will not see the folly of their ways. In a word it is fear of Mr. Lilienthal.

Czech Education

Eva Reinitz, a recent refugee from Czechoslovakia, asserted in your May 16 issue that "evening classes were unknown in Czechoslovakia."

Ever since the times of John Huss and the Reformation adult education has been of primary importance. The motto of the Workers' Academy, "Through Education to Liberty," reverberated through all political gatherings in the nineteenth century when the two largest parties, the Social Democrats and the National Socialists, founded their own cultural centers.

During the first republic (1918-1938), the Agrarian Party had its Free Agricultural University, the Catholic Party its Peoples Academy and the Communist Party the Proletkult. There were several nonpartisan educational foundations, as the one maintained by the Sokols, the great gymnastic society; others were kept up by various national unions and by Slovak Educational Foundation.

The Masaryk Institute for Adult Education, an outgrowth of the Educational Society established in 1906, was founded in 1925 for the purpose to coordinate these various efforts. All these institutions were government supported and free to the entire population, including minorities. The fundamental school law of the republic, passed in 1919, provided that the nation, the provinces, the communities and the local educational committees could set up schools for adult education and establish courses in civics.

By decree of the Ministry of Education of July 2, 1926, people's universities were established of which in 1938 there were approximately two dozens in all parts of the republic. Next to the Scandinavian countries, pre-Hitler Germany and Austria, Czechoslovakia had one of the most highly developed systems of adult education in Europe.

Military Waste

The Air Force develops our American faculty for wasting money into a positive genius. To show us—after six billion words have been written about it—just how wonderful the airlift was, they plan to spend upward of a million "touring" an airlift plane and crew to some 20 United States cities.

And this time, they can't use that old gag that "the boys need the training anyhow." All an airlift crew needs is rest.

The thing seems to be catching. Secretary Johnson doesn't like the offices of his predecessor in the Pentagon. Prefers those 800 feet down the hall. And the cost, and to whom? $50,000, to the taxpayer, to make over the offices.

'No Time For Home Rule'

Your editorial of May 17, "No Time for Home Rule," interests me, a transient, almost as much as it must grip the born Washingtonian.

I rise to ask, with admitted naivete, whether Washingtonians are American citizens? If the answer is in the affirmative I much want to know by what right there has been down through the years and still is withheld that boon guaranteed all Americans by our Constitution, a voice in the selection of our governmental rulers.

Specifically I should like to have someone tell me what would happen to a resident of Washington, if he refused to pay taxes—either District or Federal. Were the defaulter possessed of sufficient means to carry the case to the United States Supreme Court, what would be the finding of that august body? Is it conceivable that a lower court's conviction would be sustained.

I have always been under the impression that the Continental Congress came into being largely because of the Colonists' revulsion of feeling over the burning issue of taxation without representation. Is it possible that in the intervening 175 years we have become so soft as to accept —here in the District—a comparable situation without doing more about it than emitting a plaintive bleat or two?

As for the alibi that Congress hasn't time to go into the matter at this session, your forthright ridiculing of such a groundless excuse is fully justified. I cannot help wondering if, perhaps, both on the Hill and at the other end of Pennsylvania ave., there is a feeling that Washingtonians have too much inside information about the way the political merry-go-round operates to allow them the right of franchise.

Spain And The Pact

Nobody in this country seems to have so firm a grasp on world politics as Walter Lippmann or so much talent for slicing through the turgid nonsense which often envelops diplomatic events. In his May 12 article on the Iberian Peninsular strategy, Mr. Lippmann explains the untimelfness of trying to undo the ill-considered withdrawal of our Ambassador from Madrid. The danger of reapproaching Franco is put into the following nutshell:

"The one way to make certain that no one in Europe would fight if the Russians started to march is to notify the Europeans that the U. S. expects to retreat rapidly from the Elbe . . . to the Pyrenees."

It would be very surprising if Europe, after being conquered, plundered, debauched and humiliated by Hitler, should have any stomach for more punishment by a tougher totalitarian. Hence our task of restoring Europe's productivity and morale, concurrently.

In view of Europe's normal superiority over Russia in numbers, machines and intellect, there is every reason to anticipate success in both undertakings. We can stiffen Europe's morale despite the unmuzzled Wallaces and Cannons whose preachments are a windfall to the Russian propaganda bureau.

But we can hardly negate the Cannon doctrine (Let Europe's "boys" do the fighting, not our "boys.") by looking over our shoulders at the Pyrenees. We can only do it by ratifying the Atlantic Pact promptly with a minimum of "talking for Buncombe County."

Great Game In Paris

By Andre Visson

American Stakes

THE FIELD in Paris is set for one of the most thrilling games the Big Four have played since the end of the war. The Rose Palace in the Avenue Foche, which is one of Paris' most famous landmarks from by-gone days of the plushy Matrimonial Era—Count Boni de Castellane built it with the Gould dollars—is opening the refurbished splendor of its drawing rooms to the four Foreign Ministers and their delegations.

The delegations from the three Western powers have finished the rehearsals they have been holding in the guilt halls of the French Foreign Office. They have tried to coordinate their somewhat conflicting viewpoints and are reported to have at least succeeded in coordinating their tactics. They will appear in the Rose Palace as the great Western team. They know that their only chance of winning the game is to play it as a team. Thus the main responsibility for the outcome is on the shoulders of the captain—Dean Acheson.

Mr. Acheson is a good captain. He is firm but considerate. He can be patient, not only with his own team but also with his adversaries. His critics in Washington are still reproaching him for having been too patient with his adversaries. They reproach him for having been too slow in discovering that his opponents were playing with marked cards. They hold him responsible for the great loss in China.

DEAN ACHESON is not a man to be easily disturbed by criticism He never cared for easy popularity. A political appointee, he has been keenly aware of the importance of maintaining the best possible relations with Congress and with the key men in and around the Administration.

But he has never run for office. For perhaps the first time in his career he is facing something which is tantamount to an election. The results of the Paris conference may determine his career as Secretary of State. It must be a not too comfortable feeling, because by now he certainly knows that his Soviet opponents are using marked cards.

Unfortunately, he cannot compel the Soviets to play a clean game. The rules of the international conference games allow every player to bring his own pack of cards. Under these circumstances all he can do is to scrutinize very carefully every Soviet card laid down.

Finally, he must watch out that the members of the Western team do not let their cards be reflected in the mirrors behind them, as this would considerably facilitate the game of their Soviet opponents. These mirrors are the press and radio. The great tradition of the Western team is that it must play the game sitting as close as possible to the great mirrors of public opinion. It makes the game much more difficult and the position of the Western players very uncomfortable. But it is one of the great traditions of the West, and since the game is being played to save the great traditions of the West, the Western team must respect this tradition.

Neither side in the great game beginning in Paris expects to hold a foolproof winning hand. The Western team and the Soviet challengers realize that there is very little, if any, chance for a spectacular general settlement of all the outstanding issues. What they are facing in Paris is a deadlock, or at best, a limited and inevitably temporary settlement of the most urgent issues. And since both sides are reluctant to continue the present deadlock because they both realize that it is loaded with danger, they are likely to try to reach a temporary settlement on a limited number of issues. The truth is that both sides are playing for time.

COMMUNIST expansion has been stopped in all of western Europe. It has been retreating even in the Soviet zone of Germany. It is natural for us to seek any kind of settlement that would allow us to strengthen our position in Europe. Any settlement which will not deprive us of the opportunity to follow our present course—the strengthening of our friends in western Europe economically and militarily—will be acceptable. Any settlement that would deprive us of this opportunity, or even lessen it, will have to be rejected.

Our greatest objectives in Europe now are to create and maintain conditions which will make possible a French-German cooperation. In the light of this, it would have been impossible to make a better appointment in Germany than John J. McCloy.

One of the ablest men in Washington, he is also one of the few who realized during all these years that no solution of the German problem was possible without a French-German understanding. Having worked closely with the French, particularly with Jean Monnet, the father of the so-called French postwar economic plan, in Washington and in French North Africa during the war, Mr. McCloy is more familiar than anyone else in Washington with all the French hopes and fears.

On the other hand, the French have in the person of their present Foreign Minister, Robert Schuman—born and reared in Germany, and completely bilingual son of Lorraine —an ideal man for finding a solid basis for French-German cooperation. Thus, Messrs. Schuman and McCloy may prove to be the most valuable members of the great Western team in Paris.

Skipper Ignores Storm Warnings

By Joseph Alsop

POSSIBLY the noise the business forecasters and economists are hearing is not the crash of surf on a reef of bad times. But it must be said that when so many of the chart studiers think there is depression ahead, it is a bit alarming to find that the cast, cumbersome old Ship of State is perilously close to drifting.

What is frightening is not that the President and his advisers have adopted bad plans for coping with a business recession, but rather that there should be no plan at all.

The President is known to feel that the increasingly widespread predictions of depression contain an element of big business propaganda, intended to defeat his economic program in Congress. Probably there is some justification for this view. But that does not justify ignoring the problem altogether.

The treatment accorded the quarterly report of the President's Economic Advisory Council is highly symptomatic in this connection.

Unanimous on Recession

AFTER frightful internal wrestlings and disputes, Messrs. Nourse, Keyserling and Baldwin submitted a unanimous report containing one major admission and four significant recommendations. The admission was that the inflation danger was past, and that a business recession must now be regarded as a definite possibility.

The two most important recommendations, which have been much misrepresented in the press, were as follows:

A, since they were not immediately needed, the inflation control provisions of the President's January request to Congress should be temporarily shelved. B, to encourage business, the President's January demands for new taxes should be revised downward.

Specifically, the council suggested jettisoning the two billion dollars of proposed Social Security tax increases, and lowering the original proposed increase in corporate and income taxes well below four billion dollars.

In addition, the council urged the President rather significantly to extend present provisions for unemployment benefits under Social Security, and to provide limited funds for planning public works programs in areas where serious joblessness is already appearing.

Although these last two recommendations gave a certain grim emphasis to the whole report, the President's decision was simply to stand pat on his January program. He is said to have reasoned that he would only undermine confidence still further by admitting the possibility of a depression at this juncture.

Considering how seldom his experts are unanimous, it is rather surprising that the President should have ignored them when they agreed for once. For, in fact, there are four separate and distinct theories current in the highest Administration quarters, about how to deal with depression.

Snyder Has His Own

THEORY 1 is that of Dr. Leon Keyserling. Keyserling is a New Dealer, believes in a managed economy, and advocates stabilizing the economy at its present high level by major Governmental efforts, if necessary. Theory 2 is that of Dr. Keyserling's chief, the chairman of the Economic Advisory Council, Dr. Edwin Nourse. Dr. Nourse advocates the policy popular with businesses, of drastically reducing both Government expenditures and taxes.

Theory 3 is that of Treasury Secretary John Snyder. He is close to Nourse, but differs from him in insisting that business is still good and the prospects are not alarming.

Finally, Theory 4 is that propounded at the Federal Reserve Board by Marriner Eccles. He is close to Keyserling, but believes the present economic level cannot be maintained and accepts the inevitability of considerable disinflation.

Since Eccles thinks the bump must come some day, he would prefer it to happen now. But he, too, wants the Government to intervene massively before the readjustment becomes a serious slump, to stabilize the economy at a level lower than Keyserling advocates.

These are extremely brief and crude summaries of complex and expert viewpoints. Inevitably, they distort a little. (Keyserling, for instance, wants price readjustments as much as Eccles, but insists they must be accomplished with no transitional hard times.) Nonetheless, the divergence of the viewpoints is sufficiently indicated to show that the Administration has nothing like a master plan for dealing with a possible depression.

There cannot be a master plan, when the men who should be making it are all traveling in different directions, without higher direction from the President. In the end, of course, political pressures are likely to recommend Dr. Keyserling's approach to the White House.

If the forecasters are correct, and bad times really come, the Administration will seek to promote recovery by spending. But even the spending theory will not be given a fair trial, if it is applied haphazard and in crisis.

Knotholes in the Savannah's Log

Some Fauna Thrive Only on Salt

By Paul Gallico

YOU wouldn't believe it had been going on for so long, but, so help me the Encyclopedia Britannica, exactly 130 years ago to this day the first steamship crossed the Atlantic Ocean.

This was the packet Savannah, which crossed from Savannah, Ga., to Cork, Ireland. She was a sailing vessel with auxiliary steam engines that didn't work very well or very long—she used them for only 80 hours of the voyage and consumed all the coal she had with her. But it was the first official steamship crossing, and we have gathered together here today, brethren, to celebrate it.

For not only a new mode of traveling was born, but a new traveler, the steamship man and the luxury liner girl.

I have been delving into old records trying to determine which came first, the transatlantic traveler or the steamer cap. It is lost in the mists of time, but one thing is certain: When the first engine-driven ships began to plough the North Atlantic and the first regular crosser made his appearance, the steamer cap was in existence and he was under it.

Peaks Are Past

THIS hideous garment has undergone a few minor transformations since its inception shortly after the birth of our Nation. It was once peaked fore and aft, and then was modified into the object now seen adorning the noggins of veteran transatlantic commuters—by far the most hideous object ever to top the head of man.

It is possible today, and I have successfully conducted this experiment, to cross the ocean in any of the giant ocean palaces now in operation wearing exactly the same clothes one would in conducting one's normal business in the city, since the entire shebang is glassed in from stem to stern. A sack suit by day and a dinner jacket at night, and that does it.

But steamer clothes still persist, and the hardy survivor who wears them; and sure enough, first morning after sailing, there he is all decked out. It used to be knickers. Now it is slacks, sweater, sports jacket and that Go-to-H—— cap. Usually there is a big fat cigar in his kisser. He walks the deck only until the bar in the smoking room opens up. Then he vanishes into this haven and is not seen again until the following morning. This has been going on for 130 years.

The Savannah, Ireland-bound, probably also gave birth to the first transoceanic sportsman, or Atlantic "Athalete." Some sailorman fashioned a ring out of rope and amused himself trying to toss it over a marlinspike. The first steamer man saw it, tried it and thereafter bred a race of odd and wacky creatures who on dry land would not dream of exerting themselves beyond reaching for a stein, but who, immediately they set foot aboard ship, fly into a perfect frenzy of athletic endeavor.

As for the luxury liner girl, she, too, dates back to the good old pioneering Savannah, and has been at it ever since. She is the one who appears suddenly and mysteriously the third day out, having apparently got aboard in midocean. She is the dream queen, the pippin of pippins, the eyeful and the knockout.

Eight hours after she has appeared she has the entire male population of the ship, from the captain on down to the cabin boy, following her around. She flirts with old codgers, fledglings and married men. She couldn't get away with it on land, but once on the briny she manages to spread herself around so that every chap on the roster firmly believes that he is the one slated to capture her affections.

This lasts until land is sighted, when the atmosphere surrounding her suddenly becomes chilly. When the boat docks there is some little, bald-headed squirt waiting for her. She calls him darling, throws her arms around his neck and drives off to the sound of gnashing teeth.

The good old Savannah has much for which to answer.

A Smear on the Pristine Pine

By Hodding Carter

GREENVILLE, Miss., May 21—It was the infamous Senate Bill 949-X2, contemptuously known as the Paint-or-Else bill, which almost precipitated the second secession of the Deep South.

On the surface, SB 949-X2 seemed innocuous enough. It merely provided a $1 a pound minimum for cotton and unlimited production, together with free crop insurance, income tax exemption in election years, and two sets of ledgers.

With their eyes on dollar cotton, the Senators from the Cotton Belt almost overlooked the paint amendment. But there it was, tucked away in a section dealing with soil conservation practices and therefore almost unnoticeable. The benefits of this bill, the amendment stated, shall not accrue to any cotton farmer or farmers whose tenant houses, outhouses, warehouses or barrelhouses have not been painted within the 10 years preceding passage of the bill.

Unassailable Logic

THE amendment was discovered just prior to a voice vote on the bill. As its contents became known, one Cotton Belt Senator after another sought the floor.

Out of their confused shouting there emerged a clear, logical and constructive pattern of opposition. The paint-or-else provision was centralization of power at its worst. It was bureaucratic, socialistic, inspired by the paint trust and aimed directly at the heart of the South.

A Mississippi Senator, whose identity was lost for three newspaper editions, best put the case for the Cotton Belt.

"I grew up on a plantation," he shouted. "My father grew up on that same plantation. So did my grandfather. There's been three generations of no paint on that plantation, and I can show you chimneys that are still standing since my granddaddy's time."

Steadying himself, the Senator appealed to the reason of his colleagues. "First you make painting compulsory," he said. "Probably red paint at that. Maybe it doesn't seem a step toward centralization. But, I warn you, next year it will be screens, and the next year weatherstripping and the next year, even sanitary plumbing—who knows? Gentlemen, I warn you that the South won't be brushed off this way. Our way of life is at stake."

The Senate adjourned without taking action. By the next day, the entire Cotton Belt was in arms. A statement from Dixiecrat headquarters asked and answered a question that underlined the basic issue itself: Where is the painting of farm buildings and homes most widespread in the country? Obviously there was only one answer: the North. And from the North, paintism could spread like a disease to every cabin in the South.

A Blow to Art

THE embattled Southerners discovered a strong and unexpected ally in the motion picture industry. Honestly admitting a selfish concern, a Hollywood lobbyist pointed out that if the South were painted up there would be no place to make documentary films. And throughout the black belt rode ghostly Klansmen, bearing banners proclaiming, "Millions for war paint, but not one cent for defense."

Two days later, angry Administration spokesmen announced that the entire bill would be withdrawn. Here was sectional vengeance at its worst. No dollar cotton. No free crop insurance. No income tax exemption in election years. And only one set of ledgers.

Throughout the cotton belt, grim-faced men talked of taking the law in their own hands. Saner leaders averted violent action by pointing out that a brush with the law was the very thing everyone was against.

And then came the Great Compromise, in the form of a substitute amendment offered by the entire Southern delegation. It accepted the principle of dollar cotton as fundamental to the economy. But in place of compulsory painting, it proposed whitewashing the whole thing.

The Ages of Deafness

By Alton L. Blakeslee

Associated Press Science Reporter

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 21.—There are five general ages of deafness, when particular kinds of hearing trouble are most likely to develop, says Dr. C. Stewart Nash.

He lists the five ages, and the chances of correcting the troubles, in a report to the New York Medical Society:

From 1 to 2½ years: This age brings to light deafness due to defects at birth. In this kind, "there is no hope for cure. They are a problem in special education."

From 2½ to 12 years: Deafness often develops due to trouble in the Eustachian tube, the passage from the pharynx to the middle ear. But "if detected and properly managed within six months of its onset, this can be cured. Failure to remedy this condition is always the result of neglect or delaying treatment."

Twelve to 20 years: The age of progressive deafness due to development of spongy bone material in the inner ear. "So far as I am aware, there is no effective treatment for its early stage, but selected cases are improved by the fenestration operation," which creates a new window for the ear.

Twenty to 40 years: This is the time when neglected or inadequately treated childhood difficulties result in deafness in adulthood.

Forty to 60 years: The changes with aging are likely to reduce hearing ability, particularly for high tones. Some people are helped by small but long-continued doses of vitamin B. Just why the vitamin sometimes retards or stops the progress of the disease is difficult to understand, he said.

This age grouping is the general rule, but the troubles can develop at any age, Dr. Nash said.

Injuries are a second main cause of deafness.

Third, and "perhaps the most vicious causes of deafness" in any age group, are the toxins or poisons from sicknesses like mumps, measles, pneumonia, meningitis and encephalitis.

"Deafness produced by these agents is always nerve in type and often permanent. Of the medicinal products producing deafness, quinine is still a patent cause of nerve deafness. But more recently streptomycin has been the cause of an alarmingly severe and possibly permanent inner ear damage."

Toxins Are 'Vicious'

THERE are three other causes of deafness that can occur at any time.

One is due to infections. Acute infections rarely lead to permanent loss of hearing, but chronic infections of the mucous membrane of the ear can produce a moderate degree of deafness.

THE GALLUP POLL

81st Congress Given Slight Edge on 80th

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

THE Eighty-first Congress is given a slightly better rating than the Eightieth in a national poll inviting voters to compare the two legislative bodies.

Twelve per cent call the present Congress worse than the Eightieth, which President Truman described as one of the "worst" in our history, while 20 per cent think it is better than its predecessor.

However, the largest single group in the poll either say that the present Congress is much the same as the Eightieth or that they don't know yet just how to rate it.

The public's general attitude toward the present Congress is indicated in the vote on this question:

"From the impression you have thus far, based on things you have heard or read, how do you think the present Eighty-first Congress in Washington compares with the one just before it—that is, the Eightieth?"

|---|---|
| 81st is better | 20% |
| 81st is worse | 12 |
| About the same | 31 |
| Neither very good | 2 |
| Too early to judge | 2 |
| | 67% |
| Don't know | 33 |
| | 100% |

Although the present Congress has neither repealed nor modified the Taft-Hartley Act, members of labor unions are apparently hopeful of such action, for only 1 in every 12 union members questioned in today's poll criticize the Eighty-first Congress as being worse than its predecessor.

The union vote follows:

|---|---|
| Eighty-first is better | 21% |
| Eighty-first is worse | 8 |
| About the same | 30 |
| Neither very good | 2 |
| Too early to judge | 2 |
| | 63% |
| Don't know | 37 |
| | 100% |

Democratic voters tend to take a much more charitable attitude toward the Eighty-first Congress, which their party controls, than do Republican voters, whose party controlled the Eightieth.

Independent voters side more with the Democrats in their attitudes. Here is the contrast:

| | Dem. | Rep. | Ind. |
|---|---|---|---|
| 81st Congress is better | 26% | 14% | 21% |
| 81st is worse | 8 | 20 | 8 |
| About the same | 27 | 34 | 35 |
| Neither very good | 1 | 2 | 4 |
| Too early to judge | 1 | 1 | 3 |
| | 63% | 71% | 71% |
| Don't know | 37 | 29 | 29 |
| | 100% | 100% | 100% |

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Ex-Dixiecrat Wins Truman Favor

By Drew Pearson

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT used to have a file of what he called "B. C." Democrats—meaning those who had the courage to be for him "before the Chicago convention." With President Truman, however, friends say that "B. C." means "big contribution"—no matter when the money comes in.

Curtis Calder, now asked to be Secretary of the Army, made his contribution of $3000 on November 23—well after the election. Another Texan, Wright Morrow, is now getting the royal plush-carpet treatment, though he did his best to block Truman's nomination.

Morrow still has the technical title of Democratic National Committeeman from Texas, due only to the fact that Chairman McGrath snuggled him to his breast after election. McGrath, however, staged his cuddling act despite the fact that Morrow was thrown out by the second Democratic convention in Texas because he had teamed up with the Dixiecrats. What Morrow said about Truman at that time couldn't be printed.

Finally, pro-Truman Democrats, led by Mayor Tom Miller of Austin, Judge Clancy of Brownsville, Harry Seay of Dallas, with Maury Maverick and Woodville Rogers of San Antonio, managed to put Morrow in his place. Thanks partly to them, Truman won out in the primary.

After the Texas primary it was all over but the shouting. Final elections don't mean too much in Texas. So, with the Texas outcome in the bag, Morrow came out for Truman—and made a contribution.

Now Chairman McGrath not only has warmed up to the black-sheep Texan, while cold-shouldering many of the loyal Texas Trumanites, but has offered him the Ambassadorship to Australia, a close friend of the U. S. A. Morrow, however, turned it down. The job was not important enough.

McGrath, therefore, is now coming up with a new appointment—probably the Ambassadorship to Belgium. It will be interesting to see whether the man who fought Truman when it hurt most will now consider Belgium sufficiently important to recompense him for his services to Truman.

Backward Areas

PRESIDENT TRUMAN is now all set to "kick off" on his far-flung program of aid to backward nations, and soon will send a special message to Congress asking for the necessary funds and authority.

The President heard some convincing talk on the need for early action from David A. Morse, brainy director-general of the International Labor Office, just returned from a two-month tour of undeveloped areas in Latin America.

"From the standpoint of cost, this is the most inexpensive kind of foreign relations," Morse told him, "but it is the most constructive of all in getting results. Most countries in Latin America have done something about developing their backward areas, but it is far from enough."

He added that the first phase of the Truman program, which will be directed by the International Labor Office in cooperation with the United Nations and the World Bank, should be the training of backward-area peoples in working skills, so they can take jobs in new industries to be set up.

This, he said, would mean the establishment of vocational schools and other training centers in undeveloped countries.

North-South Alliance

DIXIECRATS and Old Guard Republicans have now organized one of the smoothest working alliances on Capitol Hill. Without many signals across the aisle, these two groups vote almost as one. They also think alike, consort together, and have more in common than most Northern Democrats and liberal Republicans.

Leaders of the Dixiecrat-GOP alliance are well known. Their names—Gene Cox of Georgia, Howard Smith of Virginia, John Wood of Georgia—are frequently in the headlines. But the rank and file members, whose votes make the coalition click, are not well-known.

Here is the roll call of the gentlemen who, on such vital issues as Taft-Hartley repeal and rent control, make the alliance work:

Democrats: Boykin, Alabama; Gathings, Arkansas; Rogers, Florida.

From Georgia—Cox, Davis, Preston, Wheeler and Wood; Passman, Louisiana. From Mississippi—Abernathy, Colmer, Rankin, Whitten, Whittington and Winstead.

From North Carolina — Barden, Chatham, Doughton, Redden. From South Carolina—Hare, McMillan, Richards; Murray of Tennessee; Smith of Virginia.

From Texas—Fisher, Gossett, Kilday, Lucas, Pickett, Poage, Regan, Teague, Wilson.

Republicans: From California—Allen, Anderson, Bramblett, Phillips, Scudder, Werdel, Jackson; Hill, Colorado; Sanborn, Idaho.

From Illinois—Allen, Arends, Chiperfield, Mason, McMillen, Reed, Simpson, Velde, Vursell, Church. From Indiana—Halleck, Harden, Harvey, Wilson.

From Iowa—Dolliver, Hoeven, Jensen, Le Compte, Martin. From Kansas—Cole, Meyer, Hope, Rees, Scrivener, Smith. From Maine—Fellows, Hale; Miller of Maryland. From Massachusetts—Goodwin and Nicholson.

From Michigan—Blackney, Crawford, Ford, Hoffman, Michener, Potter, Shafer, Wolcott, Woodruff, Dondero. From Minnesota—Andersen, Andresen, Hagen, O'Hara; Short of Missouri; D'Ewart of Montana. From Nebraska—Curtis, Miller, Stefan. From New Hampshire—Cotton and Merrow.

From New Jersey—Eaton, Towe. From New York—Gwinn, Macy, Reed, Taber, Wadsworth. From Ohio—Bolton, Brown, Elston, Jenkins, McCulloch, McGregor, Vorys, Weichel. From Oregon—Ellsworth and Stockman.

Raising Senate Roof

SENATE leaders have been served notice that they must wind up this session by July 1, because that's the day labor will start raising the roof—of the Capitol Building.

In notifying Senators of this date, David Lynn, Capitol architect, painted a strange picture of what will take place in the stately Senate chamber.

"It is necessary," Lynn explained, "to construct an entrance to the building for the use of the workmen traveling to and from the roof with their tools and equipment . . . It being proposed to construct a stairway and entrance into the building through one of the windows in the Senators' restricted, private dining room, and to reserve for use of the workmen the Senators' private elevator . . ."

In case of a prolonged summer session or an extra session in the fall, the Senate will convene in the Senate caucus room across the court from the Capitol Building.

Some Library Recordings on Sale

Folklore From Sioux to Mencken

By Judith Spivak
Post Reporter

IF YOU like the real McCoy in folk songs, the Library of Congress has it.

Pennsylvania coal mine tunes, songs from the Iroquois longhouse and moody Afro-American blues are all on sale in the lobby of the library's main building.

Among 450 songs, recorded on unbreakable vinylite and priced at $2.25 and $1.50 a disc, are a Mississippi rendition of "Arwhoolie" (The Cornfield Holler), an Iroquois war dance and an Alabama version of "Boll Weevil Blues."

The tunes were recorded for the library's music division just as they were sung by Iowa farmers, Kentucky mountaineers and reservation Indians. The recording was done on portable equipment by field collectors.

Percy Grainger, pianist, composer and folklorist, inspects a transcription of one of the 175 Danish folk songs he donated last month to the Library of Congress. The material is the first from that area in the archives of the folklore division. Grainger gathered it on a roving trip through Denmark and Jutland in the 1920s

Eager Performers

FOLKSONGS on sale, however, are only a tiny part of the library's vast collection of recorded folk music, which now includes 40,000 songs from all over the world.

A gold mine of material for scholars and folklorists, the collection is growing at the rate of several thousand new tunes yearly, according to Duncan B. M. Emrich, folklore division chief.

Emrich, who's done a good deal of field collecting himself, says it's easy to persuade most people to perform—they're flattered at being recorded for the Nation's library. Performers whose records are put on sale receive royalties.

Some are a little too eager to sing, in fact, Emrich says with a chuckle, recalling the fate of a collector working at a miner's union hall where the beer flowed freely.

One miner, bent on rendering "Mother Machree" for posterity, was removed when the collector explained that the song is not legitimate folklore material. The irate miner turned to a nearby closet and extracted a shotgun.

"He recorded it, all right," says Emrich.

Visitors Oblige

THOUGH most material is gathered regionally, a good bit is recorded here in Washington by visitors who stop in at the library's recording laboratory out of curiosity, and stay to sing their specialties.

"There was a chap from La Jolla, Calif., sang 57 songs in one afternoon for us a few weeks ago," Emrich says. "He wandered in to see our records and got talking."

Indians, who travel to Washington to present petitions to Congress, are another source.

Variety in the library's collection is infinite.

There's a Sioux chant made up by the victorious Indians after Custer's last stand at the Battle of the Little Big Horn in Montana. The gist of it is, "Longhair, you found what you were looking for," Emrich explains. It was recorded by Chief Crazy Bull, then a resident of Brooklyn, and a descendant of the famed Chief Sitting Bull.

Also in the files are the prose reminiscences of a Confederate general, 101½ years old, who wandered into the folklore division one day and talked of Robert E. Lee and of being in prison at the time of Lincoln's assassination.

"We asked him to record the rebel yell," says Emrich, "but his wife refused. She was afraid the shock might kill him."

Mencken's Pet Hate

A NUMBER of prose recordings by people who have contributed to American culture are on file.

Actor Maurice Evans has discussed his life in the theater for the library, and the iconoclastic H. L. Mencken has reviewed his pet dislikes, singling out the auto trip between Baltimore and Washington for particular abuse.

Also on record is Mrs. Mabel Wolfe Wheaton, sister of Thomas Wolfe, who spent five hours cataloguing her brother's life from the very beginning to his death.

(None of the prose recordings mentioned above is for sale.)

Operated "on a shoestring" since its establishment in 1928, the division set up its recording and transcription laboratory with a 1940 grant from the Carnegie Foundation. Now it just about pays its own way with the help of record sales proceeds, Emrich says.

In earlier days the library's folklore chiefs, including Robert Gordon, John and Alan Lomax and B. A. Botkin went out hunting for folk singers and taletellers, portable recording equipment in hand.

"Collectors began popping up all around the country after a while," Emrich says.

Now the library merely lends recording equipment, or more often just discs or tape, to university-sponsored scholars.

Lore of Detroit

AMONG projects in progress now is one devoted to Mormon folklore, another to Western mining camp songs and a third to the folklore of Detroit—"an urban center that's a perfect melting pot of almost every nationality," Emrich says.

In the foreign field, Tibetan speech, religious ceremonies and folk tales are being recorded for the library by Prince Peter of Greece, anthropologist now studying a Tibetan town.

The library, which sold about 10,000 discs last year, isn't looked on as competition by private companies, Emrich stresses.

"We collect pure raw material. It's made in the field under adverse conditions and quality is not so high as that of a studio job."

In fact, he adds, the record companies are the first purchasers of new albums. "If they find anyone who's a good singer they appropriate him."

Hollywood studios in search of background tunes, book publishers issuing folklore anthologies, and radio stations which put on folksong programs are all good customers.

Records on sale, which come with explanatory leaflets, can be ordered by mail. Send 10 cents for a catalogue to the Recording Laboratory, Division of Music, Library of Congress, Washington, D. C.

Acheson Is Expected To Temper 'Toughness'

Germany will not be impaired for the sake of reaching agreement with the Russians; Germany will not be allowed to become a military menace to her neighbors; and peace with the Soviet Union will continue to be one of the objectives of American diplomacy.

He Appreciates Tension

THE Secretary's four points might be interpreted as heralds of a tough policy at Paris if it were not for one important fact. The western European leaders who came here for the Atlantic Pact ceremony last month felt that the Secretary had a clear understanding of European psychology.

He showed it to them in his private discusions of the pact itself. He showed it by approving Gen. Omar Bradley's statement that the United States did not intend to let western Europe be overrun in case of war. He showed it more recently in his statement which recognized the European dislike of Franco Spain.

With this background, it is not likely that Acheson will ignore the present sense of strain in Europe, and the almost pathetic desire of 250 million western Europeans for some easing of the tension between the East and West.

If Russia calls at Paris for the unification of Germany, the West can be expected to reply yes—but only on the basis of the new democratic constitution worked out at Bonn. The Soviet zone would have to be brought within the democratic freedoms of the West.

If Russia claims a share in supervising the Ruhr, the western delegates can always go back to Secretary Marshall's proposal at Moscow in 1947 to let the West also share in supervising the coal and steel industries of Silesia, once German but now a part of Poland.

If the Russians present their long-heralded proposals for a total evacuation of occupation troops, the western delegates will certainly say no. But they may propose (1) a step-by-step reduction in the number of occupying troops, as first suggested by Secretary Byrnes in 1946, and (2) the concentration of occupation troops at a few agreed points rather than in all parts of the occupation zones.

The Vienna System

THE status of Berlin itself will present a tangle to the Paris delegates. It is by no means sure that the Americans, British and French will be willing to go back to the old four-power governing authority that functioned with so much difficulty and discord in the three years preceding the Soviet blockade.

The four-power government in Berlin was frustrated repeatedly by the Soviet veto. The West would have every reason to seek the substitution of the so-called veto-in-reverse, which has functioned successfully in the four-power occupation of Vienna.

Under the Berlin system the local government could not take action without the unanimous consent of all four occupying powers, thus inviting virtual paralysis at the hands of the Russian commander. Under the Vienna system the local Austrian authorities are free to act unless all four occupying powers object.

If none of the expected Soviet proposals proves acceptable, and if the West sits tight with its present policies and programs, there is still one way for all four powers to prevent a complete breakdown of the conference—if they want to prevent it.

This is the so-called Schuman plan, already mentioned in these columns, based on a temporary continuance of the present division of Germany. It would, in effect, be an agreement to disagree for a stated period. The western and eastern sections of Germany would go their separate ways, united only by a loose four-power control over specific and severely limited fields.

A Cryptic Farewell

ALL the signs still suggest that the gap between East and West is too wide to be bridged except by such a frail and temporary agreement. Secretary Acheson himself seemed aware of the difficulties when he emerged from a farewell meeting with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. He stated his policy in just two sentences:

"We shall neglect no real opportunity for increasing the area of solution and tranquillity in the world. At the same time, we shall not barter away success achieved for the sake of promises which might again prove to be illusory, as they too often have in the past."

As to the prospects, he was cautious and cryptic. He thought "perhaps we have a better opportunity" to reach agreements with Russia than on past occasions. But he quickly added: "We most certainly are now in a better position to deal with the consequences of a failure."

The Magazine Rack

By Katharine Graham

THE IMPORTANT part played by news magazines in supplementing newspapers is evident in Newsweek's cover story on Judge Harold R. Medina. The trial in Judge Medina's New York court of the 11 Communist leaders for conspiracy, is of the most obvious crucial importance. Yet, now in its seventeenth week, it is nearly impossible to follow daily. Newsweek profiles Judge Medina and handily summarizes the case.

Time-honored Communist tactics applied by their lawyers in the courtroom have been to stall, distract, clown and generally irritate the judge to a point where it is hoped he will blow up, thus invalidating the case of the prosecution. Despite the most incredible provocations, the judge has declined to cooperate.

"Harold R. Medina has come by his patience and his legal knowledge the hard way," summarizes Newsweek, "by arguing thousands of cases and by teaching thousands of students." A graduate of Princeton and Columbia Law School, Medina, by the time he was 50, had built up "one of the best practices in New York State and the reputation of being a 'lawyer's lawyer'." He was appointed over political opposition on the recommendation of the New York and American Bar Associations. His interest in knotty legal problems is being tested to the limit by this trial.

HOLIDAY headlines stories by Richard L. Neuberger on the Columbia River Country and by Jonathan Daniels on the University of North Carolina. Both are excellent pieces by authorities in the fields. But one of the most appealing and timely articles is by Carl L. Biemiller, "Slugger From Louisville." Biemiller pulls all the stops in describing this "hardwood Valentine of the American male," the baseball bat made by Hillerich & Bradsby.

Founded more than 65 years ago, the firm early started to turn out custom-made bats for the era's great players, relates the author, and although the company distributes now through nearly 1000 dealers, it still deals directly with organized baseball. "There are more than 50,000 individual cards on file describing preferred player models in the Hillerich & Bradsby archives at present."

Ty Cobb used the same slugger model for 24 years, reducing its weight slightly near the end of his playing days. "Most players," however, "spend a harassed career seeking the 'right' bat. Hank Greenberg . . . once used 10 different models during a two-week hitting slump."

In the same issue James Thurber advises "What Every Traveler Should Know"—with his own illustrations.

ECONOMICS Writer Sylvia Porter tells "How to Borrow Money" in Good Housekeeping. Borrowing is often necessary and desirable, Miss Porter says, but countless people "are paying far too much for money because they don't know how or where to borrow." They give the matter less consideration than picking out the living room couch.

Before you borrow you must "know how much you need and why you need it; you know how you'd like to pay off your loan and what monthly repayment burden you can assume, if any; you've counted your assets, decided whether you have anything to put up as security." Only now are you even ready to shop for a loan. Miss Porter outlines the many sources available.

ALTHOUGH the black market in baby adoptions has been curtailed, there is still a "gray market" in babies, asserts Edith M. Stern in the Woman's Home Companion. The gray market is described by Miss Stern as well-meaning but bungling amateurs who take no money for their services and only mean to be helpful to everyone concerned. Physicians and ministers, too, sometimes fall unwittingly into this category. Well-intentioned as they may be, shows Miss Stern, adoption is a serious business best handled by trained agencies.

The nursing shortage is blamed largely on wretched conditions in a majority of the country's nursing schools, by Clarence Woodbury in the same magazine. Although this country possesses some of the world's finest schools, most of them are relics of the horse and buggy era, he charges. Naturally they fail to attract ambitious, able girls.

DANIEL LANG, in the New Yorker's Reporter at Large, reviews the case of William Remington, the Commerce Department economist who was accused by Elizabeth Bentley of being a Communist and giving her war production data and who was later cleared by the Loyalty Review Board and reinstated in the department. In great detail, Lang relates the emotions and events of the seven months during which Remington was suspected of being "what amounted to a traitor."

Nothing is ever heard about most loyalty cases, Lang explains, because they are tried privately. Remington's case was front page news because the charges were made by Miss Bentley at an open senatorial hearing. She never appeared before the board to testify, though given every opportunity to do so.

Suspended by the Commerce Department pending establishment of his loyalty status, Remington shunned company, ate only two meals a day to conserve his funds, did odd jobs and worked 18 hours a day to clear himself. Lang's is a distinguished reporting job.

is now starting through the regimen. They volunteer for six-month asignments.

In some of the experiments the "subjects" keep a detailed log of what they do 24 hours a day. Their charts show when they were sleeping, lounging, reading, playing ball or cards, reading, writing; how many beers or drinks they had on liberty; whether they ate a large or small meal; how many cups of coffee or tea they had.

Each man carries a thermometer and takes his temperature every two hours. Other special tests determine their alertness.

Ages of the present group range from 17-year-old Daniel M. Mero of Brooklyn to 25-year-old James H. Waddey of Kingsville, Md., a veteran of the Pacific war. Several others also saw combat action.

Why did they volunteer to be "guinea pigs?" The invariable answer is, "It sounded like something new." Do they like the work? Definitely. It's "good duty"—the sailorman's answer when he's happy.

Dr. Eyer, a youngish flight surgeon, entered the Navy in 1940 after graduation from Northwestern University Medical School and interneship in Chicago. He served with the First Marines at Guadalcanal. A native of Delaware, he lives at 8507 Park Hill dr., Bethesda.

"We hope to determine not only the deleterious effects of various drugs and agents," he says, "but also ways to improve the performance of men who are suffering from fatigue or the effects of noise, noxious gases and other conditions. One other possibility which might be pursued in later tests is to learn something about the effects of lack of oxygen at high altitudes and perhaps find some drug or other means to counteract it."

Realism in Fiction

Brilliant Glimpses of the Orient

A CORNER OF THE WORLD. By Robert Shaplen. Knopf. 246 pp. $2.75.

THE dreamy, lyrical Lafcadio Hearn approach to the Orient is rapidly disappearing in literature. The most recent Marco Polos, such as cynical, impressionistic, gifted Robert Shaplen, return to tell us bitter stories of political corruption and class struggle in Asia.

ROBERT SHAPLEN

No imperialist, former Foreign Correspondent Shaplen dislikes the scheming bearers of "the white man's burden" and writes sympathetically of hungry natives and members of the resistance movements in India, China and French Indo-China. His theme seems to be that we helped bring chaos to the Far East by our own greedy policies.

His white heroes in these five short stories have for the most part social consciences, often blunted, however, by alcohol, riotous living, lack of strong conviction and apathy. He seems to distrust most Westerners, but is not equally discerning in his naive sympathy for Communists. He decries the moral laxity and disregard for the individual which permeates the Orient.

Although these five stories are fiction—sensual and perceptive—the events he reports seem almost too real to be products of the imagination. Shaplen's first-hand knowledge of the Far East bolsters every page with precise, believable detail.

A Climactic Flight

"YOUNG Man with a Future" tells the story of a former GI who joins a mining firm in Shanghai, meets a Chinese Communist leader and is finally forced to flee with his White Russian girl friend. This is one of the three stories with a fairly definite conclusion and a somewhat profound change in character, though neither theme nor plot is completely resolved.

"A Wind Rising" tells of a sensitive foreign correspondent in India during the Hindu-Moslem fighting. He is shown in sharp contrast to the callous Britishers. His death at the end of the story is effective but not entirely understandable. This story is particularly well written, especially in the first five or six pages.

"The Love-Making of Max Robert" is, ironically enough, one of the least erotic tales in the volume and seems rather pointless. The lazy, hard-drinking French foreign correspondent in the story is disturbed by the political murders perpetrated by the French, and the generally reactionary attitude of all the whites. But his visits with small-time resistance leaders seem to accomplish little except to make him suspect with the local authorities. This one belongs to the "So What?" school of fiction.

An Accessory Family

THE fourth narrative, like the third, has an inconclusive denouement, but is a more powerful story. "The Colonel on the Ground Floor" deals with the commercial ventures, drinking and wenching of a completely unprincipled United States Army Colonel tryin gto get rich overnight in postwar Manila. Why he brings his wife and children to the Philippines the reader cannot guess, since his major amatory interest is in a Red Cross girl named Jackie.

Perhaps the most complete story in the book is the last one, "A Corner of the World," from which the volume takes its title. A young American lieutenant and a German-Jewish refugee physician rescue a bludgeoned strike leader lying in the gutter in the Portuguese town of Macao, with fatal results to the doctor. The lieutenant returns to Hong Kong a completely changed man.

This is the least impressionist story in the collection and the central characters have the fewest internal conflicts, being obviously "good" people. But it points up brilliantly and bitterly the fantastic corruption of the Portuguese colonial rule.

This is a very superior volume of short stories which should give the reader a far clearer conception of what the shooting is all about in the impoverished and exploited Orient. Shaplen's plot construction often leaves something to be desired. But at his best he can write like an avenging angel.—STERLING NORTH.

Politics Was 'Comic' in a Prison Camp

BY EASTERN WINDOWS, by William H. McDougall, jr. Scribner. 343 pp. $3.

WHILE Allied soldiers, sailors and marines were fighting for their lives and their countries in the Pacific, internees at Japanese prison camps were engaged in a battle of souls and minds.

The latter battle is the one McDougall tells about. A United Press corespondent in Shanghai until the Japanese occupation, he was interned in Sumatra prison camps from April, 1942, to September 19, 1945.

An unusual and pathetically comic phase of the story deals with the prisoners' self government, including continuous and bitter political battles between the two principal factions: the Direct Action Party, whose platform called for outright demands to the prison authorities for better treatment, and the Passivists, who reasoned that the Japs would only cut down on their food and living space if antagonized.

Another section is "How Men Die." Death was caused in the Sumatra camps almost exclusively by malaria (there was no quinine) and beri beri (usually an aftermath of dysentery). But the ways in which the internees actually pased from life to death were as many as there were graves in the prison yard. The author's description of these deaths attains the highest standard of journalism.

McDougall's gift for detail gives his diary a lasting quality. The author, whose first book, "Six Bells Off Java," told of his escape from Shanghai just before capture, now works for the Washington bureau of the United Press.—NORMA LANUM.

'Niteries' Corner Sackcloth Supply

THOMAS MERTON, the young Trappist monk whose "The Seven Storey Mountain" is a sensational best seller, is also the author of another popular book, "Seeds of Contemplation" (New Directions). Merton wanted the binding of "Seeds" to be sackcloth, now used largely for the non-monastic purpose of lining the walls of nightclubs.

Apparently the decoration of nightclubs in sackcloth is progressing at such a lively pace that it has drained the market of the rough fabric.

An Ugly, Exasperating Book

Wylie Waves a Flag at Comstock

By Sterling North

OPUS 21: Descriptive Music for the Lower Kinsey Epoch of the Atomic Age; A Concerto for a One-Man Band; Six Arias for Soap Operas; Fugues, Anthems and Barrelhouse; A Novel. By Philip Wylie. Rinehart. 375 pp. $3.

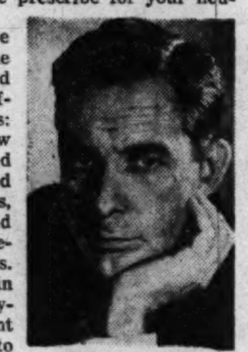
IF YOU would let an amateur pharmacist mix your drugs or an amateur surgeon operate on your brain, you will be equally eager to let amateur psychoanalyst Wylie prescribe for your neuroses.



PHILIP WYLIE

In what purports to be a novel, with Philip Wylie both chief protagonist and author, Old Doc Wylie effects the following cures:

1. He convinces a new acquaintance named Yvonne, whose Hollywood husband is ambisextrous, that what a wife should do in that case is to develop similar tendencies. Her first experiment in this direction (says Wylie) makes her a tolerant and loving wife ready to return to her now fully-appreciated husband.

2. With the help of a Jewish lawyer, who is one of the few likable characters in the book, he saves a young atomic physicist named Paul from suicide over a girl whose profession is the oldest. Presumably Paul will live on to crack additional atoms in the cause of the democracy Wylie so completely undervalues.

In what is consistently the most ugly, exasperating, disjointed, egotistical, infantile, self-revealing, depraved, outspoken, misguided, half-baked and stimulating book in many months, Wylie makes literally hundreds of statements such as the following:

Jung explained to the Freudians. Wylie explained to the Jungians.

My government, as a security measure, has cut off my inquiry into God, my power to extend my own religion, my equivalent of your faith, my access to truth.

I never met a man I did like altogether, including me.

There is almost nothing which I am not slightly versed in and pretty poor at.

The inner natures of all men and women partake of the natures of the opposite sex.

In an attempt to simultaneously shock, stimulate, entertain and infuriate his readers, Wylie manages in the course of one short, badly written novel to insult all Catholics, all Protestants, all mothers, most married women, females as a sex, intellectuals as a group, philosophers as a class, capitalists, Communists, all psychoanalysts except Jungians, the army, the navy and (rarely) even himself.

As one of the characters in the book so brilliantly puts it, "I am beginning to get very tired of you, Mr. Wylie."

Hates the Human Race

WHAT is principally wrong with this book and with Wylie in general is that he hates and fears 90 per cent of the human race. Having swallowed whole the Jung-Wylie instinct theory (which has much in common with the Nazi "philosophy"), Wylie naturally distrusts himself and everybody else.

Lacking balance, dignity, or any real grasp of psychoanalysis, but having picked up a few tags and cliches from this and every other branch of knowledge, light-fictioneer Wylie attempts to be profound and instead is painfully banal.

Although he violently denies it throughout the book, Wylie (or his semifictional counterpart, at least) is a perfect case of infantilism, as shown by his desire to skywrite four-letter words, glorify prostitutes, attack every tradition of civilization (whether good, bad or indifferent).

The jacket calls the author humble. If this advanced case of megalomania is humble, Napoleon and Hitler were as shy and retiring as St. Francis.

While most of us try with some sense of responsibility to achieve enough self-discipline in our writing to discourage the new wave of book censorship, Wylie waves a flaming flag before the eyes of the Comstocks, virtually inviting a new rash of bigotry.

There should be some sort of un-Nobel Prize for the worst book of the year, and it should be given in 1949 to Philip Wylie.

In a Nutshell

YESTERDAY WAS MINE. By Princess Anne-Marie Callimanchi. (Whittlesey. $3.50.)

LIFE was wonderful in pre-World War I Europe, providing you could afford it—and the author could. With charm and insight, she tells of her life and loves from the Gay Nineties to 1914. Brought up in feudal Romania, an heiress to a great fortune, she plunged into international society at an early age. Her descriptions are of a world gone forever, when the uninhibited goings-on of the aristocracy finally fostered communism. The book gathers interest as it goes along, and is climaxed by Anne-Marie's plunge into the international marriage mart.

PRINCESS ANNE-MARIE
. . . Author of "Yesterday Was Mine"

LOVERS AREN'T COMPANY. By Monica Stirling. (Atlantic-Little, Brown. $2.50.)

BEAUTIFUL Francesca Milroy, an Italian-American employed by the American Army in the occupation of Italy, is content to look after her dead sister's emotional teen-age child, Vittoria, until the Frenchman, Jean-Claude, comes into the picture. Falling slowly, but deeply, in love with the intelligent and kind French officer, Francesca loses her emotional sway over Vittoria, who turns to Rome's postwar underworld for a substitute—and finds one. The author is a young Englishwoman who served during the war as the Atlantic Monthly's European correspondent. Her novel has its bright and dull chapters and is only at its best when Francesca and Jean-Claude are the central characters.

THE JOURNEY OF SIMON McKEEVER. By Albert Maltz. Little, Brown. $2.75.

AN OLD man suffering from arthritis, McKeever is told one day that far-away in California there is a woman doctor who can cure him. He steals away from the "home" where he is living on a small pension, and starts on his long hitch-hike. The rest is sentimental stuff, built of unreal characters and stilted dialog. The movies probably will go for it.

A HOUSE IN THE CEVENNES. By Jeanne Saleil. Macmillan. $2.75.

"YOU start with one thing in mind," says this author, "and you get waylaid by another." Her book is a perfect demonstration of it. One story trips over a second and a third until, by the time you finish these delightful memories of a French childhood, you have met haphazardly the mayor, the priest, the doctor, the constable, the baker's family, the handyman, the ironing woman, the washerwoman and the Saleil family itself: Father, mother and daughters. They come alive in Miss Saleil's quick, informal sketches, despite an occasional French phrase that may baffle some readers.

GOD'S THUMB DOWN. By Oscar DeLiso. Scribner. $3.

MISFORTUNE, poverty, disease, criminality and brutality fill this novel to overflowing. Its characters are the hapless inhabitants of a town in southern Italy, where every brand of human wretchedness is intensified by the threat of a landslide that will pitch the village into the river. Every voice is accented with futility and despair, and incident crowds frenziedly on incident. If there is a touch of madness in the novelist's manner, it only matches the madness in the menaced town. This is an unusually graphic novel about collapse and decay.

SLIPPERY HITCH. By Gerald Butler. Rinehart. $2.50.

THIS IS more "Kiss The Blood Off My Hands" business, with a woman knocked down on the first page, tumbled into the drink later and eventually menaced with the fate worse than death. It's a novel of loving brother beating up loving brother, and a friend who admires one or both of them for it. Butler doesn't pretend that his incidents are plausible. He depends on rapid-fire action to make you read this novel of postwar London.

TEARS AND LAUGHTER. By Kahlil Gibran. Philosophical. $2.75.

THE Oriental poet is not meant to be an explorer of ideas; his themes are largely traditional, a rehash of certain sentiments and subjects. In this light, Kahlil Gibran's poetry is interesting, but as poetry it is bumpy and unpleasing musically. However, his freshness of simile, and the simplicity and tenderness of such poems as "Song of the Rain" and "Song of the Wave," are appealing.

GEORGE FARQUHAR, edited by William Archer. Wyn. 456 pp. $3.

SIR JOHN VANBRUGH, edited by A. E. H. Swain. Wyn. 501 pp. $3.

THE MOST recent reprints in the famous Mermaid Series of seventeenth century dramatists are the plays of the short-lived George Farquhar (1678-1707)) and Sir John Vanbrugh (1664-1726), an able architect as well as dramatist. Writing at the end of the Restoration, their comedies were popular in their time and are still entertaining. For the picture of the period that they afford, they still leave most historical novelists trailing.

Reynolds Has Faith in the Little People

LEAVE IT TO THE PEOPLE. By Quentin Reynolds. Random. 341 pp. $3.50.

QUENTIN REYNOLDS reports on a trip to Israel, Italy, Greece, France, Holland, Germany and Norway to "meet the people." He concluded the trip in January. That was the month when we looked back on 1948 with a "glad it's gone" feeling and looked forward into 1949 with pessimistic foreboding.

But Reynolds gathered something from the little people in the countries he visited. He writes optimistically of the future because he feels people will make democracy work, despite the war ravages in Europe and the uphill fight in Israel.

His confidence in the spirit of the people at a time when confidence was selling below par seems borne out today by the happenings in Germany and elsewhere.

Full of interesting personalities and anecdotes, this report by a correspondent is rather difficult to take in one dose, because for Reynolds criticism is rare.

Reynolds devotes considerable detail to the story of Israel and its people. Everywhere, he reports, democracy is a vital and growing force.—A. M.

Man Devises Narcotic in Every Land

By Alton L. Blakeslee

FLIGHT FROM REALITY. By Norman Taylor. Duel, Sloan and Pearce. $3.50.

EACH smoke, cocktail, or drink of coffee, tea or cocoa is a little "flight from reality," says Norman Taylor. Marihuana and opium are powerful, dangerous wings for the same kind of flight from boredom.

In every land, there's some plant that man employs as a stimulant or narcotic, says Taylor, who is director of the Cinchona Products Institute and a former staff member of the New York Botanical Gardens and curator at the Brooklyn Botanic Gardens.

Hemp supplies some of the oldest narcotics. It has been known for 5000 years, and used by the Greeks, Persians, Arabs, Hindus and Chinese. From it come marihuana and hashish. The potent drug is a resin in the female flowers of hemp.

Marihuana, also known as bhang, is a smoking mixture from the cut tops of uncultivated female plants, Taylor explains. A higher grade smoke is called ganja, and is made from a specially cultivated grade of hemp. Charas or hashish is the pure, unadulterated resin from the tops of the finest plants. It is most dangerous.

900 Million 'Exposed'

Opium comes only from the air-dried, coagulated milky juice of the unripe pod of one kind of poppy.

Today, Taylor says, "well over 900 million people are apt to use either opium or hemp products." Opium is worse than marihuana, and morphine and heroin, derived from opium, are even more dangerous than opium itself. They are taken by injection.

In Mexico, one narcotic is ololiuqui, a drink prepared from the bitter seeds of a vine that looks somewhat like the morning glory. It produces hallucinations and finally a kind of hypnotic sleep. Peyotl, one form of cactus, has similar effects.

America was the first home of tobacco. And judging by the incomparable collection of tobacco pipes that archeologists have excavated, the habit stretched back hundreds, perhaps a thousand years before the first Spaniard put foot on the New World.

The use of alcohol dates far back, over many parts of the world. There is record, Taylor says, of a brewery believed to have been operating in Egypt in 3700 B. C.

Pepped Up Inca

COCA leaves, the source of cocaine, are chewed today by more than 15 million persons. The habit was started by the Incas. It has a tremendous effect in overcoming fatigue. The Spaniards gave it to their Inca slaves sweating in the fabulous gold mines of Potosi.

In Australia there is pituri, a desert shrub. It contains some dangerous narcotic alkaloids, including the drug scopolamine. Australian natives chewed the leaves, mixed with alkali, to kill fatigue and hunger pangs. Its use is dwindling, Taylor adds.

In Tahiti, Samoa, Fiji, Guam and other islands of Oceania, natives drink kava, a tea-like brew made from the vines of certain shrubs. It has a narcotic effect, and is also a crude alcohol. In small doses it is harmless, bringing elation, Taylor writes.

Safer, and more widely used by far, are coffee, chocolate and tea. All are harmless in sensible amounts, but "when taken in sufficient quantity, they can even be tagged as causes of addiction."

400th Anniversary Volume

D. C. Prelates Write Prayer Book History

By Martha J. Hall

THE AMERICAN BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER, ITS ORIGIN AND DEVELOPMENT. By the Very Rev. John Wallace Suter and the Rev. George Julius Cleaveland. Oxford University Press. 85 pp. $1.50.

ON Whitsunday, June 5, this year, members of the Anglican communion throughout the world will observe the 400th anniversary of the Book of Common Prayer.

In connection with the observance, the Very Rev. John Wallace Suter, dean of the Washington Cathedral and custodian of the Standard Book of Common Prayer, and the Rev. George J. Cleaveland, canon librarian of the Washington Cathedral, have written a history of the origin and development of the American Book of Common Prayer.

The book, which is annotated and contains a bibliography of source material, is illustrated with black and white prints of historic copies of the Book of Common Prayer now in the library of the Washington Cathedral. The frontispiece is a color print of a Prayer Book window to be dedicated at the cathedral on June 5.

First Used in 1549

WHEN the Church of England broke away from the Church of Rome in the stormy reign of Henry VIII, the first steps were taken toward preparation of a book of worship in English. Under Edward VI, on Whitsunday, 1549, the first Book of Common Prayer was ordered put into use by the Parliamentary Act of Uniformity.

The volume was revised in 1552, 1559, 1604, and 1662. This last version is used in the Church of England today as the standard book of worship.

Priests of the Church of England traveled with the English sea dogs and brought the Book of Common Prayer to the New World. Virginia Dare, the first white child born in America, was baptized in 1587 at Roanoke Island, N. C., according to the sacraments in the 1559 edition of the book.

Protest From England

AFTER the Revolution, the American branch of the church became the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America, and in 1785 a proposed revision was adopted by the general convention of the church.

The first American version met with a stern protest from the English bishops, and in 1789 the American convention began work on a new editon of the Book of Common Prayer. Adopted that same year, the book was a revised version of the 1662 English volume enriched with parts of the first proposed American book and the Scottish and Irish Books of Common Prayer.

This was followed by other revisions, the most recent of which was made in 1928 after 15 years of study by church officials.

Dean Suter and Canon Cleaveland sum up the development of this standard worship book of their church with these words: "There is a richness in the Book of Common Prayer—a richness which has been made possible because the Book has grown during 400 years out of the experiences and the needs of the many as well as the spiritual insights of the few."

A Mind Plays Across Time

SKETCH FOR A SELF-PORTRAIT. By Bernard Berenson. Pantheon. 185 pp. Ill. $3.

BERNARD BERENSON was born in Lithuania, and came to the United States when he was 10. After attending Harvard in the days of the Jameses and when Walter Pater was becoming an influence, he went abroad to study and eventually to settle down in a Florentine villa and become a world-famous expert on Italian art.

Berenson, who is now 84, in his "Sketch for a Self Portrait" muses on the past. He reflects on possible mistakes he might have made in the conduct of his own life, on human relations and civilization. Though he has known many famous persons, he mentions them only when to do so is pertinent to the matter he is discussing at the moment.

A gentle book, it is full of subtleties and shrewd observations—such as describing George Bernard Shaw as "court fool, clown-in-chief to the Anglo-Saxon middle classes of the mind."

In conclusion he says, "All I ask of these years left me is to keep my perception and judgment, to be supplied with creature comforts and to go on taking an interest in events, enjoying books, enjoying art and music, but above all enjoying nature and people." This civilized attitude seems to have characterized his life.

"Sketch for a Self-Portrait," where the mind plays across time and self like a breeze across an aeolian harp, can be enjoyed for more than the moment.—L. G.

Roosevelt Courts a Crossfire

An Unpopular View of the Arabs

By Richard L. Coe

ARABS, OIL AND HISTORY. By Kermit Roosevelt. Harper, 271 pp. $3.50.

CONSPICUOUSLY lacking among the many books published here in recent years about Palestine and the Middle East has been any giving the Arab view of what is, essentially, the heart of the Arab world.

At last, and unfortunately late, comes this volume by Teddy Roosevelt's grandson. Before the war a historian, during the war an Army intelligence officer in that area and more recently a private traveler, he has done the United States and the Middle East a fine service in his objective book.

To those Americans who have stayed longer in the Middle East than, say, Senator Brewster, who boasted that "two days is just right to make you a real expert," Roosevelt's respect for the Arab problem is heartening. This reviewer, in the past 11 years, spent four in the area, and knows only too well how educators, missionaries and other Americans have felt about the false impressions that have been spread by prejudiced or hasty observers.

A Proud People

ROOSEVELT gives the greatest credit to Zionist results in Palestine, but he makes the inescapable point that "neither documents, nor anything written upon them, can change what has been, not on paper but in people's minds and hearts."

The partition of Palestine all too clearly ignored the more than half the world's population which lives in the Orient. "All over the world," Arabs declare, "the United States has urged the right of the majority in a country to determine the future of that country in free elections. But to the inhabitants of Palestine we have denied that right," he says.

Roosevelt hopes that an enlightened view will pervade the future of Arab relations with the new country of Israel. But he also makes clear the Arabs' long history, their pride and their sense that they have been cynically wronged by the Western world. Their resentment at the Jewish Agency's expensive propaganda will take time to forget.

The result has been that our own position in the area "is deteriorating, both from the weakening of our natural friends and because the United States has pursued a wavering but generally pro-Zionist policy. We have been the most bitterly attacked of all Western powers."

Dangerous Vacuum

DIVIDING his theme into individual countries, Roosevelt also makes clear the truly unbelievable contrasts of wealth and poverty on every side. Here are lands, at the crossroads of the world and at the earth's greatest potential oil sources, tottering in the brink of a vacuum, and none is strong enough to fill that vacuum independently. One border country is Russia, a traditional aspirant to Middle East adventure.

"Arabs, Oil and History" was written by a man who knows whereof he speaks and has the courage to take what in this poorly informed country is an unpopular view. Like an unnamed diplomat whom he quotes, he probably realizes his book will make him unpopular with the Zionists (who have so much for which to thank the now reviled Britain) and the Arab nationalists (now striving to leap from the Middle Ages to the world of the Atom.)

The book's organization is logical, the style straightforward, aided by occasional flashes of dry humor. It is by all odds the best report about the Arab world I've read in some time.

Notes on the Margin

By Lee Grove

MERRIMAN SMITH, United Press White House correspondent, connoisseur of Chinese food and author of "Thank You, Mr. President" and "The President Is Many Men," is working on another book. He's a little reticent about it yet, but says it is "fictionalized nonfiction about contemporary Washington."

ALSO turning to fiction after two non-fiction books is Virgil Carrington Jones, who in addition to his magazine work has pretty well completed a home at Manassas. Jones, author of "Ranger Mosby" and "The Hatfields and McCoys," has completed research and is well into a story of the Reconstruction period. He has written some fiction before, but this will be his first novel.

* * * *

JOHN TULL BARKER, 71-year-old resident of the Wardman Park, is the author of "Missouri Lawyer." The book, published by Dorrance, comes 50 years after he was admitted to the Missouri bar. He has been at various times Speaker of the Missouri House of Representatives, State attorney general and special assistant to the Attorney General of the United States.

Burke Wilkinson, author of "Proceed at Will," has nearly completed his second novel, "Run, Mongoose." The story concerns a dusky twentieth century dictator with a "Christophe" mentality who makes a power play. The title is based on a Jamaican folksong, "Run, mongoose, run and catch the righteous chicken."

* * * *

IN "THE BIG SECRET" Merle Colby has a press conference scene where he uses the names of Doris Fleeson, Eddie Folliard and other newspaper people, and the publicity man handling the conference visualizes how the conference will be reported in various papers. Colby hits it off so true to life that I thought he must have been a newspaperman. He says not, however: "I was a string man and did feature stories, but I never worked for a city desk, so I have never considered myself a newspaperman."

An Exciting Story, However

Ecstatic Naturalist Gushes Adjectives

HIGH JUNGLE. By William Beebe. Duell, Sloan & Pearce. 379 pp. $4.50.

IN THE vast and dripping ruins of the unfinished palace of the late Gomez, bloody Venezuelan dictator, William Beebe of bathysphere fame has set up a glass-enclosed laboratory, financed in part by Standard Oil and Creole Petroleum funds. There, with the blessings of the Venezuelan government, he has been examining the fantastic flora and fauna of the high Andean jungle and emoting in polysyllabic superlatives for more than three years.

Among the practical results have been many papers for scientific journals, a collection of more than 70,000 specimens of rare and exotic moths and now a popular volume which fairly steams with enthusiasm.

Heavyweight Beetles

BEEBE found 6-inch beetles which actually weigh more than the tiny marsupials called mouse opossums which also inhabit the jungle. He studied the terrifying army ants which eat every plant or animal in the path of their aggressive advance. He watched "tourquoise tanagers, troupials, giant tropical finches and kiskadee tyrant flycatchers" through 20-power glasses so strong he could study a hummingbird half a mile away.

A tiny monkey was among his pets, a wicked little "Chico," who loved to mix diabolical cocktails of various chemicals, break chemical glassware and rip books. Chico's curiosity was only a trifle less insatiable than that of Beebe and his associates, who crawled and climbed through the jungle by day and often would stay up half the night catching moths.

The chapter on months is, without a doubt, the high spot in the book. It even outranks in excitement the sporting chapter on the fighting rhinoceros beetles.

Ranging from beautifully hued 10-inch specimens down to those so small they were nearly microscopic, these moths, against the electrically lighted walls on a foggy but moonlight night, furnished unbelievable jewel boxes of color and design.

BEEBE apologizes for the lush adjectives which sometimes run for half a paragraph at a time. But, he asks how else can he hope to convey the beauty and strangeness with which nature has endowed the high, cloud-swept jungles of the Andes where the most ancient forms of life in the Western Hemisphere are preserved in the living flesh?

A little more restraint on Beebe's part might have resulted in more enthusiasm on the reader's, however. His constant state of ecstasy is a trifle wearing.

But patience with his flowery adjectives is a small price to pay for sharing with this fine naturalist his exciting adventures among the strangest insects, reptiles, birds anad mammals on the planet.—S. N.

Norse Study Gives U. S. A. Good Mark

THE AMERICAN SPIRIT IN EUROPE, a Survey of Transatlantic Influences. By Halvdan Koht. University of Pennsylvania Press. 289 pp. $3.75.

KOHT, a leading Norwegian historian and the founder of American studies in Norway, surveys the effect of the United States on Europe from Colonial times to the present.

In political thought, in economic development, in literature, the United States has had a strong influence on Europe, he finds.

If it was Americans who introduced the principle of standardization, or interchangeability of parts, in manufacture, it was also American writers who reinforced European socialist thinking in the nineteenth century, and with such inventions as the sewing machine and electric lights eased and brightened life.

Speaking of the "Almighty Dollar," a phrase said to have been coined by Washington Irving, Dr. Koht points out that preoccupation with material gain and pride in achieving it were only natural in a new land being won from nature and where there was no artistocracy with a disdainful attitude toward the making of wealth. Even while European critics were damning American materialism, American idealism, in the person of Emerson and others, was "a clear and pure voice" heard abroad.

All in all, the United States comes off well in Dr. Koht's appraisal. Since, in addition to being a historian who has taught in American colleges, he has served as foreign minister of Norway, his opinion of the outcome of the tug of war between Soviet collectivism and American individualism is interesting.

He believes that "in the final issue both of the two ideas will come together . . . may unite into a social organization that preserves comprehensive cooperation as well as individual liberty."—L. G.

How Home Rule Would Work

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

THE SENATE now has on its calendar the District Home Rule bill introduced by Senator Kefauver (D., Tenn.) and eight other Senators of both parties.

The Washington Post herewith presents a pictorial analysis of the measure—a measure which would restore to citizens of the National Capital the right of local self-government.

The Constitution gives Congress "exclusive" legislative power over the District, but it is clear from the record that the Founding Fathers intended Washington citizens to run their own government and elect a city council to act in their behalf.

From 1802 to 1871 there were at varying times three locally elected city governments in the District: the city of Washington, the city of Georgetown (merged in 1871 with Washington) and the city of Alexandria (made independent when Congress returned to Virginia in 1846 that part of the original 10-mile square District south of the Potomac River).

Truman Favors It

TODAY'S form of local government—commissioners named by the President without local suffrage of any kind—began in 1874. This "temporary" arrangement was made permanent by Congress in 1878.

Now, President Truman has repeatedly said he favors home rule for the District of Columbia. The platforms of both the Democratic and Republican parties adopted in 1948 pledge home rule for the District. The Senate Republican Policy Committee this year went on record in favor of enactment by this Congress of home rule.

In two unofficial referendums in recent years (1938 and 1946) local citizens have turned out to register approval of home rule.

The Kefauver bill is the culmination of long legislative and staff work by members of both Senate and House and many others. It represents what is generally conceded to be the best opportunity in 75 years for Washington to rejoin the rest of the local communities in these United States in managing its own local affairs.

Courts Are Expected

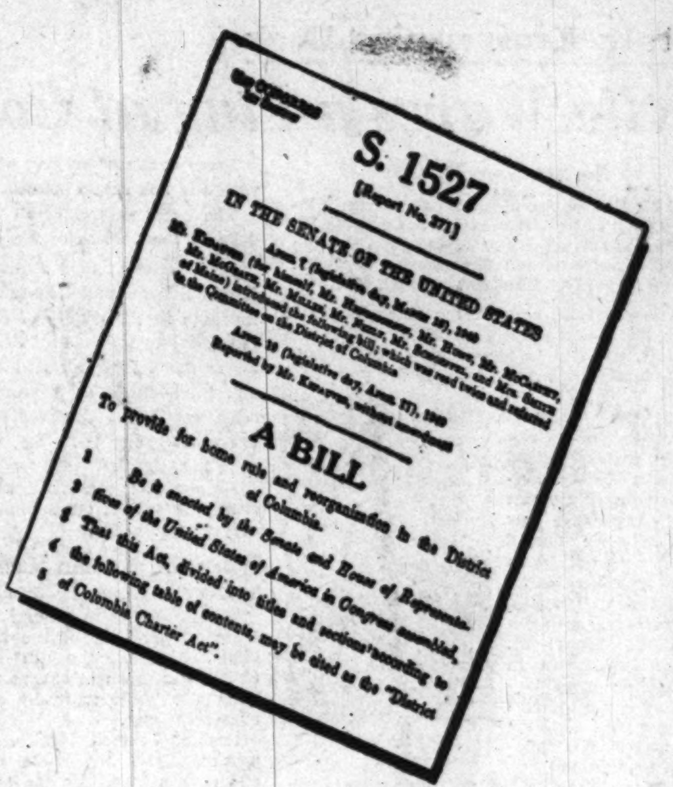
THE Kefauver bill will affect almost all local government in the District. The major exception is the courts—they will continue as at present.

To make certain that the people of Washington really want to return to home rule, the bill provides home rule will begin again ONLY if the people approve it in a public referendum on November 15, 1949.

If the referendum's answer is "yes," then the first elections for the new city officials will be held March 7, 1950. The new city council would take office on April 1, 1950.

But first the Kefauver bill must pass the Senate, then the House and then be signed by President Truman.

Below are presented, in simplified form, the three major concepts of the Home Rule bill: how the new local government would be elected and set up, how legislation would be passed and the role of Congress—still vitally important.



S. 1527
[Report No. 271]

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

A BILL

To provide for home rule and reorganization in the District of Columbia.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act, divided into titles and sections according to the following table of contents, may be cited as the "District of Columbia Charter Act".

1. The City Government

THE PRESIDENT
DISTRICT VOTERS
NATIONAL CAPITAL HOUSING AUTHORITY
DISTRICT BOARD OF ELECTIONS
NATIONAL CAPITAL PARK AND PLANNING COMMISSION DISTRICT COUNCIL
BOARD OF EDUCATION
DISTRICT SCHOOLS SUBSTANTIALLY AS RUN NOW
CITY MANAGER
REDEVELOPMENT LAND AGENCY
ZONING ADJUSTMENT BOARD
PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION
BOARD OF TAX APPEALS
DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH DEPARTMENT OF WELFARE
DEPARTMENT OF RECREATION DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY
DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE
DEPARTMENT OF LAW
DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS
DEPARTMENT OF LIBRARIES
DEPARTMENT OF LABOR DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE
DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTIONS
DEPARTMENT OF PROFESSIONAL & OCCUPATIONAL STANDARDS
REID

A. To vote for Council and Board of Education you must have lived here one year, be a United States citizen, at least 21, not convicted of a felony and not mentally incompetent. You may vote here even if you have a residence in a State and vote there. Thus all Federal employes can take part in local government.

B. To run for Council or Board of Education you must not only be a registered voter in the District but must maintain your permanent residence here. Thus Government employes voting elsewhere could not hold office here. Members of Congress also cannot run for local office. Nomination is by petition plus a fee ($25 or $30). Elections are nonpartisan with no party or other emblems on ballots or voting machines.

C. City Council has 11 members, 9 elected at large and 2 named by the President subject to Senate confirmation. Councilmen meet once a week, are paid $5000 a year except the chairman (Washington's new "mayor") who gets $7500 plus $3000 for expenses.

D. Board of Education has seven members elected at large. It names the Superintendent of Schools and runs the schools substantially as at present. Board members are paid $20 for each meeting.

E. New executive head of the city government is the City Manager appointed by the Council. He may be removed at any time and his salary is set by Council. He is professionally trained in city administration after the fashion of city managers in 876 other American communities.

F. The present sprawling city government (125 various units have a hand in it today) is reorganized and streamlined into 12 executive departments, shown at left. Each department head is named by the City Manager.

G. Still kept independent are four District agencies shown at far left—Redevelopment Land Agency, Zoning Adjustment Board, Public Utilities Commission and Board of Tax Appeals. All members are named by the Council, for the most part. Also independent are the Park and Planning Commission, the new Board of Elections (to run local voting) and National Capital Housing Authority—all with members named by the President, for the most part.

2. The Path of Legislation

ORDNANCES COMMISSIONERS NOW PASS
BILLS NOW PASSED BY CONGRESS
BOND ISSUES FOR NEW PUBLIC WORKS COUNCIL CONGRESS
NO ACTION IN 45 DAYS
PRESIDENT
VOTERS
LAW

A. To pass any law, this is the procedure. It first is introduced in City Council.

B. It then must pass the Council by majority vote. Council can vote taxes by "legislative proposal."

C. There are three kinds of bills, each requiring different procedure after Council approval.

D. Local ordinances become law at once but "legislative proposals" are sent to Congress.

E. Congress can veto a bill by resolution of both houses within 45 days—killing Council's action.

F. But if Congress does nothing, bill goes to President. He also may veto it, within 10 days.

G. If President does nothing, any "legislative proposal" but a bond issue then becomes law.

H. But bond issues must be submitted to referendum. Voters may so "no" and kill plan.

I. But the value of all city bond issues cannot exceed 5% of District's real estate assessment.

3. The Role of Congress

APPROPRIATION COMMITTEES DISTRICT COMMITTEES
CONGRESS
FEDERAL $ CONTRIBUTION 20% $ $
ANY law ANY time ANY subject

WASHINGTON, despite all the Home Rule provisions in the Kefauver bill, is different from other cities because it is the Nation's Capital.

For this reason, the Kefauver bill retains for Congress—as it must under the Constitution—"the right, at any time" to pass any bill on any subject affecting the District of Columbia. This includes, of course, any amendments to or abolition of the Home Rule bill itself.

Growing out of this same unique situation is the obligation of the Federal Government to contribute to the upkeep and running of the District in which it now owns 42 per cent of the 64 square miles.

Over the years, the Congress has appropriated varying percentages of the annual District budget, in recognition of the unique character of the city. These Federal contributions have varied from as much as 56 per cent to as little as 11 per cent. For the present fiscal year, Congress has given the District the flat sum of 12 million dollars—about 12 per cent of the District's budget.

Sets a Formula

THE Kefauver bill sets up a formula to govern future Federal contributions—an amount equal to 20 per cent of the previous year's income of the District (not counting money from the United States). Applied this year, that formula would have amounted to something over 18 million dollars instead of the 12 million dollars Congress voted the District

But no Congress may bind any future Congress to any set formula or amount of appropriation. The money must be voted by each Congress. The amount of Federal contribution will continue to depend on the Appropriation Committees of House and Senate and on the Congresses to come.

The 20 per cent formula is the most this Congress can do in establishing a continuing Federal-District financial arrangement It would be, at best, something of a moral obligation and recognition by Congress of the important Federal interest in the District and the cost of running it.

This Locke-out by PGA Isn't American Way

With Shirley Povich

THE HOTTEST article in the golf trade at this time is a well-stacked, 180-pound South African known in full triplicate as Arthur D'Arcy Locke—otherwise as Bobby Locke.

POVICH

He's 31 years old, looks 40, plays in plus fours, tips his cap when the gallery applauds one of his good shots, may be the best golfer in the world, and is non grata with the United States Pro Golf Association.

He won't tee off in the PGA tournament at Richmond, Va., this week, because—

A wilful group of little men, eight of them, have already liquidated the British Empire's threat of winning that important American title.

They are the eight PGA committeemen who outvoted three of their colleagues and decreed a lock-out of the par-busting Locke.

They didn't reject his entry—they simply refused to invite him, for the second year in a row, in an action that smacks of 200 per cent Americanism, with overtones of locker-room jealousy and internal PGA politics.

Locke has been getting the fish-eye from top American pros ever since he began his conquest of United States tournament prize money in 1947. As they view it, it is bread out of their mouths. In 1947-48, he took more than 65,000 Yankee dollars in purse money and exhibitions out of what had been the private preserves of the better United States pros.

Originally he was viewed as just another golfer out of the British Commonwealth and no great threat to their own revenues. Before Locke, they had the amusing example of Dick Burton, who came to the United States as the British Open champion of 1945, and was slapped down by Byron Nelson something like ten up and eight, in a special match in New York.

But Locke, they learned, was no cheese champ. He won four of the first six tournaments he played in this country. Obviously, they didn't like it. But in 1947 he was invited, as a foreign visitor and member of the British PGA, to play in the American PGA tournament at Plum Hollow, Detroit.

When he returned to this country in 1948, the anti-Locke factions among the pros were in full cry against him. He got no invitation to play in the PGA. Through thin locker-room partitions, he couldn't miss the snide cracks about "furriners," and "British jerks."

But the North Carolina section of the PGA made him an honorary member, and President Dugan Aycock made an appeal to the national body to reverse itself on the decision against Locke.

"I don't like their reasons for barring him," said Aycock. "They're too flimsy. The PGA by-laws permit us to invite distinguished foreign pros. They set a precedent by inviting Locke in 1947."

Tournament Director George Schneiter of the PGA, has declared, however, that "Apparently PGA officials now feel that Locke no longer belongs in the visitor category, because he comes to America for six months every year."

---

IN ITS APPEAL to the PGA, however, the Carolina group cited the statement of J. J. L'Heureux, chief of the United States State Department's passport division, who pointed out that Locke was in the country on a visitor's visa, not as an immigrant.

BOBBY LOCKE

Schneiter, long reported to be feuding with Locke and influenced by the leading American pros, denies that he is anti-Locke. "It is my belief that Locke should be invited as a distinguished guest from overseas," he said, "I am a progressive but the conservative element of the PGA executive committee voted not to

A's Wipe Out 7-0 Lead To Rout Detroit, 15-7

Philadelphia, May 21 (AP).—Shortstop Eddie Joost smashed out four hits to drive in six runs and right-hander Carl Scheib allowed one safety in six innings of relief to lead the Philadelphia Athletics to a 15-7 triumph today over the Detroit Tigers.

By winning, the A's vaulted past Detroit into second place in the American League pennant race.

It was Philadelphia's sixth triumph in the last seven games and the second straight win over the Tigers.

One of Joost's four hits was a sixth inning homer with the bags empty.

The lone hit off Scheib—a single by Paul Campbell—came in the eighth inning.

Phil Marchildon started for the A's and before he left in the fourth inning with nobody out the Tigers had piled up a 7-0 lead. Scheib stopped Detroit cold. It was his second win against no defeats.

Actually two ailing hurlers saw action in the game—Marchildon and the Tigers' Art Houtteman, who suffered his first loss against no wins. Marchildon's hadn't pitched in a month.

When Houtteman entered the game in the fourth the A's already had scored three times. Two men were out and two were on base. Wally Moses slashed the first Houtteman pitch for a single, loading the bags and then Ferris Fain singled home the fourth run. Houtteman, who had been out since he was injured in an auto accident, left in the fifth.

Bosox Take Indians, 4-0, And 6th Place

Boston, May 21 (AP).—Joe Dobson pitched a classy shutout today as the Red Sox climbed over the Cleveland Indians into sixth place by beating the World Champions 4-0 before the largest seated crowd since Tom Yawkey took over ownership of the Boston American League club.

A paid audience of 35,961 fans braved a chilling east wind and gleefully watched Vern Stephens belt a two-run homer while Dobson pitched his second complete game of the year and his second shutout in consecutive games.

Only twice was Dobson in any danger of losing his shutout. The Indians, who clubbed the Sox here 8-3 in the American League's historic pennant playoff last fall, were able to get only one man to third base.

That was in the sixth when Lou Boudreau doubled, moving Dale Mitchell to third. Mitchell was on second after forcing Mickey Vernon, who had singled to center field under the glove of the hustling Bob Doerr.

That forceout was the first out of the inning. Dobson struck out Larry Doby and got Al Rosen on a grounder to Johnny Pesky.

In This Corner . . .

CARTER BARRON and Allan Zee yesterday began lending a hand on the Arthur Godfrey show at the Armory the night of June 4.

Nothing really big in show business happens around town without the magic touch of Carter, the guy who make celebrities celebrated.

Zee, producer at the Capitol Theater in New York, teamed with Carter in producing the Presidential Gala and the Cherry Blossom Festival, both staged at the Armory with honors.

Larry Puck, Godfrey's right-hand man, came down from New York with Zee to see that things were in order.

"We've been trying to decide what the format should be for Arthur's appearance," Larry said. "We've just about decided that it should be "old shoe."

"That's the way Arthur is naturally. Strictly informal, I think that's how he will want to do it here. He'll have a wonderful cast to work with, 30 or more of the best performers in the East.

"We're going to fly down in one of those 50-passenger planes. Arthur called up his old friend, Eddie Rickenbacker and made arrangements for the flight."

Attorney General Tom Clark again will hit the first ball off the No. 1 tee at the Army-Navy Country Club to open the National Celebrities tournament.

The second man up will be a fellow named Arthur Godfrey.

MISS FRIEDA B. HENNOCK will be the first woman of Washington's official family to play in the tournament. She is a Federal Communications Commissioner.

BROWNS GET MAD—The St. Louis Browns got their dander up in the seventh inning of yesterday's game with the Nats at Griffith Stadium while Pitcher Mickey Haefner was at bat. As Al Evans of the Nats stole second, the Browns claimed that Haefner interferred with Catcher Sherman Lollar, but Umpire Red Jones (surrounded by Browns) didn't see it that way. In the picture besides Jones are Lollar, Shortstop Eddie Pellagrini (4), Manager Zack Taylor, Second Baseman Gerry Priddy and First Baseman Jack Graham. The Nats won the game with two runs in the ninth inning, 7-6

Braves' Spree Tops Bucs, 8-2

Pittsburgh, May 21 (AP).—An eighth-inning explosion that netted seven runs enabled the Boston Braves to rout the Pittsburgh Pirates, 8 to 2, today and take the rubber game of their three-game series.

The Pirates were leading 2-0 by virtue of home runs by Eddie Stevens and Eddie Bockman when Billy Southworth's contingent drove Murray Dickson from the mound and continued their attack against Hugh Casey who relieved him.

Dickson lost his sixth game against a lone win, while Warren Spahn notched his fifth victory against two defeats for the Braves. Pete Reiser homered for Boston in the eighth.

Lacy Ends Great 'Court' Career

Baltimore, May 21 (AP).— Jim Lacy wound up a brilliant "court" career at Loyola college today.

Last winter Lacy ran his scoring in four years of basketball to 2199 points, an all-time high.

Today, Lacy won in singles and doubles to lead Loyola to the tennis championship of the Mason-Dixon Conference over Lynchburg, Va. In three years on the tennis court, Lacy lost only once in 53 singles and doubles matches.

Olympia Wins Withers Mile

New York, May 21 (AP).—Fred W. Hooper's Olympia, beaten Kentucky Derby favorite two weeks ago, staged a sizzling comeback today to capture the 74th running of Belmont Park's famed Withers Mile.

The son of Heliopolis-Miss Dolphin hung it on five 3-year-old rivals, including stablemate Ocean Drive, by romping home six lengths in front after leading from start to finish. It was Olympia's first race since he staggered home sixth in the Derby.

Jockey Eddie Arcaro, who was aboard for the colt's bitter derby disappointment, steered the Hooper ace under the wire ahead of Ocean Drive. Greentree Stable's One Hitter was third, three-fourths of a length behind Ocean Drive, but a half a length over Mrs. Aksel Wichfeld's Daiquari in a photo job for the lesser money.

Woodvale Farm's Halt, also making his first outing since the Derby, could do no better than fifth again. Crispin Oglebay's Noble Impulse was last. Noble Impulse stumbled coming out of the gate and never got running.

Olympia, which was leading in the derby after one mile, was easily the best horse this time as he skipped the route in 1:36 4/5, compared with the record time for the stake of 1:36 flat held jointly by Blue Larkspur, Count Fleet and Hampden.

A crowd of 38,444 established the Hooper entry the 9-to-20 favorite, and the one-two wind-up returned $2.90, $2.80 and $2.20 for $2. On Hitter's show price was $2.60.

Olympia earned $21,150 today. This shot his 1949 earnings past the $200,000 mark, $215,700 to be exact, and hoisted the total for his two seasons of running to $292,332. It was Olympia's seventh win in 10 starts this year, and his eleventh in 24 trips to the post during his career.

Olympia probably will start next June 11 in the mile and one half Belmont Stakes, third number in the triple crown. He skipped the Preakness.

Ed Stewart's 'Single' Goes for Home Run

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

In a game that was, to coin a phrase, tuck and nip, the Nats nipped the Browns in the ninth inning yesterday, 7 to 6, after a two-hour and fifty-minute melange of walks, stolen bases, a home run, and lastly a squeeze bunt by Sam Dente.

Dente's strategic tap down the first base line with the bases full, brought Sherry Robertson scurrying home from third with the Nats' second and winning run of a tumultuous ninth.

Consistent with the entirely dizzy proceedings in which the Nats were trying to filch the game on three mere hits going into the eighth, was Eddie Stewart's rare-type home run that tied the score at the start of the ninth.

When Stewart stepped up to lead off the ninth inning, the Nats were somewhat unpopular with their 6884 Griffith Stadium customers. Rookies Dick Welteroth and Dick Weik had pitched away their 5-3 lead in the top of the ninth, and the Browns had a 6-5 bulge. In relief roles, they were strictly from relief rolls.

And then Stewart rapped a drooping fly into left field, and the Nats were blessed. Rookie Left Fielder Roy Sievers, in a bold attempt for a shoestring catch, fell on his face and skidded on his chin as the ball dropped safely and rolled beyond him. Sievers played Stewart's routine single into an inside-the-park homer that tied the score at 6-6 when Stewart was done churning around all the bases.

The Nats were eager now. Sherry Robertson laid a bunt down the third base line and streaked it out for a hit ahead of Andy Anderson's throw. He moved to second on a sacrifice by Vollmer, and the Browns chose to give Ed Robinson a deliberate pass.

The Browns' pitching in the ninth to that point was done by Al Papai, but now they wheeled in Dick Starr. Facing Eddie Yost, Starr was too deliberate with his windup, and Robertson and Robinson pulled a double steal that moved runners to third and second with one out. Changing strategy, the Browns passed Yost purposely, filling the bases.

Whereupon Dente didn't dally. He pulled the squeeze on the first pitch, laying it down toward first base. Jack Graham had only one choice, a bare-hand pickup. He bobbled it, and Robertson was home with the ball game.

For seven innings it was a duel between little Mickey Haefner and Red Embree, with the game tied 2-2 going into the eighth. Haefner gave up a run in that inning, on a walk to Kokos, and consecutive singles to right by Lollar and Graham. The Browns filled the bases with none out when Sullivan beat out a bunt, but Haefner buckled down to halt the damage at one run.

And in their own eighth, the Nats came up with three runs to take a 5-3 lead, after Embree's wildness finally caught up with him. He hit Vollmer with a

Yanks Edge White Sox in Ninth, 4 to 3

New York, May 21 (AP).—Brilliant relief pitching by Fred Sanford and a two-base error by Rookie First Baseman Gordon Goldsberry gave the New York Yankees a 4-3 triumph over the Chicago White Sox today.

Sanford, obtained from the St. Louis Browns for $100,000 and players, allowed one hit in six and one-third innings.

Bill Wight, who suffered his first loss in five outings, had the Yankees on the hip after the fourth inning and it appeared the game would go into extra innings when Goldsberry erred.

Wight nailed the first two Yanks in the ninth but Yogi Berra's grounder went through

Lefty Grove Warms Up For Celebs

ALTHOUGH he's seldom done well in tournaments in his home State, Richmond backers of the $30,000 PGA championship are counting on Sammy Snead to get them over the financial hump. . . . The $$$ success of the tourney, which opens Wednesday, is hinged to the success of Snead. If he's eliminated early, Richmond's most ambitious sports undertaking could easily turn out to be its most disastrous. . . . To offset the petitions of fans who are plugging for Bones McKinney and Bob Feerick, several hundred-Caps followers will mail Mike Uline a petition asking the retention of Red Auerbach as coach. . . . Auerbach, who seems to be indifferent over his future at Uline's, is interested in only one thing: When the story breaks, he'd like to have it on his radio show before his rival, Feerick, uses it on his program. . . . Lefty Grove reported yesterday he shot a 126 by way of warming up for the National Celebrities Golf tournament. That's six strokes better than he's ever shot. . . .

BECAUSE HE'S been unable so far to secure talent he deems good enough to present at Griffith Stadium, Matchmaker Gabe Menendez may pass up his June 6 date at the ball park . . . Prince Georges Country Club may stage the 1950 PGA championship. President Lou Iseley, of PG, bid for the show two years ago at Detroit and was told he'd have first crack at the 1950 tournament . . . During their nine-game winning streak (remember?), the Nats led the baseball pools for most runs scored in a week with 46 . . . Eddie Robinson was most ungrateful to Freddie Hutchinson, of the Tigers, the other day when he cracked out three hits against him. It was Hutchinson and Dom DiMaggio who helped Robbie with his batting stance when the three played on the Norfolk Naval Training Station team during the war . . .

MOVIE TIP: Don't miss "The Stratton Story," opening at Loew's Palace Thursday. You don't have to be a baseball fan to get a sock out of the wonderfully told story of the ill-fated Chicago White Sox pitcher . . . Jimmy Stewart and June Allyson share the lead role with the baseball part of the picture being amply taken care of by Bill Dickey, Jimmy Dykes, Ed Stewart, Gerry Priddy and other major leaguers . . . On the basis of his performance to date, the Nats are becoming real glad that Early Wynn isn't with them. In 20 innings for Cleveland, Wynn has been nicked for 21 hits and 12 runs . . . The PGA's refusal to invite Bobby Locke to its championship tournament brings to mind a quip Jimmy Demaret made about the Afrikander following the 1947 PGA show . . . It was Locke's last American appearance before heading for Johannesburg and several pros suggested that the Americans throw a farewell party for him. . . . "To heck with that," gagged Demaret, "with all the money he's won in our tournaments, he ought to throw us a party."

Frank Stranahan Leads Field in British Open

Dublin, May 21.—Defending champion Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, leads a field of 19 Americans into the British Open starting tomorrow at the 7,011-yard Portmarnock course here.

Stranahan, co-favorite with his fellow American, Willie Turnesa, of Elmsford, N. Y., who won the British Open in 1947, may find himself pitted against his father, Robert, who is also entered in the Open.

Also on hand is Charles "Chick" Evans of Chicago who played in his first British Open in 1911 but has never won the Open, the only major amateur tourney he has not won.

Robinson Drives Home 6 Big Runs

St. Louis, May 21 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers smeared the St. Louis Cardinals, 15-6, today with Jackie Robinson leading the rout by driving home six runs.

Brooklyn broke up a tense struggle with an eight-run, ninth-inning explosition. Peewee Reese started the rally with a infield single and climaxed the uprising with a three-run homer into the left-field bleachers.

Robinson slamed out two doubles and a single while Reese, who scored five runs, clouted a double and two singles in addition to his four-bagger.

St. Louis started off in grand style, scoring three runs off Ralph Baranca, who was gunning for his seventh staraight victory, in the first inning. Baranca left in the third complaining of a sore arm in favor of Jack Banta.

Barney, who took over in the sixth, went the rest of the way and received credit for his first victory against three defeats. Hearn was charged with the loss, his third straight.

Chicago, May 21 (AP).—Hank Borowy batted and pitched the Philadelphia Phillies to a 5-1 victory over his former Chicago Cub mates here today before a ladies' day crowd of 18,840. The slender veteran scattered seven hits and drove in three runs with a double to rout Dutch Leonard in the second inning.

OPENING DAY FOR KIDS—Yesterday was opening day for leagues in Walter Johnson Memorial baseball, and in a game at the Roosevelt High School stadium the Bears beat the Alley Cats, 13-6. Above, Catcher Robert Cummins, 11, of 4821 Iowa ave. nw., of the Alley Cats, puts the ball on Damian Crane, 11, of 906 Gallatin st. nw. The umpire, Alan Levine, 14, of 927 Randolph st. nw., calls him safe pitched ball, but was doing very well when Robinson hit into a double play. But when he walked Yost and pitched a right-field double to Dente, Tom Ferrick replaced him.

Dente's Bunt Puts 7-6 Squeeze On Brownies in Last Inning

Former Nat Ferrick was no success. He purposely passed pinch hitter Buddy Lewis to fill the bases, and he unpurposely walked pinch hitter Ralph Weigel to force the tying run home. Gil Coan banged in two more with a single to right.

The Nats entrusted their two-run lead to Welteroth at the start of the ninth and it was a misplaced trust. After getting Priddy out on some spectacular cooperation by Robertson and Robinson, Welteroth walked the tying runs on base. Lollar singled one home, and Welteroth was excused.

Weik moved in and was saluted immediately by Graham's single to right that tied the score. And when he walked pinch hitter Lehner to fill the bases, he was excused in favor of Joe Haynes. Pinch hitter Dillinger flied to right, scoring a runner from third, but Haynes halted the damage at that point.

And so the Nats had to dig up a run quickly in their own ninth, and two to win, which they did with the extremes of Stewart's homer and Dente's bunt.

The ball game had everything in it, except a passed ball. There were 19 walks, 8 of them by Embree, and 4 by his successors. Embree also tossed in a wild pitch and a balk. The Nats had five stolen bases, including their double steal.

The Browns were twice-gifted to get their 1-0 lead in the ninth. Pellagrini laid down a safe bunt, and scrambled to second when Robertson made a wild throw after taking Haefner's heave to first. Haefner's luck was all bad in that session. With two out and Pellagrini on third, he apparently retired Kokos on a foul pop but Evans and Yost went into an Alphone-Gaston act that permitted the ball to drop. On his next swing, Kokos scored the run with a single to left.

The Nats matched that one quickly, with Coan opening up with a three-bagger off the left field wall and scoring on Stewart's long fly. But in the Browns' second, the two former Nats, Stan Spence and Gerry Priddy, tripled and singled respectively to put Washington behind, 2-1.

The Nats didn't get the tying run until the seventh, and it was a gift from Embree. After Evans walked, stole second and was sacrificed to third, Embree wild-pitched him home with two out.

IN SHORT . . . their victory moved the Nats back into the first-division, fourth place to be exact . . . Manager Zach Taylor was wearing a path from the dugout to the mound with instructions to his pitchers. They didn't help much . . . Papai was the losing pitcher twice in the two-games series . . . If the Browns had retained their one-run lead in the ninth, a quirk in the official scoring rules would have credited Tom Ferrick as the winning pitcher despite the fact that he faced only three men, walked two and pitched a two-run single to the third . . . Just before Embree wild-pitched the tying run home in the seventh, Gil Coan dismayed the Nats' fans by taking a third strike through the gut with one out and the tying run on third . . . The game's longest swat netted Clyde Vollmer nothing in the sixth. Sievers backed up to the left-field wall for a one-hand catch of his drive . . . Mickey Haefner was entitled to some disgust in the third inning. He opened it with a long double to the wall in right center, but his pals couldn't score him . . . The White Sox move in today, with Walter Masterson drawing the Nats' pitching assignment.

Parkside Grill Wins

Lou Reale's three run triple in the last of the seventh inning gave Parkside Grill a 5-4 victory over Gilpin Brothers yesterday at West Potomac Park.

Tar Heels Win League Track Title

Chapel Hill, N. C., May 21 (AP).—Winning seven events, two with record performances, North Carolina ran off with its third straight Southern Conference track championship today.

The Tar Heels piled up 75 points to romp to their 13th title in the meet's 25-year-history.

The real contest was for second place, where Duke, piling up the needed events in the pole vault finale, edged Maryland, 47½ to 45.

The rest of the field was far behind as fourth place VPI could manage but 22 points.

The records fell to the Tar Heels' burly Bob Seligman and Sam Magill.

Seligman Sets Discus Mark

Seligman threw the discus 156 feet 6¼ inches to break by 4 feet 3½ inches the 13-year-old record set by North Carolina State's Milan Zori.

Magill ran off with the 2-mile event easily, turning in a 9:27.8 run to crack the 9:33.2 mark set a year ago by VMI's Frank Liddell.

Seligman's discus toss completed a three-year sweep for him in that event and went along with his shot-put victory to give him his second shot crown in three years as he dethroned Duke's Jim O'Leary.

Two other performers excelled Seligman in point production, however.

Terps Alexion Stars

Maryland's Bill Alexion won the 100 and 220 and ran on the winning relay team for 11¼ points, while Duke's Junior Tommy Reeves grabbed the low hurdles and broad jump and a fifth in the high hurdles for 11 points.

In the 100 Alexion's 0:09.9 was the only a tenth off the record.

The top three men in each event and Maryland's winning relay team will represent the conference in the first annual meet with Southeastern Conference champions next Saturday night at Atlanta.

The complete team scores:

North Carolina 75, Duke 47½, Maryland 45, V.P.I. 22, William and Mary 10, V.M.I. 8, Clemson 5½, Furman 4, Davidson 4, N.C. State 2, South Carolina 2.

Looking For Big Year

Rosecroft Harness Races Open Thursday

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

IT'S A MISTAKE to refer to the "good, old horse and buggy days."

There's nothing old about them with the resurgence of harness racing furnishing one big upset in this somewhat upsetting atomic age of ours.

While thoroughbred flat tracks bemoan the sharp postwar drop in betting and attendance, the hitherto almost ignored standardbred racing has been thriving.

Cold statistics bear out the sensational comeback of the trotters and pacers, enjoying a golden age surpassing that of their heyday before the turn of the century.

In the Gay Nineties, several standardbreds sold for more than $100,000 each.

Dwelling briefly on the figures, we find that last year's attendance was up 64 per cent over that of 1947; the mutuel handle was up 61 per cent.

And the harness people are looking only one way—up. Henry J. Knauf, president of the United States Trotting Association, coolly predicts an additional 10 to 15 per cent jump in attendance this year and a 20 to 35 per cent increase in purses.

THAT LATTER ITEM shows dramatically the tremendous growth of the sport in the past seven years. Back in 1943, little more than a million dollars in purses was offered harness horsemen nationally. This year, they'll compete for a total aggregate of more than 10 million dollars.

Maryland, traditional haven for the thoroughbred racers, has joined in, and is making its contribution to the harness boom.

This Thursday night, the lavish Rosecroft Raceway begins its 20-night inaugural meeting. The Oxon Hill, Md., plant, 9 miles from the Capitol, cost an estimated $800,000. Its backers have that much faith in the continued success of the harness sport—and business.

Certainly, they can draw only cheer from the experience of Laurel Raceway last year. That pioneering track, opening hastily under adverse conditions, startled even harness circles. On its first night last summer the mutuel handle at Laurel was $167,096—twice that of any previous new half-mile track operating under lights.

TOTAL HANDLE for the 20-night meeting was $3,707,051. That amount, not to mention the admissions and concessions profits, was encouraging enough for the Laurel management to go to work on a clubhouse for its second meeting which will follow Rosecroft's.

Johnny Miller, secretary-treasurer of Rosecroft, seems sure the new track will average more than $200,000 a night at its betting windows. In fact, he confides, he won't be too surprised if the figure is $300,000.

Rosecroft's opening will culminate the remarkable harness career of its 70-year-old president, peppery William E. Miller, Washington furniture tycoon.

Miller became interested in his all-engrossing hobby back in 1907 on the old Brightwood track here. As an owner, driver, trainer and breeder, he's made an outstanding reputation in the sport.

Now that he's become a track president, only one ambition remains to be realized. He still hopes and plans to win the famed Hambletonian classic.

30-Game Schedule Faces Eight 'Major' Leagues Today

This is another big Sunday for the eight top sandlot leagues of the Washington area with 30 games slated . . . Mort Irwin, the Boys Club of Washington instructor, is stepping up into the junior ranks as a manager this year. He's piloting the Washington Capitols in the City Junior Sunday League. Already on his team are Hugh Walns, who pitched two no-hitters for Stuyvesant High of Warrenton this season. Mort is looking for twilight games, and can be reached at REpublic 8279 . . . Bobby Hooker, the Alexandria boy who played on The Washington Post all-star team at Brooklyn last summer, ran into tough luck the other day. After winning his first pitching assignment for Johnson City, Tenn., of the Appalachian League, Bobby was winning the second, 2-1, when he severely wrenched his ankle sliding into third base on a triple. He'll be out of action for three weeks . . . The Independent softball team—which is in first place, is the only unsponsored ten in the Recreation League No. 6. Anyone interested in backing a winner can call the team captain, Jack Connell at EMerson 3800.

"Bad With the Good"

Uncle Mike Attends His Own Fight Wake

By Red Smith

Red Smith

NEW YORK, MAY 21 (NYHT).—When Michael Strauss Jacobs showed up unexpectedly in Madison Square Garden for his own wake as a fight promoter, Harry Markson said, "Mike, I'm glad you came. Nobody else did." Mike grinned and said what he has been saying since the gusty days when he used to sell pieces of string to steamboat excursionists for tying down their hard straw hats, "In this business, you gotta take the bad with the good."

Mike and his missus sat in the last aisle seats on the Fiftieth st. side of the Garden's main floor. Before them, history-in-the-making ran amok. It had plenty of room to run, too, in broad open spaces among the crowd of 6814. Robert Villemain whipped Pete Mead in the last promotion of the Twentieth Century Sporting Club, as such. Out the window went the mightiest promotional empire boxing has known; in came Monopoly, Inc., the new Norris-Wirtz-Louis-Garden combine.

Others were reminiscing in the lobby and at ringside, so the chances are Mike's reveries went back with theirs to the days of his beginning in boxing. It all started, the mob remembered, in the winter of 1933.

Jack Hurley had brought Billy Petrolle on to fight a Dutchman named Bep Van Klavaren but the match fell through when Jimmy Johnston, then the Garden matchmaker, refused to pay for their return transportation to Fargo, N. Dak., Hurley swore he was through with Johnston.

LITTLE JIMMY was on the outs with Barney Ross at that time, too, and was at odds with the Hearst Milk Fund interests, so they all got together with a ticket spec named Mike Jacobs and agreed to run a Ross-Petrolle match in the Bronx Coliseum.

The bout was made for December, 1933, but Ross was injured in training and the very first promotion of the new firm had to be postponed. Postponements are bad for business in the fight business. But Mike grinned and said, "You gotta take the bad with the good."

They reset the show for January, 1934. Walter St. Denis was doing the publicity. (Walter is gone now; so are Bill Farnsworth and Damon Runyon and Ed Frayne, who were associated in the venture. So is Jimmy Johnston.) What with the postponement and the remote location of the Coliseum, nobody was very hopeful about the undertaking.

On the night of the bout, St. Denis started for the hall with Bugs Baer, Walter didn't have a ticket, didn't figure the press agent would need one. A block from the Coliseum, police lines were turning back everyone without a ticket. The joint was sold out and the cops turned away hundreds, maybe thousands.

St. Denis couldn't talk his way past the law. He came back downtown defeated, having publicized himself out of his own show.

Petrolle lost the decision and it was his last fight. The series of Ross-McLarnin matches followed, and then, of course, Mike got exclusive rights to Joe Louis and muscled Johnston out of the Garden. The Twentieth Century, an old name in fight promotion around here, was dug up by Farnsworth.

JIMMY JOHNSTON, moving out of the Garden and taking offices in the Paramount Building, had a sign put up on his door. It read: "Thirtieth Century Sporting Club."

Well, Mike sat there Friday night looking over the sparsely populated pews and hearing what must have been the first round of applause ever directed his way by one of his fight crowds.

Johnny Addie, the announcer, had introduced the French consul general, who served a small portion of French-fried syllables and called "Col. Eduard Eagan" into the ring. The chairman of the State Athletic Commission took an overlapping grip on the microphone and yelled back into a rolling tide of jeers, calling upon "all you sport lovers to stand up and give homage to good old Mike Jacobs."

Eddie hissed "sport lovers," which is a good trick.

The crowd stood obediently enough, stood again for the playing of the "Marseillaise," remained standing for "The Star-Spangled Banner," then sat and saw Villemain swarm over Mead. Robert swarmed, that is, whenever Frank Fullam, the referee, would let him.

If he could punch, Villemain could be a standout fighter. Considering the phyiscal concessions he must make he is competent, highly accomplished and slipping and blocking punches, amazingly strong and tireless. The French consul general presented France's Gold Medal for Physical Education to Colonel Eagan. Mistake. Villemain should get it.

Those Wondrous Nats

Those Brownies were feeling pretty good about their trades yesterday until the ninth inning.

Stan Spence, Jerry Priddy and Johnny Sullivan, all former Nats, had collected important hits, and Tom Ferrick, another former Nat, was pitching in relief.

But I guess we kinda got the last laugh. Sammy Dente, whom we obtained from the Browns last winter, squeezed in our winning run in the ninth to beat his old team, 7-6.

And now, we have another winning streak going. It's two in a row, and with the slipping White Sox coming to town, it'll soon be more.

Not much attention has been paid them but a lot of credit for our great showing belongs to our reserves. Look at how Eddie Stewart has stepped in during the last couple of days for Buddy Lewis.

He's rapped out four hits in seven trips, including that "homer" in the ninth yesterday.

The homer, by the way, represented a grand switch in strategy by our team, which is finding our fences a little too far to reach. Stewart, smartly choked up on his bat and dropped a hit into left and circled the bases when Roy Sievers unwisely tried for a shoestring catch. That was our twenty-sixth homer in 32 games. We hit only 31 in 154 games last year. Quite an improvement.

I hope you noticed that we've been getting good relief pitching from Joe Haynes recently. Looks like he's gonna solve that problem department.

And, by the way, we shouldn't be too harsh on young Dick Weik, who's having trouble with his control. Despite his difficulty in finding the plate, we've won four of the six games in which he's appeared. He's good luck, anyway.

130 Seek Ben Hogan's Pro Title

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Richmond, Va., May 21.—Richmond will be taken again this week, but it'll be a pleasure this time.

The capital of the Confederacy will welcome an army of golfing invaders from all parts of the Nation, including the North, in its role as host to the thirty-first annual championship tournament of the PGA.

More than 130 professionals will converge on Hermitage Country Clubs, starting Wednesday in the week-long quest to determine a successor to the incapacitated Ben Hogan. The Mighty Mite is recuperating from a near-fatal automobile accident and will be unable to defend the title he won last year at Los Angeles.

With Hogan sidelined, Bobby Locke uninvited and Byron Nelson not competing, the favorite's role falls on the shoulders of the Old Dominion's favorite golfing son, Samuel Jackson Snead.

Snead, Masters' champion and winner of this same tournament seven years ago, heads the star studded field which will battle for top money of $2500 in the $30,000 tourney.

Among those expected to offer the sweet-swinging' Slammin' Sammy a run for the money are Lloyd Mangrum, Skip Alexander, Johnny Palmer, Jimmy Demaret, Lew Worsham and Freddie Haas jr.

This, the pros' own private tournament, is considered the toughest of them all. There are two rounds of qualifying — Wednesday and Thursday—and then four days of tortuous match play, two rounds each on Friday and Saturday.

The bulky field will be reduced to the 64 fittest by sundown Thursday with match play starting early Friday morning.

Hermitage's normally tough-playing course has been tightened up considerably for the event, the first time major championship ever has been held in Richmond. Pros who found Hermitage a tartar during the 1946 and 1947 Richmond Opens will find it just as treacherous, if not more so, promises Tommy Galloway, the host pro.

Par has been reduced from 73 to 71, and the course lengthened to 6673 yards. The 468-yard fifth hole, a dog-leg to right, has been trimmed from a five to a four and the 454-yard seventeenth has been reduced to a four par also.

Several of the Nation's top drawer pros, including the fabulous Snead, have already entered The Washington Post's National Celebrities tournament June 4-5, and several more will be tapped for the celebrated event during the PGA.

Many Washingtonians and area golfers will drive down to Richmond to see part of the pro show. Tickets for the tourney can be obtained at Hermitage Club.

Terp Golfers Sweep Honors

Annapolis, Md., May 21 (AP).—Sophomore Dick Sturgis of Washington and his University of Maryland teammates grabbed all the honors today in the State intercollegiate golf championships.

Sturgis shot a low medal of 155 to capture the individual title and give Maryland the team championship with a four-man total of 662 in the 36-hole medal-play tournament.

The final finisher out of 25 golfers from six colleges, the steady Sturgis posted 38-40—78 for the afternoon round. He had 77 for the first 18.

His card wiped out the 76-81—157 score previously posted by Defending Champion Jack Cronin of Loyola, who wound up second. Loyola, defending team champion, also wound up second with 666 after Sturgis came to the clubhouse.

Other team scores: Johns Hopkins, 669; Mount St. Mary's, 707; Western Maryland, 722; University of Baltimore, 745. Navy golfers did not play because of final exams.

Joe Kirkwood Shoots Record 66 for Lead

By Whitney Martin

Philadelphia, May 21 (AP).—Joe Kirkwood, jr., shot a record-breaking 66 today to take a commanding lead at the half-way mark in the sixth annual Inquirer Invitation golf tournament with a 36-hole total of 134.

The burly blond from Hollywood then took a quick shower and joined the gallery trailing Bobby Locke to see how the South African, tied for the lead with Kirkwood at 68 at the end of the first round, was getting along.

What he saw didn't disturb him too much. The usually steady Bobby scrambled out in 37, one over par. He finished his round with a 70, to drop four strokes behind the torrid Kirkwood. He was alone in second place.

Kirkwood, Joe Palooka in the movies, has been invited to play in The Washington Post's celebreties golf tournament.

The Whitemarsh Country Club course, after the heavy rain which forced postponement of the second round yesterday, was in perfect condition today, and the estimated 5000 gallery saw a choice assortment of form reversals in addition to some steady, and even spectacular golf.

In third place with 140 was Fred Haas, jr., of New Orleans, who added a three-under-par 69 today to his first round 71 for 140. Buck White, a dark horse veteran from Greenwood, Miss., was alone in the 141 bracket with a 70 today added to his previous 71.

Still very much in the running with two-round totals of 142 were: Johnny Palmer, the 1948 winner here whose 70 today easily could have been several strokes better had his putts dropped; Lloyd Mangrum, with a par 72 today; Clayton Haefner, with 71; Herman Kaiser, with 70, and Jim Ferrier, with 71.

Al Besselink, University of Miami student, and Henry Ransom, who were tied behind Locke and Kirkwood at 69 at the end of the first round, had their troubles today.

Ransom staggered in with a 76, but what happened to Besselink shouldn't happen to a duffer. He was out nicely in par 36, and then the roof caved in. He lost nine strokes on the next six holes and finished with an 82, his dossier bearing such notations as: 13th—drive in rough, second to other fairway on left, chip over green, two putts from four feet, and 14th—reached green in two, four-putted from 20 feet.

Fort Hill Takes Md. Track Honors

Fort Hill compiled 59½ points to finish comfortably ahead of Hagerstown with 31. Montgomery Blair was third with 25 and Allegany, another Cumberland school, was fourth with 22½.

Locke-Out in PGA Not American Way

accept his entry." At the San Antonio Open in 1947, however, Schneiter was far from pro-Locke. When the South African questioned the grooving of the clubs of some of the United States pros, Schneiter gave him a gruff answer. He got a snappier one in return, and they were disenchanted with each other.

For his activities as tournament director, Schneiter gets $22,500 yearly from the PGA. Because of his office as the man who must deliver the top pros like Ben Hogan, Byron Nelson, Sammy Snead, Lloyd Mangrum, and Jimmy Demaret to the tournament sponsors who put up the big purses and demand box-office names, he supposedly pays heed to their likes and dislikes.

Meanwhile, the Richmond businessmen who guaranteed $30,000 for the PGA tournament and face another $10,000 in expenses, are screaming in anguish at the barring of Locke, a badly needed box-office attraction.

TOM UTTERBACK, tournament chairman at Richmond, who is eager to return the guarantors' money from gate receipts, points out the hard blow of Locke's absence. Ben Hogan, the only man rivaling the South African as a gallery favorite, is hurt and out of golf. Byron Nelson won't play. Cary Middlecoff and Ed Furgol are also out, as mere apprentices without five years PGA membership to their credit.

The complaint has been heard that the top pros swing too much weight in PGA Executive Committee decision, and that rulings are not being made on a membership-level but in star-chamber proceedings. The bulk of the PGA membership of 2200 are the more or less unfamed home club pros, the golf teachers, who can't make the tournament circuit and share in the big prize money or the subsidies from the golf equipment manufacturers.

Following the ban on Locke in the PGA, Golf Editor Lew Walter of the Detroit News, took a poll of member pros in the Michigan area, and found them two-to-one in disagreement with the exclusion of Locke by the executive committee.

Locke has called the whole episode "a lack of courtesy" and is cutting short his American visit to take off for England in an eight-cylinder huff.

As a nonmember of the United States PGA, Locke did not come within the jurisdicton of Schneiter on the tournament circuit. He was exempted from the code of silence that Schneiter, czar of the tournament pros, attempted to enforce in a special players contract signed by the traveling pros.

IT DROPPED a kind of iron curtain on interviews with the press, by the pros, with Schneiter decreeing that all statements of PGA policy must be released through his office. But that failed to cow Dick Metz, whom Schneiter attempted to rebuke for free talk to a San Antonio sports editor. Metz hired a lawyer and wanted to make an issue of it, when Schneiter backed down.

At Locke, the charge of "tightwad" was hurled by some of the United States pros, and the fellow's frugality is well known, but the same can be said for many of the American pros.

Locke immediately became a gallery idol with United States fans, who liked his amiability on the links in contrast to the stony-faced grimness of such as Hogan, the golfing robot who was heedless of applause. They liked the way he tipped his cap and made that odd little bow when the cheers went up for one of his trolley-wire putts into the cup.

He lacked the same affability at the outset, however, with the golfing press, and only his amazing string of tournament victories prevented golf writers from returning his snubs. The golf writers, even before the United States pros, found much to dislike about Locke.

They called him money-mad, particularly when he refused to talk freely about his game and on his first visit to this country, he clammed up to one interviewer: "If it's anything instructional, old boy, I'm afraid I'll have to charge you for it. Sorry, but that's the way it is."

WHEN the first rumble of dislike for Locke was heard among the pros, Sammy Snead dissented in this fashion: "He's okay. He just wants to make a million dollars."

There was some discontent among the United States pros, too, in 1947, when George S. May, promoter of the All-American tournament at Chicago's Tam O'Shanter Club, asked Locke to forego the British Open and play in his event.

He backed the request with an offer of a $5000 bonus to Locke if he would play. Locke hastily canceled his British Open entry and accepted. He went on to win the $2000 first?money prize, as well. Certainly the United States pros were jealous, and not a man among them would have turned it down if the same offer had been made to them.

On his more recent visits, however, Locke has been more favorably received by the golf writers. He has discovered that the United States press asks questions bluntly, and that he is expected to answer.

And in North Carolina he has defenders against the charge he is a "tightwad." Dugan Aycock, president of the PGA in that section, and friend of Locke when the latter was piloting an American-made B-25 bomber in the South African Air Force for five years, points out:

"HOW CAN you call Locke mercenary? For three years now he has played in our Carolina PGA, where the first prize is only $300. I know that this season he passed up $1200 in exhibition guarantees to spend four days with us, shooting at a $300 purse. We're proud to have him as an honorary member of our association."

Walter Hagen and Joe Kirkwood were the original discoverers of Golfer Locke. Those two old barnstormers found him golfing around Johannesburg in 1937, and were so smitten with his play they advised him to give up his $15-a-week job as a clerk and turn pro.

Locke was an amateur then. He quit the amateurs in 1938 but before he could get squared away on a pro career, World War II put in a bid for him. Eight years later, he finished second to Snead in the British Open.

But it was early the next year, in 1947, that he first came to wide notice. That was when Snead went to South Africa to tour with Locke and was beaten in 19 of 22 matches. United States pros were skeptical of the reports, preferred to believe only that Snead's putting was worse than usual.

Locke enlightened them in 1947 when he won four of those first six United States tournaments he played in. They were first amused, then astonished by the effectiveness of his old-fashioned swing, that had been discarded a generation before by United States teachers

AGAINST all good United States golf theory, Locke was bending his left arm. He was using the pronating swing, taking his club back with a loop at the top, and around the body with a pronounced pivot. At the top of the swing, no left hand was looking at the sky, as United States pros believed it should be. And those wondrous putts that he dropped, he was actually hooking deliberately.

They couldn't figure him out, but they could admire the effects he got, especially on those low pitches to the green that he had learned to use in windy South Africa. He didn't traffic in the deep under-cut shot to the green, believed indispensable by the United States pros, and he used no fade. But he could control his shots.

They learned to be afraid of him as a rival for all that tournament cash—and were aware that he was plucking off the biggest guarantees for those soft-touch exhibition dates.

He led 'em all in the recent Specialists' Tournament at Virginia Beach. Then he drove all night to White Sulphur and copped first prize in the Sammy Snead Pro-Amateur. After that, he went to the Goodall, and spread-eagled the field by 66 strokes, knocking 20 off par in his four rounds.

He's hot—red hot, and apparently too hot to be given a shot at the American pros' proudest crown, the PGA.

Trend Toward Wire Fishing Line Has Big Advantage

By Ralph Murdock

In the last few years there has been a trend toward the use of wire fishing lines. One decided advantage of this line shows up when trolling for fish that feed on the bottom. It actually cuts down on the weight of the sinker problem and gives the fish a better chance to run when hooked.

Additional cash awards amounting to $175 are being offered to winners in each of the 14 fresh water and 11 salt water divisions of the 1949 National Field and Stream contest for fish taken on wire line. Morel, copper or other metal or alloys can be used.

Edward E. Pankomen caught the largest fish in the Lake Trout division in the 1948 contest. It weighed 47 pounds and 2 ounces and was caught in Lake Anishinabi, Ontario.

Incidentally, the Bureau of Law Enforcement of the New York State Conservation Department really hangs it on persons who violate their fishing laws. Three offenders were fined $102.50 each for taking rainbow trout before the season opened.

The adjoining State of Virginia each year puts into some 160 streams around 100 tons of fighting rainbow and brook trout. The Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries has adopted the policy of releasing only "catchable" size fish so that the fisher will be assured of better sport. The average length of trout released is about 14 inches.

Lest we forget, West Virginia started by stocking 122,100 trout in its waters. This included 41,850 brook, 64,950 rainbow and 15,300 brown trout. E. A. Seaman, chief of the Conservation Commission's Fish Management Division, predicts better fishing for the anglers in his State.

"We have had little snow and less flooded stream conditions" he said in explaining his forecast. "Previously swollen waters had washed the trout downstream and an angler was not permitted to fish in designated streams or parts of streams, even when we knew trout were abundant downstream from these designated waters. This fact alone will increase the general catch."

He adds, "whether you are an expert angler or an average fisherman it is felt that your chances, all things being equal, for making catches this year are better than last year."

Stocking of these streams will continue until the hatcheries have been emptied. Mr. Seaman cautions that, "trout fishermen should avoid overcrowding trout pools or streams. Often too many anglers gang up on a single stream. Too many stamping up and down streams disturb trout to the extent that they stop biting."

Representative Herbert Bonner, of North Carolina, while fishing with five others from his State, caught 487 blue fish. Politics must have overcome the "blues." Gordon Sessions and party from Washington landed 27 blues. Both of these catches were made in Oregon Inlet.

Capt. Leon Langley, one of the preferred rockfish skippers, reports that one of his boats caught 25 rockfish at Solomons Island. They averaged four pounds and were taken by C. T. Nickels and party of Arlington. These fish were caught Thursday. Nine hardheads were also taken on the trip. Grass shrimp was the bait. Chumming was the method.

Four Navy Yard employes in the Administration Division, rather fatigued after a tough day at the "Yard," decided to ride down to Breezy Point and cool off. They picked up a couple of pounds of shrimp and soon had four baited lines overboard. They fished from shore and caught 13 hardheads and one spot. They were Raymond Taylor, Robert Fraser, John Iseli and "China" Reed.

The nicest catch of rockfish reported so far was captured by a former end for the Maryland football team, Duke Durity, and party. While trolling at Eastern Bay the four anglers caught 18 rock. The two largest were put on the scale and each weighed 13½ pounds. The most amazing part of this catch was that the striped bass were caught by trolling. Buck tails and metal drones were used.

Prince Georges, Washington Meet for State Golf Title

Washington Golf and Country Club will meet Prince Georges Country Club for the championship of the Maryland State Golf Association today, 2:30 p. m., at Columbia Country Club. Washington defeated the three-time champs from the Country Club of Maryland last Sunday while Prince Georges was trouncing Hillendale in the semifinals.

Martin F. McCarthy, president of the Maryland State Association and a Columbia member, will be in charge.

Washington, a dark horse entry at the beginning of the tournament, is led by pro Dave Thompson and William Walsh and has a strong team all down the line, with such District stars as Jim Gardner, Harold Hair and Claude Rippy going for them.

Prince Georges is topped by Al Houghton. Also playing for the Landover club are Mike Janowski, one of the longest ball hitters in the District, Bob Morris and Lieut. Jim Kinder.

Frank Walker, junior star at Columbia a few years back, is organizing a junior interclub league to play during the summer. Seven clubs have submitted entries and there may be more.

The teams will be composed of four players, three of whom must be under 18 and the fourth must be under 21, and will play a home and home schedule on Mondays and Fridays.

Pete Haley, CYO chairman, is attempting to organize a golf tournament for girls attending Catholic high schools for 11 a. m. Thursday at Indian Springs with 18-hole medal play.

Play will be divided into two groups, under 15 and over 15.

Minaddie Upsets Favorite at Charles Town

Kratz Wins With Great Stretch Ride

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., May 21.—Freddie Kratz, the jockey who doesn't look so good in the saddle but who gets there just the same, turned in a fine ride today to win the Berryville Purse with Minaddie, second choice in a field of eight.

Minaddie, owned and bred by Emery L. Morseberger, of Catonsville, Md., finished three lengths in advance of Otto Haug's Cavalier Trim, the odds on favorite. Four additional lengths back came Scarlet Time, owned by Wayne Kendrick of Washington, to be third in a photo with C. D. Carter's junket.

The largest crowd of the season, some 7000 customers, saw Minaddie, a daughter of Little Beans and Chessie, step the distance of 6½ furlongs in 1:22 4/5 over a fast track and under cloudy skies. The race was exclusively for 3-year-olds.

Double Pays $38.40

Scarlet Time set the early pace but was joined by Cavalier Trim entering the back stretch. Minaddie, after breaking on top and being unable to keep up, was steadied within striking distance.

Approaching the stretch, Cavalier Trim shook off Scarlet Time and appeared to have things her own way. However, Kratz brought Minaddie to the inside and began applying the whip. The filly responded and collared the favorite to win going away while still under pressure.

Kratz, one of the few steeplechase riders who ever turned into a flat jockey, also had a hand in a $38.40 daily double paid on the 7 and 8 combination. He won the second race with Richard Moore's Tap Lightly, a $13.20 shot. Ray Shirey had taken the first event with John Red's Rippleby, a $5 favorite.

Braganca Wins Second

The seventh race, the day's second best offering, went to Braganca, owned and trained by former jockey Henry Romaine. The 4-year-old, a winner at 33-1 early this week, made it two in a row, getting home with daylight to spare over Richard Finn's Mixman. Third money went to S. H. Rogers' Woofie.

With Jockey J. Andino aboard, Braganca again was overlooked in the betting and paid a $23.60 win mutuel.

Roadster Races Resume Today At Hybla Valley

Roadster automobile racing will be resumed at Hybla Valley Speedway today at 2:30 after a three week layoff. A majority of the drivers and cars are veterans of the Williams Grove, Pa., Speedway where they thrilled 27,539 fans last Sunday.

Local interest will be centered around Carl Anderson and Ronnie Cash, both of the D. C. area, who are the first and second ranking point scorers in the Eastern Roadster Racing Club.

Third-ranking point scoror, Joe Jernigan, 6-foot-2, 230-pound giant from Norfolk, Va., will report along with Anderson and Cash.

The speedway, with a vastly improved half-mile dirt track, is located three miles south of Alexandria on Route 1.

At Charles Town

Dear Folks:

It isn't exactly a clash of Citation and Coaltown, but there is a race on the Monday program here that has the horsemen on their toes. War Story meets Boston Man, and up in these mountains this is the equivalent of the irresistable force meeting the immovable object, if you know what I mean. War Story carries 122 pounds, two more than his rival and Boston Man has a raft of backers, especially of the horse-for-horse variety. The distance is 7 furlongs. The only horse in the limit field with a chance for an upset is believed to be Bay Orders. You can write your own price on the others. Both War Story and Boston Man are coming off winning efforts here.—BILL.

Cerdan, La Motta Fight for Title June 15 in Detroit

New York, May 21 (U.P.).—Promoter Nick Londes of Detroit announced today that negotiations have been completed for a world middleweight title fight between Champion Marcel Cerdan and Jake La Motta at Briggs Stadium, Detroit, June 15.

Londes said a signing ceremony will be staged at boxing commission headquarters in Detroit on Monday. Cerdan, his manager, Jo Longman, and Londes will fly to Detroit Monday morning, while La Motta will leave by train Sunday night.

Cerdan will receive 40 per cent of the net gate. According to Londes, Cerdan demanded the percentage instead of a guarantee of $100,000 that had been offered him.

La Motta has agreed to grant Cerdan a return bout in his first fight if the New Yorker wins the title.

Gals 'Strike' Helps Carol Win Net Title

Fourteen-year-old Carol Mortimer is the first girls' tennis champion of Washington ever to stage a successful "walkout" on her music teacher.

It happened this way. The glee club at Alice Deal Junior High, of which Carol is a member, was rehearsing for a big operetta two weeks ago.

Carol's attention was divided between the Sidwell Friends tennis tournament and the operetta. In fact, one day, Carol was supposed to be playing tennis and rehearsing at the same time.

CAROL MORTIMER

Carol went to her teacher and tried to be excused from rehearsal. The teacher told Carol, "Either you stay here, or else you're out of the glee club."

It was a tough decision to make, but Carol chose the tennis tourney. After Carol left the room, one of her girl friends raised her hand and told the teacher, "If Carol's out, I'm out, too," and she walked out of the room.

Another of Carol's friends did the same thing, and another and another. And within two minutes, the room was cleared, except for the teacher.

Faced with apologetically calling Carol back into the glee club fold or giving up plans for the operetta, the teacher swallowed her pride. The next day, Carol and rest of the club was back at work and the operetta was a big success.

Carol did very well in the tournament too. She won 72 out of 82 games, didn't lose a set, and defeated Belmar Gunderson of Falls Church High, 6—2, 6—2, for the city title.

Besides her glee club and tennis activities, Carol is also an active participant in baseball, track, badminton and archery.

She learned to play tennis "when I was a little girl," by hitting the ball against the Lafayette Elementary School wall.

She's going to Woodrow Wilson High next September, and after her school days are over, she says she will accept the offer of any job which gives her an opportunity to play tennis.

Raba Slams 3 Hits for Georgetown

Elmer Raba and Billy Carroll, a pair of former Gonzaga High athletes, collaborated yesterday to give Georgetown University a 7-2 victory over George Washington at Georgetown.

The Hoya victory left the city without a clear-cut college baseball champ, since G. W. whipped Georgetown, 6-2, in an earlier engagement, and the two have similar records against Maryland, Catholic and American universities.

Carroll hurled a five-hitter, and missed pitching a shutout only because he committed a two-base error in the fourth inning. It was Carroll's eighth victory of the year, and in the process, he halted the 17-game hitting streak of G. W. Shortstop Joe Famulette.

Raba, cracked out two singles and a triple to score a run and drive in another. The Hoyas have a 16-10 record.

Middies Shut Out Villanova, 9 to 0

Annapolis, Md., May 21 (AP).—Navy's baseball team defeated Villanova, 9-0, today as Bill Hawkins pitched a five-hitter.

Hawkins, who also stars on the Middies' football eleven, struck out 12 visitors, gave up four walks. Only three men reached second base on him.

On the strength of his performance today, he was named as starting pitcher in next Saturday's big game against Army at West Point.

Johns Hopkins Routs Terps, 14-6, in Lacrosse-Fist Duel

Undefeated Johns Hopkins rolled over Maryland, its last college foe of the season, by a 14-6 score yesterday in a lacrosse game marked by fights on the field and in the stands.

A crowd of about 7000 watched the rough contest in Byrd Stadium. It was the twenty-second straight collegiate victory for Johns Hopkins during the past three seasons.

The players' tempers reached the fighting point in the third quarter when Lloyd Bunting of Maryland and Mark Mediary put down their sticks to punch it out. Bunting, who had five penalties called on him, spent two minutes on the sidelines and Mediary one as punishment.

Maryland, beaten previously only by Navy, was never in the game after the first period. They held Hopkins at bay with a 1-1 tie until the last two minutes of the initial period when the visitors poured in three fast goals.

Hopkins ran it up to 7-1 in the first 5 minutes of the second quarter and enjoyed a 7-3 halftime lead. Buzz Hall scored for Maryland at the outset of the second half and that was the closest the Old Liners got since the beginning.

The Hopkins ten rammed in four straight goals and for the rest of the period the players seemed more interested in roughing it up than scoring.

Maryland dominated the first 10 minutes of the last 15, pulling up to 11-6 on goals by Hank Lowry and Lou Phipps. But Hopkins turned on the steam again for three more tallies.

Angyol Wins Henley Race

Cambridge, Mass., May 21 (U.P.).—Joseph Angyal of the New York A. C. won the two top singles events in the American Henley regatta today on the Charles River.

While Harvard oarsmen were winning four of the crew events, the stocky Angyal won the 2000-meter, 150-pound singles a boat length ahead of Tom McCreesh of St. Joseph's College and Richard Strong of Boston. Then he went on to a three-length victory in the Farragut Cup race, the all-comers singles championship.

Princton Crew Sets Record

Princeton, N. J., May 21 (U.P.).—Favored by a strong following wind, Princeton University's varsity crew shattered the Lake Carnegie course record for a mile and three-quarters today to win the Carnegie Cup race by two-thirds of a length over Yale.

The Tigers were timed in 8:41.7—11.1 seconds faster than the 8:52.8 clocking turned in by Harvard in the Compton Cup race here last year. The Elis, a surprising second ahead of favored Penn and Cornell, finished 8.1 seconds under the old standard with an 8:44.7 clocking.

Boston U. Sweeps Dad Vail Regatta

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 21 (AP). Boston University made a clean sweep of the Dad Vail regatta today, taking the freshman, junior varsity and varsity events—the last race as darkness was setting in.

It was the third straight year Boston has taken the race, and in winning, B. U. retired the trophy. The big Beantown eight had little difficulty taking the varsity test, merely moving into the lead at the outset and beating off every challenge.

Mitchell Paces Hoyas' 78-48 Track Victory

With Billy Mitchell picking up points in six events, Georgetown's track team defeated Virginia, 78-48, yesterday at the Hilltop.

Mitchell, one of the country's best high hurdlers, took his speciality in 14.8 seconds, a new Georgetown record. Billy, who handled the team yesterday with Manager Chuck Boyle while recently-appointed Coach Frank Sevigne looked on, scored victories also in the 220-yard low hurdles and the broad jump.

He placed in the high jump and won third places in the shot-put and discus events.

Vin Cino, Hoya speedster, was a double winner in the dashes. Polite Dave Smith insisted on being dead-heated twice by teammates. He and Racely Saunders crossed the line simultaneously in the mile; then Pat O'Brien and Smith raced to a synthetic dead-heat in the 880.

All of Virginia's first places were grabbed in the field events. Nelson Rancorn won the high jump; Lou Morris the shot-put; Bob Roller the pole vault; Charley Mott the discus and Bill Wright the javelin.

500-Mile Driver Goes to Hospital After Crackup

Indianapolis, May 21 (AP).—Tommy Hinnerschitz of Oley, Pa., veteran of three 500-mile races here, was taken to a hospital with possible head injuries today after his car hit a bleacher section.

Hinnerschitz said he lost control of his car on the northwest turn. It veered down into the infield, crossed the track to the retaining wall, then swerved across the track again to hit a concrete post of an infield bleacher section.

New drivers continued to give sensational performances in qualification trials.

Minnesota Wins Big 9 Track Crown

Evanston, Ill., May 21 (AP).—Minnesota's Gophers hurdled their way, literally and figuratively, to their first Western Conference outdoor track title in history today as one new meet record was set.

The Gophers rolled up 19 points in the 120-high and 220-low hurdles to send them winging to a top total of 49 points in the forty-ninth conference championships at Dyche Stadium. Defending Champion Ohio State was second with 37¾.

The sole new mark was registered by Indiana's Chuck Peters, one of the meet's two double winners, who defended his 200-dash title with a 0:21.2 triumph. That broke the furlong record for around a turn of 21.6 first set in 1903 by Michigan's Archie Hahn. It also matched the American college record for the 220 around a bend by Marquette's Ralph Metcalfe in 1933.

Whitfield Wins

Wisconsin was a close third with 36 points, followed by Indiana, co-favorite with Minnesota, and Illinois, tied for fourth at 35 each; Michigan, 14; Purdue, 11¾; Northwestern, 5¾; and Iowa three fourths of a point.

Peters, who also retained his 100-yard dash crown, and Ohio State's Mal Whitfield were the meet's only double winners. Whitfield, Olympic 800-meter champion, easily recaptured his 440 title and added the 880 championship by outlasting Wisconsin's Don Gehrmann.

Gehrmann, however, retained his mile title with a nonchalant 4:17.9 triumph. A fourth repeater was Northwestern's Jim Holland in the broad jump.

Two returning champions were dethroned, Lou Irons of Illinois in the high jump, won by Illini teammate Dike Eddleman, and Minnesota's Harry Cooper in the pole vault, taken by Wisconsin's Tom Bennett.

The Gophers, 1948 N.C.A.A. champions, grabbed only two firsts—Fred Brass in the 120 high hurdles, and Lee Hofacre in the 220 lows—but they had five second places.

Ohio State took four firsts, including the mile relay and Bill Miller's upset of Minnesota's favored Byrl Thompson in the discus, besides Whitfield's double triumph.

Irish Trio Wins No-Hit Game, 12-0

South Bend, Ind., May 21 (AP).—Three Notre Dame pitchers put together a no-hit no-run ball game today to defeat the Pensacola (Fla.) Naval Air Station, 12-0.

Bob Nemes, Dick Smullen and Tony Lipton each tossed three innings for the Irish. Notre Dame rapped out eight runs in four innings off Cadet starter Stuart Alton.

W-L High Crew Wins In Regatta

Philadelphia, May 21.—Washington and Lee High's eight-oar crew from Arlington, Va., upset all the advance dope to win the championship race in the twenty-fifth annual Stotesbury Cup Regatta on the Schuylkill River here today.

W. and L. led most of the distance in covering the mile course in 5 minutes 31 and 2/5 seconds to win the Stotesbury Cup and succeed La Salle High of Philadelphia as titleholder. George Washington High of Alexandria was a close second, a length and a quarter behind.

West Catholic of Philadelphia was third and Lower Merion (Pa.), fourth.

W. and L.'s victorious crew was composed of Kado Beacham at bow, Bill Hoffman, 2; Mike Miller, 3; Foster Smith, 4; Bruce Bauer, 5; Paul Yager, 6; Roger Scott, 7; Sparhawk, and Dick McCombs as coxswain. In the qualifying spins yesterday, W. and L. was second to George Washington, but today the tables were turned.

George Washington raced with Lew Bell at bow, Ronald Montcastle, 2; Lou Whitestone, 3; Bobby Douglas, 4; Dick Bolton, 5; Billy Bennett, 6; Ralph Phillips, 7; John Hayes, stroke, and Guerdon Trueblood, stroke.

Both George Washington and Washington and Lee encountered misfortune in the junior varsity eight-oared contest which was won by West Catholic of Philadelphia in 5 minutes 31 and 3/5 seconds.

G. W. Moves Up to Fourth

The Arlington school finished third, a length and a half behind the winning west crew and half a length to the rear of LaSalle. But the Virginians were disqualified for rowing through the wrong arch of the bridge at the quarter mile mark.

As a result, George Washington, which finished fourth, moved up to third. The Alexandria outfit was dogged with ill luck soon after the race opened when stroke Bobby Silverstein broke an oar and his boat had to stop temporarily. G. W. was ahead at the time.

George Washington won its qualifying heat yesterday in a clocking seven seconds faster than that recorded by West Catholic in winning the final. The crew was composed of Bob Hill, bow; Willard Overholzer, 2; Stan Hillyer, 3; George Gross, 4; Dick Vogel, 5; Bruce Crumb, 6; Bob Hamlet, 7; Silverstein, and Ed Underhill, coxswain.

Washington and Lee used Jud Methias, Bow; Arnold Sommer, 2; Milt Irvine, 3; Hulon Warlick, 4; Wes Dalby, 5; George Swenson, 6; John Barton, 7; Buddy Virts, stroke, and Bernie Morse, coxswain.

Thomas Quits As Manager Of Orioles

Baltimore, May 21 (AP).—Tommy Thomas resigned today as field manager of the International League Baltimore Orioles, a post he held since 1939, but he will stay with the club.

Thomas made his resignation effective immediately. He will confine his Oriole duties to the front office as general manager and vice president.

Jack Dunn 3d, 27-year-old president, announced he will take over Thomas' field duties temporarily. The youthful baseball executive, who will become sole owner of the Orioles in three years, emphasized he expected to be manager for only a couple of days until a replacement is obtained.

Thomas, who just five years ago piloted the Orioles to championship of the Little World Series, quit under growing pressure from Baltimore fans.

"I decided on this move in the interests of all concerned," Thomas said. "And I include the players themselves in this. They have been under terrific pressure because of the way things have been going.

"They have been trying hard to shake themselves loose from their losing streak. In fact, they have been trying so hard they are all tightened up."

The losing streak referred to was a disastrous road trip just ended in which the Orioles lost 12 out of 16.

Bobby Jones Sets Mile Mark In Virginia High Track Meet

Williamsburg, Va., May 21 (AP).—George Washington High's Bobby Jones broke the mile record today, but by his failure to appear in the half-mile cost Washington-Lee of Arlington the State track title.

Despite a heavily bandaged left leg, and a headwind, Jones ran the mile in 4:26.5. He was favored to win the half-mile too, but withdrew. Phil Levy of Newport News won the race, and gave the State title to his school, which scored 29½ points. W-L took second with 27½.

Jones' 1-mile performance was his best this year and was only 4.8 seconds off the national scholastic record, held by Lou Zamperini. The old State mark was 4:33.3 set in 1936 by Fred Hardy of John Marshall High of Richmond. Jones set the State half-mile record last year.

Hampton, the surprise leader in Friday's opening events, wound up third with 24. Other totals: Maury of Norfolk, 21; Thomas Jefferson of Richmond, 11; Warwick, 10½; George Washington, 8½; John Marshall, 4; E. C. Glass of Lynchburg and Wilson of Portsmouth, 3 each, and Granby of Norfolk, 1. Hopewell and Lane failed to score.

Warwick's Bill Vaughn scored all of his team's 10½ points to take the individual scoring leadership honors. He won the discus, placed third in the 100 and 220 dashes, and tied for third in the broad jump.

The only record smashed besides the mile was the high jump. Newport News' Doug Mitchell cleared 6 feet 2⅝ inches yesterday to break a 13-year-old mark.

Top Ten Listed

Ted Williams Rated Game's Brightest Star

By Joe Reichler

New York, May 21 (AP).—Who are the top ten baseball athletes today?

Before you start considering names bear in mind these requirements.

1. His achievements this season.
2. His past performances.
3. His future prospect.

Candidates for the top ten must pass all three requirements to qualify.

For instance, Joe DiMaggio and Bob Feller have accomplished probably the top feats of any active player today. However, the future of both is clouded.

Feller, nursing an ailing back, has done next to nothing this year. DiMaggio, plagued by an aching right heel, has done no playing at all this year.

Therefore, as great as these two fine athletes have been, they must be discounted. Had Bob and Joe been in tip top shape this season, they easily would have qualified high among the big ten.

Almost in the same category is Dixie Walker, a splendid performer in his day, but now relegated to pinch hitting and occasional full-time duty.

This corner's top 10 selection is as follows:

1. Ted Williams. 2. Stan Musial. 3. Lou Boudreau. 4. Hal Newhouser. 5. Vern Stephens. 6. Johnny Mize. 7. Tommy Henrich. 8. Luke Appling. 9. Johnny Sain. 10. Ralph Kiner.

Honorable mention goes to George Kell, Joe Gordon, Dom DiMaggio, Pee Wee Reese, Bob Lemon, Marty Marion, Jackie Robinson, Enos Slaughter, Harry Brecheen, Phil Cavarretta, Bobby Doerr, Alvin Dark, Ralph Branca, Larry Doby, Vic Raschi, Johnny Pesky and Bob Elliott.

Williams is the No. 1 player today. He is the greatest hitter in the game. His lifetime average over a seven-year span is a cool .354, third highest among the all-time greats. He is enjoying another fine season, being high up among the leaders in batting, home runs and runs batted in. He is only 30 years old and should have many more outstanding seasons ahead of him.

Musial, another super hitter, is off to a slow start. But it is only a question of time when he will snap out of his slump. Three-time National League batting champion, Stan owns a gaudy .348 lifetime mark, and is only 28 years old.

Lou Ranks with Best

Boudreau ranks with the greatest shortstops of all time. Holder of many fielding records, the playing pilot of the Cleveland Indians enjoyed his greatest batting season last year, and was voted the American League's most valuable player. At 31, he is in prime with several more fine years ahead.

Newhouser, winner of 20 or more games in four of his last five seasons, appears headed for another great year. Only 28, Hal has a chance to win more games than any lefthander ever won before. He already has racked up 152 victories before the start of this season. Eddie Plank holds the record with 324.

Stephens is one of the greatest clutch hitters in the game. He topped even Williams with 137 runs batted in last year and swatted 29 home runs. He leads the American League in the home run department. More than half of his 29 home runs came in crucial spots to win games. He has driven in at least 80 runs in seven of his nine seasons. This looks like it might be his best. He is only 27.

The Mighty Mize

Mize might have seen his best days as some profess, but the slugging first baseman of the New York Giants still is one of the most feared batsmen in the game. His fielding might leave something to be desired, but he more than makes up for that deficiency with the dynamite he carries in his bat. His 306 home runs (through games of Thursday) is tops among the actives. At 36, he still could have two or three good years ahead of him.

With Joe DiMaggio ailing and Charlie Keller gone, Henrich becomes the strong man of the Yankees. Pushed in the shadows by DiMag's tremendous performance last year, Henrich has risen to the top among the big stars this year with his fine all-around work this season. Of the Yankees' 18 victories, Henrich was personally responsible for nine of them.

Appling is the greybeard of the squad. Although 40 years old, he still is regarded as one of the best shortstops in the American League. Age apparently hasn't slowed him up. A Veteran of 19 big league seasons, 15 of which he's topped .300, Luke still is hovering around the .300 mark. He's already hit as many home runs as in 12 of his 18 previous years. And he can still go and get 'em. He owns the most hits of any active player, and has a lifetime batting average of .312.

Sain, 30-year-old tobacco-chewing righthander of the Boston Braves, is working on his fourth straight 20 or more game-winning season, he topped both leagues with 24 triumphs last year. He is regarded by many as the best righthander in baseball today.

Kiner has been in the big leagues three years, and each year he either led or was tied for the National League lead in home runs. He hit 23 in '47, 51 in '48 and 40 last year. Many experts believe he has the brightest chance of any to tie or better Babe Ruth's home run record of 60. A .350 hitter at present with seven home runs, the 26-year-old Pittsburgh outfielder is the youngest of the big 10—and faces perhaps the brightest future.

Hoya Trackmen Honor Hardell, Ex-Track Coach

Georgetown's track squad celebrated yesterday's victory over Virginia in unique fashion—and it made Hap Hardell a mighty happy man.

The Hoyas surprised their former coach (Hardell resigned recently after a disagreement with school authorities over their failure to have the track in shape for his men) with a farewell banquet at the Old European Restaurant on Wisconsin ave.

He was preesnted with a trophy inscribed: "To Hap Hardell, a great coach and a greater gentleman."

Hardell, overwhelmed by he whole thing, stammered his appreciation. Hap said, "It's been a privilege to have coached you and I'll follow you all in the newspapers until the last man has graduated . . . best of luck."

The Colorado Buffaloes pulled a surprise in finishing second with 88 4/9 points. Nebraska, the indoor champion, was third with 71 8/9 points.

The only meet record went to Bill Carroll of Oklahoma, who cleared the pole vault bar at 14 feet 1 inch. That event was one of four held indoors because of the wet infield, however, and it took a vote of the coaches to allow the record. The old mark of 14 feet 5/8 inch was set by Harold Hunt, Nebraska, in 1942.

DRUM POINT BEACH
Beats Anything You've Ever Seen
Now that's a strong statement; but let's review some of the many features of DRUM POINT BEACH. Miles and miles of white sandy beaches that offer the finest bathing and swimming facilities on the Bay. The Patuxent River, famous for fishing, boasting some of the most abundant waters in the East and offering points of interest to every sportsman. Between these two great bodies of water—the Chesapeake Bay and the Patuxent River, which runs into the Bay—lie some of the choicest lots and cottage sites ever developed, beautifully wooded, generously proportioned, offering the kind of living discriminating and ambitious people dream of, yet surprisingly low priced. And let's not forget those 4 lovely fresh-water lakes that are dispersed like gems in the midst of this land of enchantment. Yet all these features are just starters—there are so many wonderful things about DRUM POINT BEACH you'll be discovering them for many a day. We have just opened a new cottage section, where good-sized lots are now available for as low as $295 (70'x145'). Can you imagine that? A large cottage site at Washington's largest and most spectacular beach for as little as $295! No wonder more families are choosing DRUM POINT BEACH as their summer home and vacation land. You will, too, once you see it. How about coming out—this very weekend? Within easy commuting distance from Washington. Directions are simple: Out Bladensburg rd. to Peace Cross, bear right on Landover rd. (Route 202), through Largo and Upper Marlboro to Wells Corner (on Route 4), right on 416 through Prince Frederick (on Route 2) for 15 miles, left at the DRUM POINT BEACH sign. Also, you can write or phone for free, descriptive booklet! DRUM POINT CORPORATION, owners-developers. Calvert Realty Agency, 220 Southern Building. REpublic 8438.

THE SERVICE SET

By Norma Lanum

A 6-MONTH-OLD Army junior was the center of the social spotlight yesterday. He's Anthony Drexel Biddle, jr., and his christening party given by Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Vernon Pritchard, was attended by well-wishers from all sections of Washington officialdom, the diplomatic colony and "old guard" society.

Maj. Gen. Luther B. Miller, Chief of Army Chaplains, christened the son of Col. and Mrs. "Tony" Biddle at 4:30 p. m. in the Chapel at Fort Myer. Mrs. Pritchard is the baby's godmother and General Pritchard "stood on" for godfather Lieut. Gen. Clarence Huebner, who is acting military governor of Germany. Pennsylvania's former Senator Joseph F. Guffey is the other godfather.

Bouquets of roses decorated the Pritchards' Fort Myer quarters for the party following the ceremony. Among the guests who came from out of town were Colonel Biddle's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. T. Markoe Robertson of New York; the colonel's stepdaughter and her husband, Prince and Princess Alexander Hohenlohe, and also the colonel's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Livingston L. Biddle 2d, of Syosset, Long Island.

Mrs. William Douglas Atkinson, Mrs. Biddle's mother, was there, too. She is en route to her Canada home after spending the winter in California.

The Biddles and Pritchards became fast friends in Germany while both officers were serving on Gen. Lucius Clay's staff. The two families were neighbors in Falkenstein, a small mountain suburb of Frankfurt.

"Tony" Biddle, who earlier set a diplomatic record when he served simultaneously as Ambassador and Minister to seven foreign governments in exile in London during the war, met and married his wife in Germany in 1946. She was Mrs. Margaret Atkinson Loughborough then, working on the staff of UNRRA.

The Biddles returned to the States in September, a month before Tony, jr., was born. The baby's christening dress, incidentally, was a

Miss Betty Wilkes was maid of honor for her sister and Miss Elizabeth Wilkes, cousin of the bride; Miss Jane Hix and Miss Hortense Head of York, Pa., were bridesmaids.

Best man was Donald Baker and ushers were Jack Henry, jr., Allen McPherson and Charles Sures.

The Rev. Dr. Roleif H. Brooks and the Rev. Dr. Arthur Lee Kinsolving officiated at the ceremony, which was followed by a small reception at the Cosmopolitan Club.

The bride wore her grandmother's gown of ivory satin trimmed in heirloom duchesse and rosepoint lace. Her tulle veil was also edged in the lace and she carried a bouquet of white lilacs and roses. Miss Katherine Talcott was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Miss Nina Buzby of Chestnut Hill, Pa., cousin of the bride; Miss Joan Herndon, Miss Betsy Newbold, Miss Anne Perkins, Miss Elizabeth Pitt and Miss Anne Sheffield.

New Furniture, Silver Manuals Will Interest the Homemaker

IF YOU'VE lots of energy, old furniture, and room for improvement in your surroundings, here's a book that will interest you. Called "Upholstering Home Furniture," it is written by Blanche Romick Pope and published by the Manual Arts Press, Peoria, Ill.

A former teacher of upholstery classes, Mrs. Pope starts with such fundamentals as the tools and materials needed for various repair keep these down to simple essentials that can be readily used in the home, tells how to make some of the equipment yourself.

Principally by describing specific projects, she gives what amounts to a series of upholstery lessons. Making a child's padded chair from an apple box (no orange crates, please!) is the first transformation described, but the lessons continue all the way through upholstering a davenport. Installing and tying springs, stretching webbing, making edge rolls and pads, constructing cushions, and many other operations are described, including the making of the wooden frames for simple basic furniture.

Besides upholstery directions, there's information about refinishing wood, making slip covers and protectors, styling draperies, and making curtains. The care and cleaning of upholstery and some basic pointers on furniture arrangement are also included.

ANTIQUE collectors, both amateur and professional, will find the new edition of Arthur Hayden's "Chats on Old Silver" an absorbing book. Published by A. A. Wyn, Inc., New York, and edited by Cyril G. E. Bunt, this is a revision of a book by Mr. Hayden first brought out in Great Britain over 20 years ago. It deals with English silver almost entirely, though there are chapters on Irish and Scotch silver and brief reference to early American work.

Mr. Hayden goes back six centuries to the time when "hallmarks" first came into use to certify that silverplate had been assayed at London and contained as much silver as the coin of the realm or better. Other towns were soon assaying and stamping plate, too, Mr. Hayden relates, so hallmarks on old silver give us a guide today to the place the piece was assayed.

Handsome pictures of ecclesiastical plate, standing cups, beakers, salt cellars, punchbowls, spoons, candlesticks, and other pieces are included, along with much descriptive and historical material. Pieces made in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries predominate. Mr. Hayden sees these antiques as products of fine craftsmanship, destined for real use in their own day. He visualizes them as having been an intimate part of someone's daily life, hence his book has a warmth and aliveness quite apart from dusty antiquarianism.

Career Girl's Practice of Staying Up With Out-of-Town Beaux Until Dawn, When at Home For Visits, Causes Conflict With Her Mother

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: This is my first appeal to any "outsider," but I have been wanting to write you for a long while. The problem is my daughter, Betty, 25, a fine girl in many ways, but I don't approve of her late hours.

Betty is a career girl, living away from home, and she visits us during vacations, and for holidays and week-ends through the year. Betty's friends are out-of-town visitors, and two in particular stay at our house, although both have sisters in this vicinity.

If Betty gets here Friday night, the first man—who also sees her once a week in the city where she works—will be here Saturday noon and Betty gives him all her time from then until 4 or 5 a.m. Sunday. They may go out to dinner, a nightclub or a movie, or they may just stay home, talking and necking; but it's always dawn before they part.

Girl Indignantly Defends 'Friends'

THEN SUNDAY the second man arrives and it's the same story—home or out, their date ends at home and lasts until dawn. This has been going on for a year; and I get angry and tell her it is cheapening, but she says I am Victorian and ignores my comments.

When we first complained, Betty called it an insult to all of them, said her friends were decent people and if we objected she would never come home. But I have reached a point where I think I am doing wrong to put up with it; and I'd like to have your idea of the correct hours to say "goodnight," either as a caller or overnight guest.

Incidentally, the second man has asked Betty to marry him, but she likes her work and makes more money than either man can hope to make years from now. K. C.

Situation Suggests Girl Lacks Friends

DEAR K. C.: You say "Betty's friends are out-of-town visitors," and then describe two rather furtive-acting fellows, who make your home a rendezvous for lengthy stints of necking with her.

This vignette, combined with Betty's touchy defensiveness about their behavior and her indulgence of it, suggests that the poor girl actually has no friends at all, and is trying to put a brave face on the matter and make-believe she is loved and popular.

If she were normally social, with an average showing of friends, she would have some friends of both sexes in her home town or wherever she lived; also a healthful interest in mingling with friends on a group basis during a large part of her leisure. And as an outgrowth of normally friendly association, she would have developed a repertory of favored recreations—say bowling, picnicking and skating; or riding, golf and sailing, for instance.

Morbid Element in Girl's Dates

THE FACT that Betty's dates are a fixed routine of going to dinner or night club or movie, or just staying home, and always an exclusive twosome, with talking and necking the chief "pastime," seems pitiful evidence that she grew up a stranger to normal extrovert good times, and that she is a victim of loneliness, inferiority feelings and the predatory male who preys on her sort.

Certainly there is a morbid character to dates which continue under your roof until dawn, habitually; and I endorse your feeling that it's "wrong" of you to tolerate the practice, even grudgingly. You would be wholly within your rights, and acting wholesomely besides, if you were to barge in, wrapper-clad, around 1 a.m., instruct the nightowls to "break it up," and stick around until they've separated for the night.

In my opinion, a caller or an overnight guest should have the civility not to loiter in anybody's parlor after 1 a.m. at the very latest, if a twosome is the most company present. M. H.

Red Cross Sets Baby Festival

Mme. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, Ambassador of India, and Mrs. Ernestine Gilbreth Carey, coauthor of the current best seller, "Cheaper by the Dozen," will be guests of honor at the baby festival to be held from 3 to 4:30 p. m. at Walsh House next Wednesday, under sponsorship of the District Red Cross Nursing Service.

WHEN THE sky is blue and the evening balmy, there's nothing quite like dinner in the garden. Flowers from the borders fill a bowl for the glass-topped table, with its gayly striped mats. Dinner is brought from the nearby kitchen for serving in this peaceful Georgetown backyard

MAYBE YOU haven't a pool like this in your own backyard, but the lightweight aluminum furniture will add comfort and beauty to your particular summer scene. The deeply cushioned club chairs, umbrella table, director's chairs and chaise longue were fashioned by Deeco

Free-Wheeling Barbecues

Gay Furniture Enhances Fun of 'Backyard' Eating

By Lucia Brown

YOU CAN eat out this summer and never leave home—and you probably will, if you're like most of the rest of America:

You'll cook, entertain, sew, knit, and of course, soak up the sun—all in your own backyard.

Family after family has been swept from the house to terraced garden, spacious lawn, or pocket-sized yard during recent years by the trend toward outdoor living. They're finding real relaxation, new variety, and joie de vivre under the sun, or stars, and amid cool evening breezes.

If you're one of that small minority that hasn't yet joined the exodus, get to work on that grass plot behind the house. When it's well clipped and curried, move out some pretty garden furniture, find yourself a barbecue outfit—portable or nonportable—, fix up a corner all their own for the kids, and get ready for some real outdoor living.

Furniture Plentiful

Beautiful furniture and other worthwhile gadgets for this purpose have never been more plentiful than this year. The gay-looking, but durable, furniture comes in steel, wood, cast iron, rattan and aluminum, as well as some more unusual materials.

Tubular steel pieces, with metal, canvas or wooden seats, are the most widely sold—most inexpensive, too, which has a lot to do with it. Gliders, chaises longues, chairs and tables in this material are light, more comfortable and stronger than ever before. You can also find plenty of good bargains in all-wood furniture. If you buy attractive unpainted pieces, you can have a lot of fun decorating them up to suit yourself.

Wrought-iron and rattan come a bit higher, but they're mighty good looking. The wrought-iron is a far cry from those heavy, ornate pieces that sat around near the "summer house" in grandmother's, or great-grandmother's, day. They're delicate and lacy looking, with slender, clean lines but very strong. Tables usually have glass tops, through which curlicues and flowers show intriguingly. The iron is painted in all colors, from antique Pompelian green to white and bright cerise.

Rattan Has New Look

This year's rattan chairs aren't anything like those lyre-backed behemoths that set the summer stage on old-fashioned hotel porches either. They're modern in spirit, neat and smooth looking, with comfortable, washable upholstery.

Washable upholstery materials—principally plastics—are one of the brightest spots in the summer furniture picture. No need worrying about the pup's muddy feet with them around. The youngsters can even get reckless with the bread and jam. It'll all come out with a quick washing.

The war made a yard bird of aluminum. Light and weather-resistant, it became economically practical for use in outdoor furniture through the development of wartime production facilities. Before the war, it was made in such low quantities that it was far too expensive for mass use in furniture. The end of hostilities, though, found it down in price and up in quality, bright and strong and ready for use in garden-furniture making.

One of the most interesting aluminum pieces we have seen is a folding picnic table. It's on sale here in Washington. Two handsome pieces of aluminum are hinged together in the middle, have legs that stow away inside when it's folded and with a handle for carrying.

Barbecues add so much to outdoor living, it's too bad not to have one if you can possibly manage it. You can find plenty of instruc-

RATTAN FURNITURE with good lines and gay upholstery can turn your back porch into a summer living room. Electric outlets make it possible to have lamps on the table for reading purposes and wire screening will keep you safe from insect marauders. The furniture shown here is upholstered in sailcloth in a floral pattern, available at Lansburgh's

WHITE CORD, wrapped tightly around a tubular steel frame, was used to fashion this strikingly modern "sun chaise." The low table beside it has a heavy glass top, with a shelf below made of the tightly wrapped cord. The furniture was designed in California by Hendrick Van Keppel and Taylor Green, is available in Washington through Richmond Bradshaw

Mrs. Garfield Kass, chairman, Washington area of the women's division, United Jewish Appeal, is planning the group's $100 minimum pledge luncheon to be held Tuesday

Gift Luncheon Tuesday to Aid UJA Campaign

The women's division of the United Jewish Appeal will intensify its current fund drive with a $100 minimum gift-pledge luncheon Tuesday, May 24, 12:30 p. m., at the Mayflower Hotel. Purpose of the event is to help meet the $300,000 quota pledged by the Washington and Metropolitan Division.

Mrs. Eliahu Elath, wife of the Ambassador from Israel, and Mrs. Felix Frankfurter, wife of the Associate Supreme Court Justice, will be guests of honor.

Principal speaker will be Miss Valeria Stone, writer, lecturer and staff member of the Information Division of the United Nations. Miss Stone has returned recently from Europe, where she made a six-month survey of the needs of the Jewish people. Her analysis of the role of Jewish women now is being compiled in a book.

Aid to DP's

Mrs. Garfield Kass, general chairman of the women's division, UJA, points out that the 1949 United Jewish Appeal requires a minimum of 250 million dollars for its program of emptying the Jewish DP camps in Europe and sending 250,000 homeless Jews into Israel and approximately 25,000 into the United States.

"UJA also must provide funds for relief and reconstruction in the Jewish communities of eastern and western Europe plus aid to large sections of the 100,000 Jews in North Africa," explained Mrs. Kass.

The chairman, in issuing a call to the luncheon, emphasized that pledges could be paid in installments in convenient amounts. She told how many of last year's pledges were paid by real sacrifice on the part of many donors.

Heading the committees on the luncheon are Mrs. Kass, chairman; Mrs. Raphael Tourover, chairman, steering committee; Mrs. Samuel Dessoff, chairman, office administration; Mrs. Lester Neuman, chairman of publicity; Mrs. Samuel M. Dodek, chairman of the speakers bureau; Mrs. Alexander Hassan and Mrs. Cecil Kaufmann, cochairmen of special gifts; Mrs. David Bazelon and Mrs. Benjamin Manchester, cochairmen of hostesses; Mrs. Allie Freed and Mrs. Frankfurter, cochairmen of reception; Mrs. Irving Berger, chairman of ushers, and Mrs. Alvin Newmyer, sr., chairman of arrangements.

A Place to Dig

Children love to dig. It's hard to know just why, but the fact remains that they do. In the city parks, signs have to be posted to remind parents that digging is not allowed. If there's an unpaved spot on a playground, you can be sure youngsters will be digging in it. Even in the earliest years digging in the sand at the beach or in the sandbox is fascinating.

Even though you are able to provide your youngsters with the latest in toys, you'll be "letting him down" unless there is a place where he can dig. City living makes digging difficult, but for the youngest an indoor sandbox, lined oilcloth and flanked by easily swept-up linoleum (or even newspapers), is possible. And if you are fortunate enough to have a back yard of your own, put appearance aside and let the children have at least a corner where they can dig as they wish.

Go even further. Allow them to use water in their play. Mudholes are messy, but they're fun. And mud washes off play clothes without too much trouble.

Capitol Has Own Heat Wave, Attributed to John Kennedy

By Genevieve Reynolds

CURRENT emotional heat wave on Capitol Hill is attributed to bachelor Representative John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts. Seems as if all the unmarried Hill secretaries and other woman employes peek their heads around corridors and have heart palpitations when word spreads that the young lawmaker is approaching.

But the son of the former Ambassador to the Court of St. James's assiduously dodges them with an inimitable Irish grin and sticks to his legislative duties.

Serving on the Education and Labor Committee plus the District of Columbia Committee keeps youthful John close to the work bench. It was he who led the House fight against the D. C. sales tax. He opposed the tax because he believed that it would work a hardship on the people least able to pay tax.

His rugged schedule of work leaves little time for partying but he does manage to put in an occasional appearance at Mrs. George Mesta's galas.

For the most part, however, the cosmopolitan, world-traveled John lives quietly in Georgetown with his sister Eunice, who is currently studying drama at Catholic University.

Luckily Eunice and John have an "out of this world" housekeeper who has been with the Kennedy family for many years. Even so, the lightish-brown-haired, grey-eyed Representative likes to putter around the kitchen, concocting original dishes.

Whistling Team

IF perchance you should walk by the Congressional Club or Naval Hospital in Bethesda and hear the expertly whistled strains of "There's a Rose That Grows in Flanders Field," odds are 10 to 1 that the performer will be Mrs. David H. Kincheloe. The wife of a retired United States Custom Court Judge and former congressional spouse, she appears frequently on the club programs.

Kentucky-born Mrs. Kincheloe flouts that old saw, "A Whistling Woman and a Crowing Hen Shall Never Come to a Good End." She whistles professionally, as a hobby, so to speak. During World War I, she gave musical programs at many Army camps. Throughout World War II, she and her daughter Imogene, wife of Lieut. Comdr. James H. Davis. U.S.N., did their stint at veterans hospitals. Armed with a pint size piano they invaded the wards of the Naval Hospital to cheer the boys up with whistling and songs. Now they continue their mother-daughter act at Walter Reed and Fort Belvoir as well as the Naval Hospital. They are top attractions whether it be a Red Cross or Congressional Club party. Their shows always end up in a spirited jamboree with the audience, be it boys or Senators, whistling together and whistling for more.

Child Prodigy

GENE DAVIS was a professional singer and tap dancer before her marriage. And her mother Mrs. Kincheloe, who did the Redpath Chautauqua circuit for two years, probably has outperformed "Oklahoma" with her whistling and piano playing. As a matter of fact Mrs. K. can't remember when she didn't whistle and she began playing the piano at the age of 4. Later she studied at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music.

The mother-daughter team probably will be split soon when Commander Davis returns to sea duty. Meantime, the musical team not only entertains congressional lawmakers and their wives plus hospitalized service men but builds international good will among the Latin American contingent in town.

CONSERVE THE COLD. Keep door closed as much as possible. Assemble several foods and put in at one time. Let warm foods cool before storing. After quick-freezing set control to normal promptly.

CLEANING IS EASY. After defrosting, wash cooling units, trays, shelves with a solution of baking soda in warm water. Rinse. Dry. Never use harsh cleansers on inside or outside enamel. Mild soap and water keeps it spic-and-span.

CUBA'S national holiday was marked at the embassy with a quiet reception for the Cuban colony last Friday. A large gathering was out of the question, due to President Dutra's visit in Washington. Now President Dutra is being feted in New York, and more celebrations are claiming the attention of Washington. TOWN TOPICS

If you're looking for Undersecretary of Commerce and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, these days, chances are you'll find them cruising down the river. Their fishing boat is berthed at the Corinthian Yacht Club and they're spending every spare minute aboard.

Mme. Pandit, new Ambassador of India who made her debut at her first official party at the Pakistan Embassy on Monday afternoon, says emphatically that she'll be no "partying envoy." "I have too much work to do, and I find in addition that part of my job is lecturing. When I was in Moscow they were beginning to work on my schedule here." Meanwhile her first speaking engagement is in New York on Tuesday when she addresses members of the India League. Later she'll go to Boston and Los Angeles.

In town to see her mother, Mrs. O. H. Perry Johnson, who is ill, is "Puddy" Highleyman of La Jolla, Calif. She was at the party Monday given by Mrs. Robert Waggaman for Mrs. Katharine Highleyman, an old friend of Marion Waggaman's mother, Mrs. Ralph Worthington. Mrs. Highleyman, who is on her way from Florida to Princeton, N. J., stopped off for a few days here, staying first at the Sulgrave Club, then moving to Georgetown to visit Sir Willmott and Lady Lewis.

Mrs. Thomas Cowell's son, Dick, a young man about New York, has an idyllic few months ahead. He and the Marquess of Milford-Haven have taken a villa at Cannes for the summer and after that Dick will fly around the world.

A house with a garden, tennis courts and a swimming pool has fallen right into the laps of Fred and Gretchen Witt, now in far-away Johannesburg. The Witts sailed on a hush-hush mission for South Africa in April to be gone a year or more. Their good fortune was the result of a British family going home for indefinite leave and turning over their house fully equipped, even to servants, to Mr. and Mrs. Witt who'll move in this week.

Summer Outdoor Living

tions around—in books, magazines, or through building supply firms—to help you construct a barbecue pit with brick, stone or tile. Easier to obtain and fine for moving around are portable barbecues. You can shift positions with the sun and the wind if you have one of these. At one local store, we found them for prices ranging from $1.98 to $22. The stores sell charcoal briquettes to use in them. The $1.98 kind are little low jobs, just a basket for holding the charcoal and a grill on top. But there are very elaborate ones on the market, with wheels for pushing about, trays, extra broiling racks and all sorts of fancy equipment.

In the kids' department, you'll find a wide variety of yard apparatus to bring joy to the young in heart. A wading pool is one item, made of waterproof material with a standing spray attachment. There are small tents shaped like Indian teepees, with red Indian silhouettes on the walls, and others with mosquito netting sides that look as though they came straight out of "South Pacific." Brightly painted sandboxes with striped sheltering umbrellas are a de luxe edition of the grubby, old-fashioned type. Short feet keep them off the ground.

Plastics Prevail

Small equipment, for use either in the backyard or at picnics farther afield, comes in fascinating variety. Plastics prevail here, too, with divided plates, cups grooved on the bottom so that they fit on the plates, and all sorts of other eating supplies made of this material. Picnic baskets range from plain split baskets, with hinged tops, for $1.98, to fancy wicker ones filled with much equipment for $30 or more.

An auto picnic tray is a nice addition to the outdoor family. It's like the ones they use at drive-ins, but fastens so that you can eat from it as you sit in the car. It also has little legs, so that it can be used for individual service as you sit around on the grass at a backyard buffet supper or on a picnic.

Lucker, treasurer. Also Mrs. L. H. La Vigne, Mrs. Gilbert Dawkins, Miss Molly Adamson, Miss Dorothy Hodgson, Robert Cook and Allan Ross, members of the board of governors.

The new president has just completed three consecutive one-year terms as president of the Pan American Liaison Committee of Women's Organizations and is now a member of that board. Prior to that she was president of the Women's City Club for three years. In various capacities she also has served in other organizations.

The Canadian Club of Washington, which promotes good fellowship among Canadians and former residents of Canada now residing in Washington and fosters friendly relations between people of Canada and the United States, requires that a president be Canadian-born. Mrs. Lucker came here originally to further her study of music but married a citizen of the United States and thus became one herself.

Although three days in advance of the national holiday in the Dominion, the luncheon was also a Victoria Day celebration with the decorations carrying out the theme.

New Cabinets for Old Houses

How to make a number of cabinets which will improve the storage and work space in an old, inconvenient kitchen is described in a new bulletin issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. "Easy-to-Build Kitchen Cabinets for the Remodeled Farmhouse," is the title.

Cabinets are pictured and explained for food preparation and clearing, storage, utility, utility and food storage combined, chore clothes, as well as a wall cabinet, combination serving cabinet and wood box, and a serving cabinet to stand beside a gas or electric stove. Selected units can be grouped, or built individually between the doors and windows that so often break up wall space in an old-fashioned kitchen.

How To Remove Rain Spots

Please tell me how you can get rain spots out of silk dresses. I have two with large flowers and the rain spots seem to show up terribly in the plain part of the dresses. Sending them to the cleaners has not eliminated the spots. R. C. K.

Because of the type of finish applied to some fabrics in the manufacturing process, it is not possible to remove water spots from all materials. However, try this: scratch the spots with the finger nail or stiff brush. Or, rub them between the hands. If you see no improvement with this method, dampen the entire material evenly by sponging with a dampened cloth and press from the wrong wide while still damp. Have the sponging cloth only damp to avoid getting some areas damper than others. Another way to dampen evenly would be to press the fabrics with one of the heavy commercial pressing cloths over it. When these cloths are dampened and pressed with an iron, only the steam will go through the cloth and reach the fabric. The cloths can be purchased at notion counters and the nationally known sewing machine centers which also teach sewing.

I have eight yards of silk brocade and would like to put it away for several years. Would you tell me how I can do so? Also, five yards of pure white silk and a fine hand embroidered pinya cloth bag. We have silver fish in our house and I wonder if they would attack this material? Or stuffed toys? I have a number of them that I would like to store for a few years. H. S.

Silver fish do sometimes attack this kind of material and you are wise to guard against them when preparing the fabrics for storage. To do it prepare them in this way: wrap the two pieces of silk and bag separately in several thicknesses of navy blue or black tissue paper which is made especially for storing fabrics. Wrap the tissue wrapped packages in a heavy brown paper or moisture proof paper. Now, select a box with a tight fitting lid in which to store the packages. Before placing the wrapped silks into the box, spray the interior with 5 per cent DDT solution. Line the box with several thicknesses of newspaper and place the wrapped fabric in it, covering with several more layers of newspapers. Sprinkle top of newspapers with a cup or more of napthalene flakes and put on the lid. Tie shut and place the box in a dry, cool storage.

Before storing, the stuffed toys should be thoroughly cleaned and aired and then prepared for storage the same way as described above. The napthalene flakes will also protect from moths in case the toys are stuffed with wool.

Can wood side walls be wallpapered? The wood isn't varnished. A. J. F.

Yes, wood walls can be papered if a glue sizing is first applied to them. Commercial glue size can be purchased at paint or wallpaper stores or you can make it yourself by dissolving 1½ pounds of chip glue in a gallon of water. Apply to the walls with a brush. If there are any cracks in the wood, these should be taped over before sizing with a glue backed tape available at wallpaper stores for this and similar purposes.

We must make a trip cross country with our two children ages 5 and 1 year. This will involve living out of a suitcase for about a month. It is not practical for us to take the play pen. Do you have any suggestions for accommodations to let the baby sleep and play in the car and while visiting? B. R. D.

You can give your baby the most play freedom and sleeping comfort in the car by doing this: Build up the floor area between the back seat and front seat until it is level with the back seat. For this you can use luggage not needed each night or other supplies to which you do not need access except on long stops. The area when built up and including the back seat will give you room to lay your crib mattress flat. For the baby's play hours, a dark, washable cover or a plastic play pen cover could be placed over the mattress to keep it clean. This will give the baby ample space to move about when she is awake or to lie down comfortably for a nap. The 5-year-old can take turns sitting in the front seat with you and playing in the back section with the baby.

At night, the mattress can be taken indoors and placed on a heavy layer of newspapers on the floor in a corner of your bedroom. Of course, it should be placed away from drafts. By placing it on the floor you will eliminate the possibility of the baby falling off of a regular bed. If you wish, you can lay straight-backed chairs on their sides along the open sides of the mattress to keep baby on it.

It would probably be wise to inclose the mattress in a plastic casing which zips shut to keep it in good condition on the trip.

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON: SUNDAY, MAY 22, 1949

Joseph J. Schlosser, architect

This attractive, compact bungalow is one of 33 to be built in Montgomery Knolls, Silver Spring, according to Philip B. Key, realtor. Priced at $15,000, the dwellings are built on a concrete slab foundation, have 3 bedrooms, 1½ baths, many "extras" in kitchen equipment. A sample home is expected to be completed in three weeks

This is the floor plan of the Key home at left. Basic plan is similar to that used in Luria Bros. home above, with several minor variations. Plan is similar to one published last year by the Assocated Press which attracted over 700 inquiries from readers wanting further details

Bungalow Styles Regain Popularity With Home Buyers

By Conrad P. Harness

THE bungalow is coming into its own again.

For a long time the convenient center hall, 2-story plan or 1½-story expansible Cape Cod was kingpin in Washington building circles. Both still are popular, but the bungalow will give stiff competition this summer as new models are completed by Washington area builders.

Two of the best bungalows unveiled so far are rising in the new Hollin Hills subdivision, 3 miles south of Alexandria, Va., on Fort Hunt rd. Charles M. Goodman, one of the country's most promising home designers, has executed some superb contemporary homes for wooded, hillside sites.

There are two models: $10,950, which gives the buyer three bedrooms and bath; a larger home at $16,500 has three levels, three bedrooms, a bath. The lower level has a 25-foot car shelter below the large living room. Behind the shelter and entrance hall is a utility room for laundry and storage.

Each home is situated on a large lot for best architectural effects. Goodman has made extensive use of floor-to-ceiling window areas to "bring the outdoors inside." The homes are the last word locally in functional, modern design.

Charge Building Fee

THE builders, Tauxemont Development Corp., operate on a unique system. Homes are built to order on selected sites. Instead of a speculative sales price, the firm charges a flat building fee of $1000 on the smaller home, $1500 on the larger.

The firm's brochure describing the building plan says the fee is less than 10 per cent and also covers architectural fees. The prices quoted here are estimates by the company, and include the lots. Goodman said construction costs so far are within the estimates and he predicted homes will be finished at the estimated sales prices. Over 50 orders to reproduce the sample homes have been taken.

Two other local projects of bungalows, although located in different States, are somewhat similar in basic floor plans. Philip B. Key, head of Key Realty Co., of Silver Spring, Md., reported his firm are agents for 33 new bungalows under way in Montgomery Knolls, Silver Spring.

Of the popular basementless concrete-slab foundation construction, the dwellings are to have smart, attractive exteriors of brick. The floor plan has a 20 by 18 combination living and dining room with fireplace, 1½ baths, three bedrooms, kitchen and utility room.

Occupancy in 6 Weeks

KEY SAID the homes will sell for $15,500 with the following kitchen equipment: garbage disposal unit, automatic dishwasher, ventilating fan, range, electric refrigerator and ample cabinets.

A large picture window in the living-dining room looks into the street. The bedroom portion of the residence is set back enough at the street side for a large built-in flower box area. A screened porch is at the rear.

Occupancy of the Key homes is planned for July 1. A sample home under way at 10000 Patton dr. is expected to be ready in about three weeks. The project is located on Bladensburg rd., three blocks north of Piney Branch rd.

The first section of Montgomery Knolls consisted of 77 homes, all sold, with bungalows and 2-story homes in the $16,950 to $25,000 price range.

A project of 35 homes in North Arlington by Luria Bros. utilizes a floor plan somewhat similar to the Montgomery Knolls homes.

Basic design of the Luria house was suggested from a floor plan in the Associated Press' "Homes for Americans" series, published in The Washington Post. The plan was an instant success in every city where it was published. The original architect reported over 700 inquiries from readers for further information on the design.

The basementless home is built off the ground, with an insulated "crawl" space between the ground and floor, has three bedrooms and bath, sells for $14,000 to $15,500 depending on the lot size, elevation, how much equipment is wanted and whether or not a garage is desired.

The homes are in the Garden City area, off Florida st. and Lee hwy., at Granada, Greenbrier and 25th rd. N. The first home is expected to be ready in four to six weeks, according to Gerald Luria.

For Lower Incomes

THESE three projects are only a sampling of the trend toward bungalows and rambler-type construction under way in practically every section of the Greater Washington area.

Next Saturday at District Heights, Md., the Home Builders Association is expected to unwrap its 1949 version of the "economy home." Two "guinea pig" dwellings have been erected, a one-bedroom expansible and a two-bedroom home.

If the public and mortgage bankers accept the home, the association hopes its members will build them by the hundreds all over town to satisfy the demand for homes under $10,000.

Prices of the model homes have not been announced, but they are expected to be from $7200 to $8200. Further details will be carried in next Sunday's Washington Post.

Makes Rooms Lighter

Painting walls in light tints makes rooms lighter by reflecting more of the light that falls upon them.

Pollin Firm to Build 18 New Homes Soon

An 18-home project will be launched shortly by M. Pollin & Sons in the 6300 block of Kansas ave. and North Capitol st., and from 16 to 30 Sheridan st. nw. Dwellings will be semidetached, two-story and basement, of brick and cinder block construction, measuring 16 by 34 feet each.

Home Week Here to Begin September 11

The city's organized home builders yesterday announced dates for their second annual "National Home Week." Scores of homes will be open for inspection and visitors are invited to view building operations and techniques during the dates September 11-17.

FREEMAN

More than 40 homes were thrown open for public view last year during the observance. The purpose of the "week" is to show the public the progress made by the home building industry. Builders hope to create better public understanding of housing problems through talks, demonstrations and displays.

Carl M. Freeman, Maryland builder, has been named chairman of the 1949 National Home Week Committee by William S. Banks, president of the Home Builders Association, sponsor.

Freeman has constructed many homes in nearby Prince Georges County, Md., during the last three years. His "California Cottage" has been cited by Architectural Forum, American Home and Practical Builder magazines.

Woodside Forest to Get 6 More 2-Story Homes

Early erection of six more homes in Woodside Forest, Silver Spring, Md., is planned by Gruver Construction Co. Dwellings will be two-story and basement style, of brick veneer construction. Subbids are being taken.

Hillmead Building Program to Continue

The construction program now under way in the Hillmead section of Bethesda, Md., will be continued with building of four homes by Cooley Bros., builders and developers. Dwellings will be one and one-half story with basement, of brick construction.

Stuyvesant Town Sets Mark For New York Skyline Revision

By David G. Bareuther

Associated Press Real Estate Reporter

NEW YORK, May 21.—Manhattan's skyline is getting its biggest face-lifting job since the skyscraper building boom of the 1920s.

More big building jobs have been undertaken since the war on the crowded Island of Manhattan than were launched in a similar period preceding the war.

Although no towers are challenging the record height of the Empire State Building, structures are spreading out, embracing superblocks for their sites, and filling up gaps and valleys in the island's much-pictured profile.

For example, 18 city blocks, formerly devoted largely to slums, are now occupied by the apartment houses and gardens of Stuyvesant Town—35 structures, each 14 stories in height, spaced widely to leave playgrounds and lawns.

Largest of the postwar housing projects, this more or less sets the pattern for 14 other big residential projects scattered over the island.

Just north of Stuyvesant Town rise 21 apartment buildings of 15 stories each, comprising Peter Cooper Village. These communities, along with Riverton and its seven 14-story buildings in Harlem, were sponsored by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

Other major housing operations, undertaken by the New York City Housing Authority, range from 7 to 16 buildings each, with most of them 14 stories high. Thousands of families are housed in these projects.

Steel work for the new 40-story capitol of the United Nations now is rising on the East River north of 42d st. Several tall new office buildings have been added to the midtown skyline. The Battery-Brooklyn tunnel is nearing completion, and various other important improvements are being made.

Approximately 417 million dollars of building contracts were awarded in Manhattan during 1946, 1947 and 1948, according to the F. W. Dodge Corp., construction statisticians. Ten years ago, building contracts in Manhattan had totaled 135 million dollars, for the years 1936, 1937 and 1938.

Another interesting comparison of the present building boom with activity in past three-year periods, is afforded by the Dow Service's compilation of building plans filed. In the past three years they totaled 292 million dollars for Manhattan. From 1936 through 1938 they had aggregated 139 million dollars. In the skyscraper era of 1926 through 1928 the total had been $912,500,000. But many of the buildings planned in the 1920s were never built. Speculators frequently filed plans merely to call attention to the property and make a resale.

However, Myron Matthews, vice president of the Dow Service Building Reports, points out that dollar volume of construction activity today in New York does not tell a true story of the physical volume of new building. The change of value in the building dollar, he says, means that approximately half as much is being built today as might have been built for the same amount of money before the war.

Farm Real Estate Increases 8 Pct. In Value in Year

Farm real estate in the United States increased an additional 8 per cent in value during the last year, according to the 1949 Britannica Book of the Year. The Nation's total farmland value was about double what it had been in 1940, the new publication shows.

"However," the yearbook adds, "the boom was moving at a slower rate, giving some indication that the peak has been reached. The situation was not uniform from one part of the United States to another—the Great Plains States gained 15 per cent or more during 1948, whereas California and Florida declined.

"Comparison with the previous peak prices of 1920 shows that the West North Central area in 1948 was only about 75 per cent as high as after World War I, whereas the East South Central and the Pacific areas were about one third higher than at the earlier period. Though most purchases included a large cash payment, mortgage debt also increased."

Two Houses Built in a Day

Rochester, N. Y., May 21.—At 8 a. m. trucks backed up to the site and unloaded the first prefabricated panels, and a 14-man crew went to work on two prefab homes. By nightfall the walls were complete, floors were laid, windows and doors were in, and the roofs were on.

Both houses have four rooms. One has an attic which can be finished into two rooms, and an unfinished basement. The other house is a one-story bungalow, without cellar or attic.

While the project is an experiment conducted by the manufacturer to determine th construction costs, it is expected that they will sell in the $7500 range.

Labor At Site Put At Third of Cost of New Home

Labor costs at the building site accounted for about a third of total house-construction costs in 1946-47, according to an article in the current Monthly Labor Review, published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The survey was based on 1760 homes begun during 1946-47 in 18 industrial areas. Two thirds of the units were single family homes, the rest multi-family apartments.

The survey found the ratio of site payroll to total construction cost was highest on the cheaper housing, and tended to decline as the average construction cost increased. For the single-family homes studied, payrolls constituted 40.7 per cent of costs for units averaging under $5000 compared with 32.5 per cent between $5000 and $10,000 and 30.7 per cent for homes costing $10,000 and up.

The number of man-hours required to build the average house increased with the size and cost of the structure. Single-family homes costing under $5000, with an average of 755 square feet in floor space area, required 1150 man-hours a unit for construction.

For dwellings costing over $10,000, the average floor area was 1165 square feet and man-hours averaged 2190 a house.

Homebuyers' Guide

A NODDING acquaintance with a few simple rules of good construction may save the person planning to buy or build a new house in 1949 many a headache a few years hence, the United States Savings and Loan League advised today.

"It's no trick at all for anyone to spot a poorly built house five years after it has gone up," said the league. "The problem of the new home buyer is to recognize some of the signs of good and bad building when the house is under construction."

The league maintains it doesn't require an expert with technical experience to glimpse some of these signs. It said many construction points—good and bad—can be found easily by the average home seeker. Here are some things to watch for:

1. CARPENTRY WORK. Skilled craftsmanship will be indicated by smoothly finished and properly fitted floors and woodwork, including baseboards, window frames and doors. There will be no rough edges apparent anywhere or gaps between the baseboard and plaster wall.

2. BASEMENT CONSTRUCTION. Normally a basement of sturdy character will have a cement floor spread over a heavy waterproof fabric and several inches of gravel. Otherwise there is a chance of "settling" and dampness. The home buyer should keep an eye out for roughly finished or irregular basement floors, cracks and leaks.

3. PLASTERING. A good job of plastering will leave no rough surfaces or uneven ridges which are susceptible to cracking. In two-story homes, an inspection of first floor ceilings is usually a safe guide to the performance of the plastering application.

4. ELECTRICAL INSTALLATIONS. All wiring should be concealed. The wise home planner also will decide beforehand where and how electrical outlets and light switches will be located. Use of inexpensive materials and a lack of care in the installation of electrical equipment are extremely hazardous.

"While these are some construction points apt to be most obvious to the eyes of the home seeker," said the league, "such things as the durability of hardware fixtures—hinges, locks and doorknobs—also can be judged by the home seeker. The cheap ones will be tarnished and chipped before the house is ready to be moved into."

Is there any difference in the type of construction work in incorporated areas as compared with unincorporated? Said the league:

"Normally, the buyer of a new home in an incorporated area runs little risk of encountering poor construction work because of housing code standards which have been established locally. On the other hand, many unincorporated areas usually will not have such standards.

"In these instances, the alert home buyer will make sure he is dealing with a competent, recognized builder who is known for satisfactory work."

Interior Designers Now Using Floors as Basic Part of Plan

INTERIOR designers now use the floor as a basic part of home design because the floor helps determine whether a room appears large or small, over-furnished or under-furnished, interesting or drab, lively or dull. The desired effect is attained by the use of floor colors and patterns.

In today's small home, too much furniture creates a space problem. Even in a large house, over-furnishing makes rooms stuffy; yet no room should appear barren and bleak. In either a large or small room, the floor can give an impression of well-filled space without cramming the room with chairs and tables.

Small rooms appear larger with cream, light buff, pale shades of red, gray, green or blue. The reverse is true in large rooms where dark floor colors and large patterns should predominate. With the great variety of colors now available, asphalt tile has become extremely popular with interior designers because of its color and pattern possibilities.

A long, narrow room is given more pleasing proportions by laying the flooring in contrasting, harmonizing stripes diagonally or straight across the narrow dimension. These stripes are formed either by the tiles themselves or by narrow stripes of the material 1 or 2 inches wide.

Banish Barren Look

Traffic flow in an entrance hall calls for a minimum amount of furniture, so designers avoid a barren look by installing the flooring in a light and dark checkboard patterm. Cleverly planneddesigned with contrasting borders of geometrical shapes will coordinate other rooms with their furnishings and create a specific atmosphere for each area.

Designers are especially insistent that the floor be in tune with the furnishings. With modern blond or bleached furniture, a smart color treatment is achieved with a black, dark brown, or dark green floor, accented with narrow white diagonal stripes 3 or 4 feet apart. Dark, heavy furniture calls for pastel tones in the floor.

Whether a home be of modern or period design, the floor is used to enhance the effect. In an early American colonial setting, a floor composed of strips of asphalt tiles laid in random lengths of buff and light brown will create the effect of early-day wide plank flooring and blend harmoniously with the period furnishings. In a Georgian home, plain, unpatterned floors set off the ornate furniture, fit the Georgian tradition. Light taupe, beige or other neutral tones are most effective.

Separates Room Areas

With today's trend toward open planning, eliminating partitions and devoting separate areas of the resulting over-sized room to varied uses, it is a growing practice to divide these areas by floor design. Dining space is set off by a broad stripe across that part of the living-room, or by flooring the entire dining area with a harmonious, contrasting color. Narrow stripes forming pleasing borders or patterns will mark off a corner for study or desk work.

Heightened interest and an atmosphere to match the wood and uses of each room is a goal of interior designers. Here again they rely on the floor, devoting especial attention to the kitchen, child's room, man's den, rereation room and other specialized use areas.

Kitchen whiteness is overcome with pure, strong wall colors and asphalt tile flooring in bright, contrasting color. Highly interesting effects are created by placing floor tiles here and there which carry pictorial representations of vegetables, utensils like a pitcher or tea kettle, spoon and fork, or perhaps a little aproned chef waving a fork and knife.

Pictorial tiles also are used in other rooms; clown faces, animals, birds and baby ducks for nursery or child's room; game fish and birds, playing cards, top hat and walking stick for a man's den; compass, anchors, boats for the room of the man or boy with nautical tastes; musical notes and clefs for the musician or music room; ivy leaves and fruits for dining area; shuffleboard court, letters and numerals for the recreation room.

Codes Hamper Economy Housing

As an example of how building codes often increase construction costs, the Housing and Home Finance Agency cites the following:

In an eastern city, a builder proposed to use gyplap and plywood sheathing in construction of a group of lower-priced homes. The code specified wood sheathing. The increase in cost was $60 per unit.

Home Hints

DON'T be afraid to wash your automatic blanket before you store it for the summer. Soap and water will not hurt the wiring or affect the blanket's operation. Moths can do much more damage to the fabric if it is put away dirty.

According to the General Electric Consumers Institute, automatic blankets can be washed just as safely in an agitator-type wringer washer as by hand.

Here's the way to do it:

Pick a day that is clear, mildly warm and gently breezy. (Indoor drying is not recommended by the Consumers Institute because blankets require air circulation to dry properly.) The blanket should be measured and shaken to remove clinging lint, and the bedside control detached.

Use Lukewarm Water

Dissolve three or four cups of mild soap flakes in one quart of very hot water and add the solution to a tub of lukewarm (not more than 100 degees F.) water. If the water is hard, use a water softener.

First, gently rub badly soiled areas with a handful of the suds. If the binding is very dirty, wash it too before putting the blanket in the washer.

Handle the blanket gently and don't permit snarling or twisting during the washing period. Never wash more than one blanket, or any other pieces, at the same time. Wash only for 1½ minutes—don't allow the blanket to soak. If washing by hand, squeeze the suds through the blanket—do not rub. A rubber plunger used carefully will help work in the suds in a hand operation.

To remove excess water, squeeze gently but firmly lengthwise along the blanket. If hand-washed, rinse twice; rinse only once for 1½ minutes in a washing machine.

Stretch It as It Dries

Hang the blanket in the shade, lengthwise over one clothesline, or two parallel lines about 15 inches apart, and wrap old sheets around the clothesline to prevent line marks. To retain the original dimensions of the blanket and keep the wires straight, stretch the fabric as it dries, and turn it several times for even drying. (Never dry an automatic blanket in a tumbler-type clothes dryer.)

When the blanket is dry, brush it carefully, in one direction, with a clean, soft brush to raise the nap. For a smooth, satiny finish, press the binding with an iron set at low temperature. Use a pressing cloth for best results.

Store the blanket proper in a tightly sealed box, packed with about one-half pound of naphthalene moth balls or flakes. Pack the control box and attached cord separately.

The Institute says that homemakers who cannot wash their automatic blankets at home may send them to a reliable commercial laundry. All such laundries have exact instructions for proper handling of the blankets, and some make a summer specialty of the job.

Baked Finishes

Baking at elevated temperatures improves certain types of coatings used on metal articles, such as automobiles and refrigerators. Baking may be done in an oven, under infra-red lamps, or by induction heating. Governing factors are the demands of shape, space, and other requirements.

INTERESTING 18th CENTURY HOME AND GOING FARM MAY BE PURCHASED IN WHOLE OR IN PART

Buildings consist of a charming remodeled main residence, completely modern, containing three large bedrooms, two baths, living room, dining room, paneled study, unusually large kitchen containing laundry tubs in the center, over 30 feet of counter and cupboard space, electric dishwasher and over 25 cu. ft. of frozen food locker space which go with the house. Two-car garage, overhead doors, and dark room make up the master residence. Oil heat, 1000 gal. tank, Taco heater for winter-summer hot water supply. Five fireplaces.

One tenant house with five rooms and bath, another four-room house. BARNS.

The main residence and all farm buildings are located 1500' back on the farms' own private road, lined by young trees, and look over the entire countryside affording an unobstructed view of the mountains. In fact the situation is unbelievable and must be seen to realize that such a situation could exist just 35 minutes from town.

The farm, consisting of 215 acres on a high elevation located ¾ of a mile from Centerville, via double lane highway exactly 22 miles, or 35 minutes from either bridge without breaking the speed limits. 60 of the 215 acres are in woods and the balance in lush pasture, only a few acres in cultivation. It is hard to believe but true that there is absolutely no red clay on the entire farm, the soil being composed of five different types of sandy loam, almost black when wet. Bluegrass, orchard grass, perennial rye grass, red and white clover, lespedeza, ladino clover and alfalfa abound. Growing grains include barley, rye, oats, combine milo and experimental 2 acres corn plot, shooting for 200 bus. an acre. The fields are fenced and cross fenced with all fences being new. Water is aplenty and available to all fields plus a small pond fed by springs which is stocked with bass and ready for fishing next spring. Water is also piped to all buildings by two separate electric water systems and two wells, one a standby system.

Bad Coupon Turned Into Big Business

By Lawrence N. Eldred

CHICAGO, May 21 (AP).—Because a housewife chased a door-to-door salesman with a broom nearly 50 years ago, a business is grossing more than 150 million dollars a year in sales today.

The firm is the Jewel Tea Co., Inc., currently observing its fiftieth anniversary. It is the world's largest door-to-door salesman with 1876 home service routes in 43 States. It also has a chain of 154 retail food stores.

Yet when it started in 1899 it consisted only of one man, $700 and a horse and wagon.

The man was Frank V. Skiff, son of a Newton (Iowa) grocer. He had arrived in Chicago some time before and went to work for a wagon route company, then decided to go into the business for himself.

There were many similar companies at the time, all selling coffee, tea, spices and extracts on a door-to-door basis and giving premium coupons as business stimulators. When enough coupons had been saved, the housewife had her choice of such items as a skillet, coffee pot or china. Competition for customers was keen.

Gave Prizes First

IN 1901 Skiff's brother-in-law, Frank Ross, bought into the business as a partner. They took turns driving the delivery wagon and soliciting new business.

One day when Ross was seeking new customers he went to the kitchen door of a woman who lived near the Chicago stockyards. Hardly had he stated his business before she grabbed the broom but he did manage to ask what was disturbing her.

It turned out that she had saved coupons for six months, buying coffee and tea from a wagon man and expecting to cash in her coupons for a rug. Then he stopped coming around. Ross saw her point and quick wittedly offered her a premium with the first order, she to pay with coupons from later trade.

The idea took hold. It was the one thing which set the struggling new company apart and made it prosper. It was named "Jewel" because in the colloquialism of the time, anything considered superior was a jewel, whether a sunset, horse, girl—or tea company.

In 1903 the partners incorporated. They had six routes, expanding to 12 the next year, and spreading to nearby towns of Michigan City, Ind., and Kankakee and Kewanee, Ill. Annual sales were $250,000.

Made Own Coffee

IN 1906 the company entered the food manufacturing field, starting with baking powder. Two years later the company began roasting all its own coffee.

By 1915 there were 850 routes and business ran to eight million dollars annually. Routes spread to New England, the Rocky Mountain States, and the West Coast. Coffee roasting plants were leased in New Orleans and San Francisco. Sales reached 15 million dollars in 1917.

But World War I nearly ruined Jewel. Hundreds of Jewel men enlisted. New manpower could not be trained properly and rapidly enough to handle the routes. Wives and sisters, even children served the routes.

After much surgery the company in 1921 showed the first profit in several years.

In March, 1932, Jewel stepped into the retail food store field. It had more than 800,000 route customers in some 6000 communities but these were located in rural or small residential areas. The stores would open up big-city apartment areas to the company.

As it now stands Jewel has 6618 stockholders, 5715 employes, and 1,008,000 home service customers—all record highs. It has 129 products in the regular grocery line on its routes, and offers 185 different premiums.

20,000 Readers Planned This House

By David G. Bareuther
A. P. Real Estate Reporter

HERE'S A HOUSE designed by 20,000 newspaper readers. Their preferences were translated into this composite plan by Walter T. Anricha, architect, 617 Forest st., Ann Arbor, Mich. This plan 736 covers 1204 square feet without garage. It can be built with or without an expansion attic. Garage and service room can be added as a later addition for economy

IF PEOPLE could have exactly the house they want, they would abandon all frills in order to get the greatest amount of living space at the most economical cost.

This is indictaed by requests made by more than 20,000 newspaper readers in all parts of the United States and some foreign countries.

Their letters were sent to Walter T. Anicka, Ann Arbor, Mich., architect, who planned the house shown here incorporating the main desires expressed by the readers.

The demand for a two-car garage was especially noticeable, even if half of it would be used for Junior's bike and skis, the lawn mower and other storage purposes.

A paramount preference among the 20,000 letter writers was to live on the outskirts of a town, or in the suburbs, where they could have a large lot, or a few acres. They expressed the want of space for gardens and space for children to play off the street.

In living space, a sizable living room was put above everything else. A fireplace was invariably specified and ample closet space, such as that provided by a storage wall, was asked for.

The dining "L" off the living room won by a wide margin over the separate dining room. This modern development in design affords ample area for the immediate family and is easily expandible for occasional larger groups.

The size of bedrooms ran secondary to usable wall space, and shallow, wide closets were favored over narrow, deep closets.

Most families indicated they want a breakfast alcove in the kitchen, where a good share of ordinary meals can be served.

Another marked preference is for a laundry adjoining the kitchen and convenient to the outdoors, rather than in the basement.

A strong desire for some convenience in outdoor living also is apparent, with outdoor grills and terraces requested.

Expansibility for future needs seems to be a must. Although extra rooms may not be completed at the present time because of costs, they must be planned for in the majority of cases.

Simplicity of construction and the use of standard building materials predominated in the consensus. Asphalt roofing won wide favor with varieties of colors in demand. Wood siding and painted cinder or concrete block were chosen for exterior finishes.

Basements outranked basementless plans, with heater rooms, hobby shops and recreation rooms asked for.

Picture windows facing the garden won a big vote among the 20,000 suggestions.

Plenty of Fuel Oil Predicted

New York, May 21.—Home owners and industrial consumers alike were given fresh assurance today on the availability of fuel oil supplies next winter.

The American Petroleum Insitute, in a brief statement, pointed to the industry's multi-billion-dollar expansion program and its record of service and performance as the basic reasons why consumers may be assured of a continued supply of fuel oil in the 1949-50 heating season, regardless of the severity of the weather.

Most Builders to Be in Low-Priced Field

Chicago, Ill, May 14.—Real estate editors of the Nation's leading newspapers estimate that 38 per cent of all the home builders in the country will be producing low-priced homes before the nd of he year, according to the magazine, Director's Digest. In some parts of the country the principal builders are already working on so-called "economy homes."

Thin Steel Is Prospect To Reduce Home Costs

By Howard W. Blakeslee
Associated Press Science Editor

ITHACA, N. Y., May 21 (AP).—Thin steel is a new prospect to reduce the cost of homes.

This new stuff is sheet steel that comes out of rolling mills in mile-long lengths. It is easy to bend and form it into box-like shapes that are strong, yet light in weight.

The machine that does this is a steel sheet press brake. It is as easy as stamping letters for the mail, but the variety of forms is almost endless. The sheets acquire channels, dents, bumps, square-corner bends. They imitate quite a bit of the alphabet, in Ts, Ws, Es, Hs and so on.

All this adds up to just one thing—steel that is pliable enough to bend with your hands is formed into shapes that are rigid and almost unbreakable.

Instead of nails, your builder uses an electric welding torch. He spot welds, and that takes no longer than driving a nail—often less time.

The new building projects are described in the Cornell Engineer, a college publication, by Prof. George Winter, who is making thousands of tests of the new steel techniques.

"Most of us," Prof. Winter writes, "still live in hand-made wooden buildings of a type that has not changed, fundamentally, for centuries.

"Residential and commercial construction is way behind the general growth and rise of the living standards of the Nation."

The new steel forms, he said, are useful for roofs, walls and floors. An example of floors and roofs is the press box of the Los Angeles Coliseum, made of long flat boxes of thin steel.

There have been two handicaps, Professor Winter says. One is building codes.

"Old rules of design," he explains, "did not apply to these new members; building codes made no provisions for them; the building officials, State and Federal, refused to approve them unless sound design and practice were established."

The second handicap was lack of experience with these new structures. If incorrectly handled, Professor Winter says, they may warp, twist and buckle.

To find out how to build with thin steel, Professor Winter's department was commissioned by the American Iron and Steel Institute to do the research. Thousands of experiments were done, also mathematics almost without end. The result is a manual issued by the institute covering the more common shapes and how to use them.

In 1948 about 60 million square feet of thin steel roofs were sold and about 8 million square feet of floors. Professor Winter says that up to the present year shortages of steel interfered with rolling larger quantities of the lightweight stuff.

Marked Upturn Shown by April Home Building

Home building activity in Washington and over the Nation moved sharply upward last month, with 86,000 units started, not counting farm houses, the Bureau of Labor Statistics has reported. The gain of 24,000 units, or 39 per cent over the March estimate, was 13,400 under the number started in April, 1948, when homebuilding was approaching the highest monthly rate on record.

The BLS estimate of 244,000 new homes and apartments started so far this year is 35,000, or 13 per cent under the same period of 1948.

Included in the 1949 first quarter total are 13,600 publicly financed units, the majority of which were initiated by State and local public housing authorities. For the same period of 1948, publicly financed housing totaled 3700 units.

Requirements Rigid For Paint Finishes

Special product finishes are developed by the scientists of the finishes and paint industry to meet the specific requirements of the object to be coated. A wooden salad bowl, for instance, calls for a finish that is water clear and that is not affected by vinegar, alcohol, oil, fat, grease, hot or cold water, soap suds, household alkalis, etc. It must also be tough, scratch-proof and mar-proof.

New Canvas From Old With Mildew Coating

Faded awnings and terrace umbrellas can be renewed with a colorful coating made especially for the purpose. If the canvas is still in good condition, you can keep it that way by applying a clear coating of the same product. This coating, incidentally, contains a mildew killer which preserves the canvas from rot and mildew. It keeps the canvas from stiffening, makes it water repellent and sun resistant.

Non-Housing Construction On Upgrade

Philadelphia, May 21.—A spectacular increase in contracts awarded for nonresidential building and public works marked construction trends in the Middle Atlantic States last month, according to F. W. Dodge Corp., construction statisticians.

Nonresidential awards in April were $58,765,000, an increase of 73 per cent over March and 50 per cent over April of last year.

The increases were general in commercial, manufacturing, public, religious, social and recreational buildings. The General Accounting Office building to be erected in Washington, D. C., at a cost of $21,635,500, was a big factor in the upward trend.

Home Building Drops

For the first four months of 1949 nonresidential building contracts were 12 per cent higher than a year ago.

Residential building awards last month amounted to $35,584,000, a 15 per cent gain over March and a 34 per cent drop from April of last year. During the month single-family houses built on owners' orders for their own occupancy sustained the mounting level reported in the first quarter, the volume being 15 per cent higher than in April a year ago.

During the first four months residential awards were $110,571,000 or 36 per cent less than in the same period last year.

Drop Is 9 Per Cent

Awards for all building and engineering projects in the first four months amounted to $387,444,000, a 9 per cent drop. Public-account awards for all classifications increased 42 per cent from $109,725,000 in the first four months of last year to $155,596,000 in the first four months of this year.

At the same time private-account contract volume dropped 28 per cent from $277,719,000 to 98,699,000. In the four months, public-account work represented 41 per cent of nonresidential awards, 4 per cent of residential awards and 94 per cent of awards for public works and utilities projects.

Amish Upheld on Schooling

Somerset, Pa., May 21 (AP).—The right of four Amish farmers to keep their children busy "tilling the soil" instead of going to school has been upheld in Somerset County Court.

President Judge Norman T. Boose, in his ruling, said enforcement of Pennsylvania's compulsory school attendance law was "an abridgement and infringement of their constitutional rights of religious liberty and conscience."

The four Amishmen were jailed and fined last fall for keeping five of their children out of a public school.

1000-Mile Pipeline to Get Going in Arabia

The American plan to lay one of the world's big oil pipelines across a thousand miles of the wild Arabian peninsula became a going project yesterday after 19 months of doubt.

Tapline (the Trans-Arabian Pipe Line Company) is expected to announce within a few days that its 200-million-dollar program, virtually suspended since the fall of 1947, will go into operation immediately as the result of an agreement with Syria's new strong man, Col. Husni Zayim. The agreement was ratified Monday.

Construction Contracts Show Big Increase

New York, May 21 (AP).—Engineering construction contracts awarded this week totaled $157,773,000, compared with $130,991,0000 in the previous week and $82,728,000 a year ago, Engineering-News Record reported today.

Product Previews

Washington might as well face it. A new fad is here—the radio hat. One glance at the device in operation and we're told teen agers hit up the old man for $7.95. For this they get a complete two-tube radio set built into a durable, waterproof pith sun helmet. "Wear your radio wherever you go"—so help us! You perch the hat on your head, fold an earphone down over your ear, attach a wire to a small pocket battery, and tune in Arthur Godfrey. A guy in Brooklyn invented it, naturally. This reporter tried one on. As this is written we're typing to the tune of "Tico Tico." Not bad, either. Available at Sun Radio.

A system to provide hot water on instant notice has been marketed, termed the "Gas-Mizer." Push-buttons located at every hot water tap set the system in operation. When the needed quantity of water is heated, an automatic control turns it off. No gas is used to heat a quantity of surplus water which must then be left to cool off. Available locally from Electronic Controls Co., Arlington, Va.

A "walking typewriter" that prints on any size paper has been patented, according to National Patent Council. It types on the table holding it rather than on the conventional platen. Supported on spherical rollers, the machine moves over the stationary paper or other flat surface upon which the imprint is desired.

Holland's Building Tops Estimates

Home construction in Holland during 1948 totaled 36,391 units, the Netherlands Information Bureau has reported. Original estimates for the year had been based on 30,000 units.

The bureau said ECA help made the increase possible, through larger imports of lumber, cement and other building materials. The present building rate must be increased to at least 60,000 annually to solve the housing problem, it was reported. (About 95,000 units were wrecked during the war, with 150,000 units lost because of the standstill of building activities.

Support Your Tomatoes Soon After Planting

Trimming and tying of tomato plants should start almost as soon as the plants are set in the garden. Some follow the excellent practice of setting the supports before the plants are set. In any case the work of removing side shoots and tying the stems to the supports should have regular attention at least once each week.

Let's Get Down to Earth!

Grow Sweet Potatoes in Summer, Eat in Winter Months

By James H. Beattie

BECAUSE of its easy culture and high food value, the sweet potato is an attractive addition to the garden. Many of the larger gardens here have almost ideal conditions for sweet potato culture and one or two rows will usually produce all the average family can consume during fall and winter. Contrary to general belief, the tuber-roots may be stored and kept in prime condition for several months.

The climate here produces heavy yields, but because of their love for warmth, the plants should not be set in the garden until the soil and air are warm. The middle to the 20th of May is regarded as a favorable planting period here. If deferred much after this time the yields are likely to be sharply reduced.

Dust or spray your garden plants before insects damage them

Starting Sweet Potatoes

THOSE who grow sweet potatoes regularly usually have hotbed facilities for production of the plants or "draws." An electrically heated bed with thermostatic control is very well adapted to the purpose. Sufficient plants for a home garden planting may be easily produced by using one or two medium-sized wooden boxes 5 or 6 inches deep filled with clean sand and placed near the basement heater until the sprouts come up, after which they should be moved to a location where they will receive plenty of sunshine.

A glassed-in porch, a bay window, or an outdoor coldframe usually supplies such conditions. Eight to 10 pounds of medium-sized sweet potatoes covered about two inches deep in clean sand, without touching each other, will usually produce an abundance of plants for two or three 100-foot rows.

The seedstock should be bedded about six weeks before garden planting time or about the first of April. Most gardeners find it more convenient to purchase the plants from dealers or local growers.

Planting in the Garden

LIGHT-TEXTURED soil, preferably sandy soil of moderate depth and fertility is best adapted to this vegetable. Very fertile land is liable to cause an excessive growth of vines at the expense of yield. Deep soils usually result in the formation of long, irregular, rooty sweet potatoes and such soil should be avoided.

The usual growing method consists in marking the location of the rows, opening a small furrow or trench with a wheel hoe or the garden tractor, spreading three to five pounds of potato fertilizer or some other mixture containing a large proportion of potash in each 100-foot row and mixing it thoroughly with the soil.

A ridge 20 to 24 inches wide at the bottom and about eight inches high is then thrown up over the fertilizer, leveled off on top to a width of about 10 inches and the plants set in a straight line spacing about a foot apart. Sweet potato rows should be four to 4½ feet apart.

Unless the soil is quite moist at planting time, a half-pint of water should be poured around the roots of each plant as it is being planted. If the weather is very hot at planting time the plants should be protected from the sun for a day or two. Tree branches, a foot or two long with heavy foliage stuck into the ground along each row on the south side of the plants make an ideal protection.

Kinds of Sweet Potatoes

Preference should determine the choice between dry, medium moist, and moist fleshed (yam) varieties.

Dry-fleshed (yam) varieties: Yellow Jersey, Big Stem Jersey.

Medium moist: Maryland Golden.

Moist-fleshed: Nancy Hall, Porto Rico.

Plants are easily obtained from dealers.

Cultivation Is Simple

SURFACE stirring of the soil for the control of weeds is all required. The garden tractor, the hand wheel hoe and the ordinary garden hoe may all be employed during the early stages of the growth of the plants. After the vines cover the ground, hand hoe culture alone is recommended. The vines may be lifted and laid back on the row to prevent their interfering with other nearby crops but they should not be pruned.

Careful Harvesting

IN THIS locality sweet potatoes usually continue to grow and develop until the vines are killed by frost. They should be removed from the soil at about the time that frost occurs and before the ground has become chilled. Extreme care should be exercised to avoid cutting or bruising the tuber-roots during digging, handling and sorting.

Throwing the sweet potatoes into piles or into the baskets or boxes and pouring from one container to another or in fact anything that breaks the skin or bruises the specimens will seriously impair the keeping qualities. Harvesting on a sunshiny day when the soil is sufficiently dry so that it does not stick to the sweet potatoes is desirable.

Storage of the Crop

CAREFUL harvesting and handling are the most important factors in the keeping of sweet potatoes. If this work is properly done the storage problem is greatly simplified. "Curing" for 8 to 10 days at a temperature of about 85 degrees F, followed by storage at 50 to 55 degrees F, accompanied by a fairly high moisture condition in the air, are the main requirements.

Curing may be done by placing the containers on a shelf near the heater. A corner of the basement often has suitable conditions for storage after curing. Sweet potatoes keep best with a fairly high moisture supply otherwise shriveling is likely to occur. By wrapping the containers with paper, a piece of canvas or a blanket sudden fluctuations in temperature and humidity may be avoided.

Garden Notes

ARTISTIC arrangements will vie for attention with specimen blooms at the Woodridge Garden Club's Spring and Rose Show, Tuesday night at Sherwood Hall, 22d st. and Rhode Island ave. ne.

Over 80 classes provide for collections, specimen blooms of many types, rose arrangements, peonies and other flowers. Entries are welcomed from nonmembers.

Weed control in the garden is not difficult if the work is undertaken while the weeds are in the small seedling stage. Frequent, very light surface shaving of the soil with a sharp hoe or a wheel hoe fitted with sweeps will keep the weeds under control with a minimum of effort.

Garden peas are making a wonderful growth and tall growing kinds need some form of support to keep them off the ground. Short pieces of brush stuck into the ground near the row is a simple and effective method. A trellis of chicken netting supported by stakes is equally effective. Convenience in harvesting and lessened danger of bird damage are practical benefits given by these practices.

Climate, Taxes, Cheap Land, Boom Bahama Real Estate

By Etienne Dupuch

NASSAU, BAHAMAS, May 21 (AP).—Want to buy a tropical island for $5000 and not have to pay income tax?

Well, you can here in the Bahamas, a group of British-owned islands just off the southeastern coast of Florida.

Land in the Abaco group sells for about $100 an acre, and whole islands go for $5000 up.

Real estate is booming, with heavy American and British investments reported on a number of these islands scattered over some 70,000 square miles of ocean. Nassau, the capital, is just an hour's flight from Miami.

Nassau's reputation as a fashionable winter rendezvous was established by Americans. Most of Nassau's visitors today are Americans, but high taxes and austerity in Britain are cited as reasons for the increasing number of English visitors, many of whom have taken up residence here and invested in real estate and business properties.

The boom started at the end of the war and now is spreading to remote islands, bringing a general aura of prosperity to the whole area.

One indication of the expansion under way is found in the increase in annual visitors. The number jumped from 8300 in 1945 to 34,700 in 1948.

In Nassau, construction is keeping pace with the influx. Permits for buildings totaled about $6,600,000 between September, 1947, and September, 1948. Builders estimate actual construction costs at nearly $12,000,000 for the period. This is about 10 times the figure for an average year before World War II.

"Unsurpassed" weather and low taxes are cited as two chief reasons for the growing prosperity.

There is no income tax and no inheritance tax on real estate. The 2 per cent inheritance tax on personal property and low real estate taxes are considered very moderate by American and British visitors.

Douglas Elliman, head of the New York City real firm bearing his name, says the Bahamas "eventually will become one of the world's greatest resort and recreational areas."

Elliman, who visited here this season, explains:

"With a mild climate, where temperatures never go below 56 and rarely go above 90, the amazing beauty of the islands, the unusual bathing and other natural facilities which have caused the Bahamas to be called the 'Isles of June,' the islands provide a natural setting literally unsurpassed."

Next to Nassau, Eleuthera is the most developed of the large islands. There Austin T. Levy of Harrisville, R. I., has established his Hatchet Bay plantations, which supply most of Nassau's milk, eggs and poultry.

The biggest island venture is taking place at West End, Grand Bahamas, 65 miles across the Gulf Stream from Palm Beach.

There William E. Butlin, millionaire resort and hotel operator, is creating a new vacation village at a cost of about eight million dollars to accommodate 1000 guests by January, 1950, and another 1000 by 1952.

Butlin has an army of workmen building roads, an airfield, a yacht anchorage, power plants, theaters, dance pavilions, swimming pools, shopping center. recreation rooms, cabanas and villas where, until a few months ago there was only a sleepy little fishing village, lonely beaches and scrub-covered waste land.

The new resort is expected to be a dollar earner for Britain. Butlin says he hopes to attract Americans in the middle-income brackets by offering all-expense vacations at $100 a person a week.

New U. S. Legislation Spurs Building of Homes in Alaska

Home builders in Alaska are taking advantage of aid offered them through the Federal Housing Administration under the recently enacted Alsaka Housing Act.

FHA Commissioner Franklin D. Richards said his agency would insure the mortgage for a proposed 67-unit apartment at Anchorage with rents from $105 to $140 a month, including heat.

Rents in Alaska were said to be relatively higher than in the States, reflecting both higher construction and service costs.

Negotiations with FHA to insure other projects are under way: They include apartments of 264, 46 and 440 units. All are to be in Anchorage. The 440-unit project will be on the military reservation at Fort Richardson, at Anchorage.

The Housing and Home Finance Agency will send a field force to Alaska soon to work out details with the Alaska Housing Authority under which a 15-million-dollar revolving fund would be made available for expansion and improvement of housing.

Easier Financing Predicted

PEOPLE ARE buying fewer homes this spring, and savings accounts are gaining. These two factors have reversed the real estate financing trend of six months ago; the result is a more favorable picture for home buyers and builders.

This theory is advanced by Norman Strunk, staff economist, in the current issue of The Review, published by the Society of Residential Appraisers.

Strunk attributes the declining demand for funds to four factors: a slower rate of turn-over of existing real estate, fewer construction starts, tighter credit policies of banks and associations which have loaned up to a point near the allowable maximum, and to the anticipation of the "top of the cost cycle."

The new supply of funds for home-lending purposes is, says Strunk, a result of: the Federal Reserve System's lowering of cash reserves against deposits required of member commercial banks, the increase in the amount of the bank's time deposits, and to the unprecedented growth in the savings accounts of savings and loan associations.

The net increase in savings in the associations for the first quarter of 1949 was close to 400 million dollars as compared to 276 million dollars in the same period last year.

Although interest rates and mortgage terms always "relax" during periods of decreasing loan demand and increasing supply of funds, home mortgage lenders are faced today with higher operating costs than a few years ago, Strunk reported.

He said that until these costs decline there cannot be a substantial drop in operating rates that might result in somewhat lower interest rates.

A decline may later result in more liberal loan terms, he declared. Terms normally refer to the amortization period and valuation of the home for mortgage loan purposes.

Chest To Explain Outlays

Five hundred board members of United Community Services agencies will call personally on 1500 business firms during the next 10 days, to explain how their contributions are spent.

Frank R. Jelleff, UCS president, called the visits "an entirely new idea in Community Chest public relations" and "one of the best means of getting real information to the community."

80 Homes Nearing Completion in North Arlington

Two New Subdivisions Planned by Broyhill

Street scene of new 2-story Colonial homes in Country Club Manors, N. Arlington, built by M. T. Broyhill & Sons, Inc.

Basic Broyhill Colonial home costs $14,950, has center hall entrance, 3-bedrooms and bath, screened side porch.

ONE of Virginia's busiest builders this week pointed to a project of 80 homes underway and commented: "This was bare ground in December. Over 30 homes now are completed and ready for occupancy. How's that for speed and efficiency?"

The speaker, M. T. Broyhill, sr., unveiled comprehensive plans for home construction in North Arlington by his firm, M. T. Broyhill & Sons, Inc., 4624 Lee hwy., Arlington.

In addition to the 80 homes in County Club Manors, off Old Dominion dr., near the Washington Golf and Country Club, the Broyhills plan to start 50 homes in July in Country Club View, off N. Vermont and 26th st., N. Completed homes, both rambler and 2-story Colonial styles, will sell for under $20,000. The neighborhood is dotted with luxury homes, one costing over $200,000.

Not content with these two projects, the firm has a third building program planned to start this summer in the 4600 block of N. 19th near the Broyhill office. These will be rambler type bungalows selling for $13,950.

Broyhill said he had not encountered sales resistance in any of his projects. By pricing his homes $500 below the market, he said, many of the dwellings have been sold before completion.

Broyhill said he has detected a downward trend in some building costs caused by mass purchasing of materials direct from the manufacturer. The savings, he added, enabled him to add quality and quantity to his homes.

Homes in Country Club Manors are predominantly two-story Colonials, with many variations in the basic floor plan. Additions of a garage, extra bath, extra bedroom, or all three have been made to customer's orders. The basic home sells for $14,950 and includes a full basement; living room, dining room, kitchen on the first floor; three bedrooms and bath on the second. A screened porch opens off the living room.

The firm has started construction of 35 bungalows in Country Club Manor, in answer to demands for one-floor living. The rambler-type homes sell for $13,950 and are built on an insulated concrete foundation, with three bedrooms and bath. Storage is in the attic via a disappearing stairway. The utility room has an automatic clothes washer.

The Broyhill firm has been erecting homes in North Arlington for the last 13 years. Two sons, Joel and Marvin, jr., are in charge of office management and construction.

The Ex-Birdseed Salesman Has Come a Long Way . . .

Godfrey's Hold On Fans Welded By 'Friendliness'

By Sonia Stein

THE name of Godfrey's Wednesday night television show, "Arthur Godfrey and His Friends," might as well be the title of his biography. Godfrey has the rare quality of being a "friend" of the listener.

His appeal as a humorist is based on familiarity. Most Godfrey fans didn't think much of him the first time they heard him. "I grow on you or I grow off you," he says in a voice which has been variously described as "briery," "like warm castor oil running over rocks," "like a frightened bassoon," and "like a shoe box full of bullfrogs complaining about a hangover."

Whatever it sounds like, it is friendly, pliable, warm, happy.

On the whole the lines on his 10:30 a. m. morning show on CBS are funny because Godfrey says them, and because Godfrey is a friend of yours. When he says, "There's somethin' nuts with this mike, here," the audience laughs. Not because it's funny, but because Godfrey said it. When Godfrey goes into long, low chuckles at the prospect of teaching a horse to spit, the listeners love it—because it has amused Godfrey.

They even accept slightly naughty jokes from Godfrey, because—well, who doesn't accept a naughty joke from a friend? And occasionally when they are displeased, they scold him as if he were a friend. "Now, you know better than that, Arthur. You're too nice a person to do that," say the letters.

Menace to Private Life

THIS feeling of friendship sometimes interferes with Arthur's private life. Along the street he is surrounded by whispers: "There goes Arthur Godfrey." In restaurants people come to his table expecting a warm greeting and a joke. When they have clients with them they say, "Hello, Arthur, you old so-and-so." With half an acknowledgement from Godfrey, they proceed to introduce the client to "my old friend Arthur Godfrey."

"You've got no use for him and never will," says Godfrey, "but he figures if he spends five minutes with you you'll mention him on the air."

Godfrey used to be able to go to the Automat, ride the subway and mix with people to get material for the show. "Now I gotta be a bloody hermit," he says.

He "holes up" in his apartment at the Hotel Lexington, or "takes refuge" in the Stork Club's Cub Room. Even the time he is on the air seems a refuge; in the studio, nobody can get at him or rush him off to an appointment.

"I feel like a heel when I'm not nice to everybody," he says. "But if I start signing autographs for 20 people, by the time I get the last one signed, 20 more have collected."

Usually, Godfrey has a hired limousine waiting at the door. He gives the fans a quick, "Hello. Nice of you to come," and ducks inside. The idea of informal, old-shoe Godfrey traveling in a chauffeured limousine is incongruous, even to him.

The fans watch him retreat and say, "Oh, he's so nice."

Nice to Old Friends

HE FINDS time to give the "Grade A treatment" to old friends. As a representative of the Washington Post, for which he has an affection, and of the Washington listeners, to whom he is partial, I was treated royally.

Godfrey took time to buzz me at my hotel to be sure I'd be up in time for the show, alerted his staff to make sure I got into the control room. He called the limousine service to be sure I'd have adequate transportation, and routed a florist out of bed to get a brace of white orchids to me before I left the hotel.

Although publicity just "complicates my life further," he let me follow him around and answered questions at length over the dinner table in his apartment.

He even let me visit the 800-acre farm near Catoctin Ridge in Loudoun County, Va. He used to let people know what town it is near, but no more. "People swarm up there all the time. Just drive up without asking." Past the sign marked private, past the sign marked beware of the dogs, they come up the long road to the farm house and make themselves at home.

"I just don't understand it," Godfrey says. "I'm a neighbor of General Marshall and I sat next to him all afternoon at a re-dedication ceremony of the Washington Monument not long ago, but I wouldn't dream of going to call on him without an invitation.

"And yet people who have never met me come park on my lawn and eat picnic lunches with my kids and cover the grass with milk bottles and papers."

A recent caller came smiling up to Godfrey while he was playing with his Arabian stallion, Sunsan. "I bet you're wondering who the heck I am," he started.

"You took the words right out of my mouth and I want you to get the heck out of here, fast," said Squire Godfrey.

$12,000 Per Year as Farmer

THE FARM, where his wife, the former Mary Bourke of Washington, and his two youngest children live, has a 14-room brick house, built for Harrison Williams in 1900, and is part of a rich farm once owned by George Washington's in-laws. Between the cattle he raises on that farm and a smaller one in Hillsboro, Godfrey makes $12,000 a year as a farmer. (He also gets a flat $10 a year from the Government which maintains a flight beacon on his property.)

However, it is not such income as this that encourages Godfrey to have a swimming pool in his yard and to consider buying an $85,000 twin-engine Beachcraft (second hand) for his weekend jaunts.

CBS paid him $440,514.16 last year. Income from recordings, use of his name for the touring "Talent Scouts" units and other sidelines, bring the total income to almost double that figure.

However, he says, "There's no point in making so much money that you only get 14 cents on the dollar. If you can keep 50 cents on each dollar you make, that's the right amount to make. That's about what you keep when you make $125,000, I guess."

Not especially grasping about money, he turned down a good movie offer in leaner years because he knew he'd be asked to play a part other than Godfrey.

"Let me know how much time a guy has to play and I'll tell you how rich he is," says the man who once balanced 80 sponsors a week and was on the air "approximately all day and all night."

Would Be a Sea Captain

IF HE had his life to live over again, he says he'd like to be a sea captain. "I'd be a success at that," said Godfrey. As it is, he looks like a seafaring man with his ruddy complexion and sea-green eyes, and sails one of his two boats whenever he gets time.

Godfrey hopes some day to have an hour-long night-

Godfrey's Coming Home

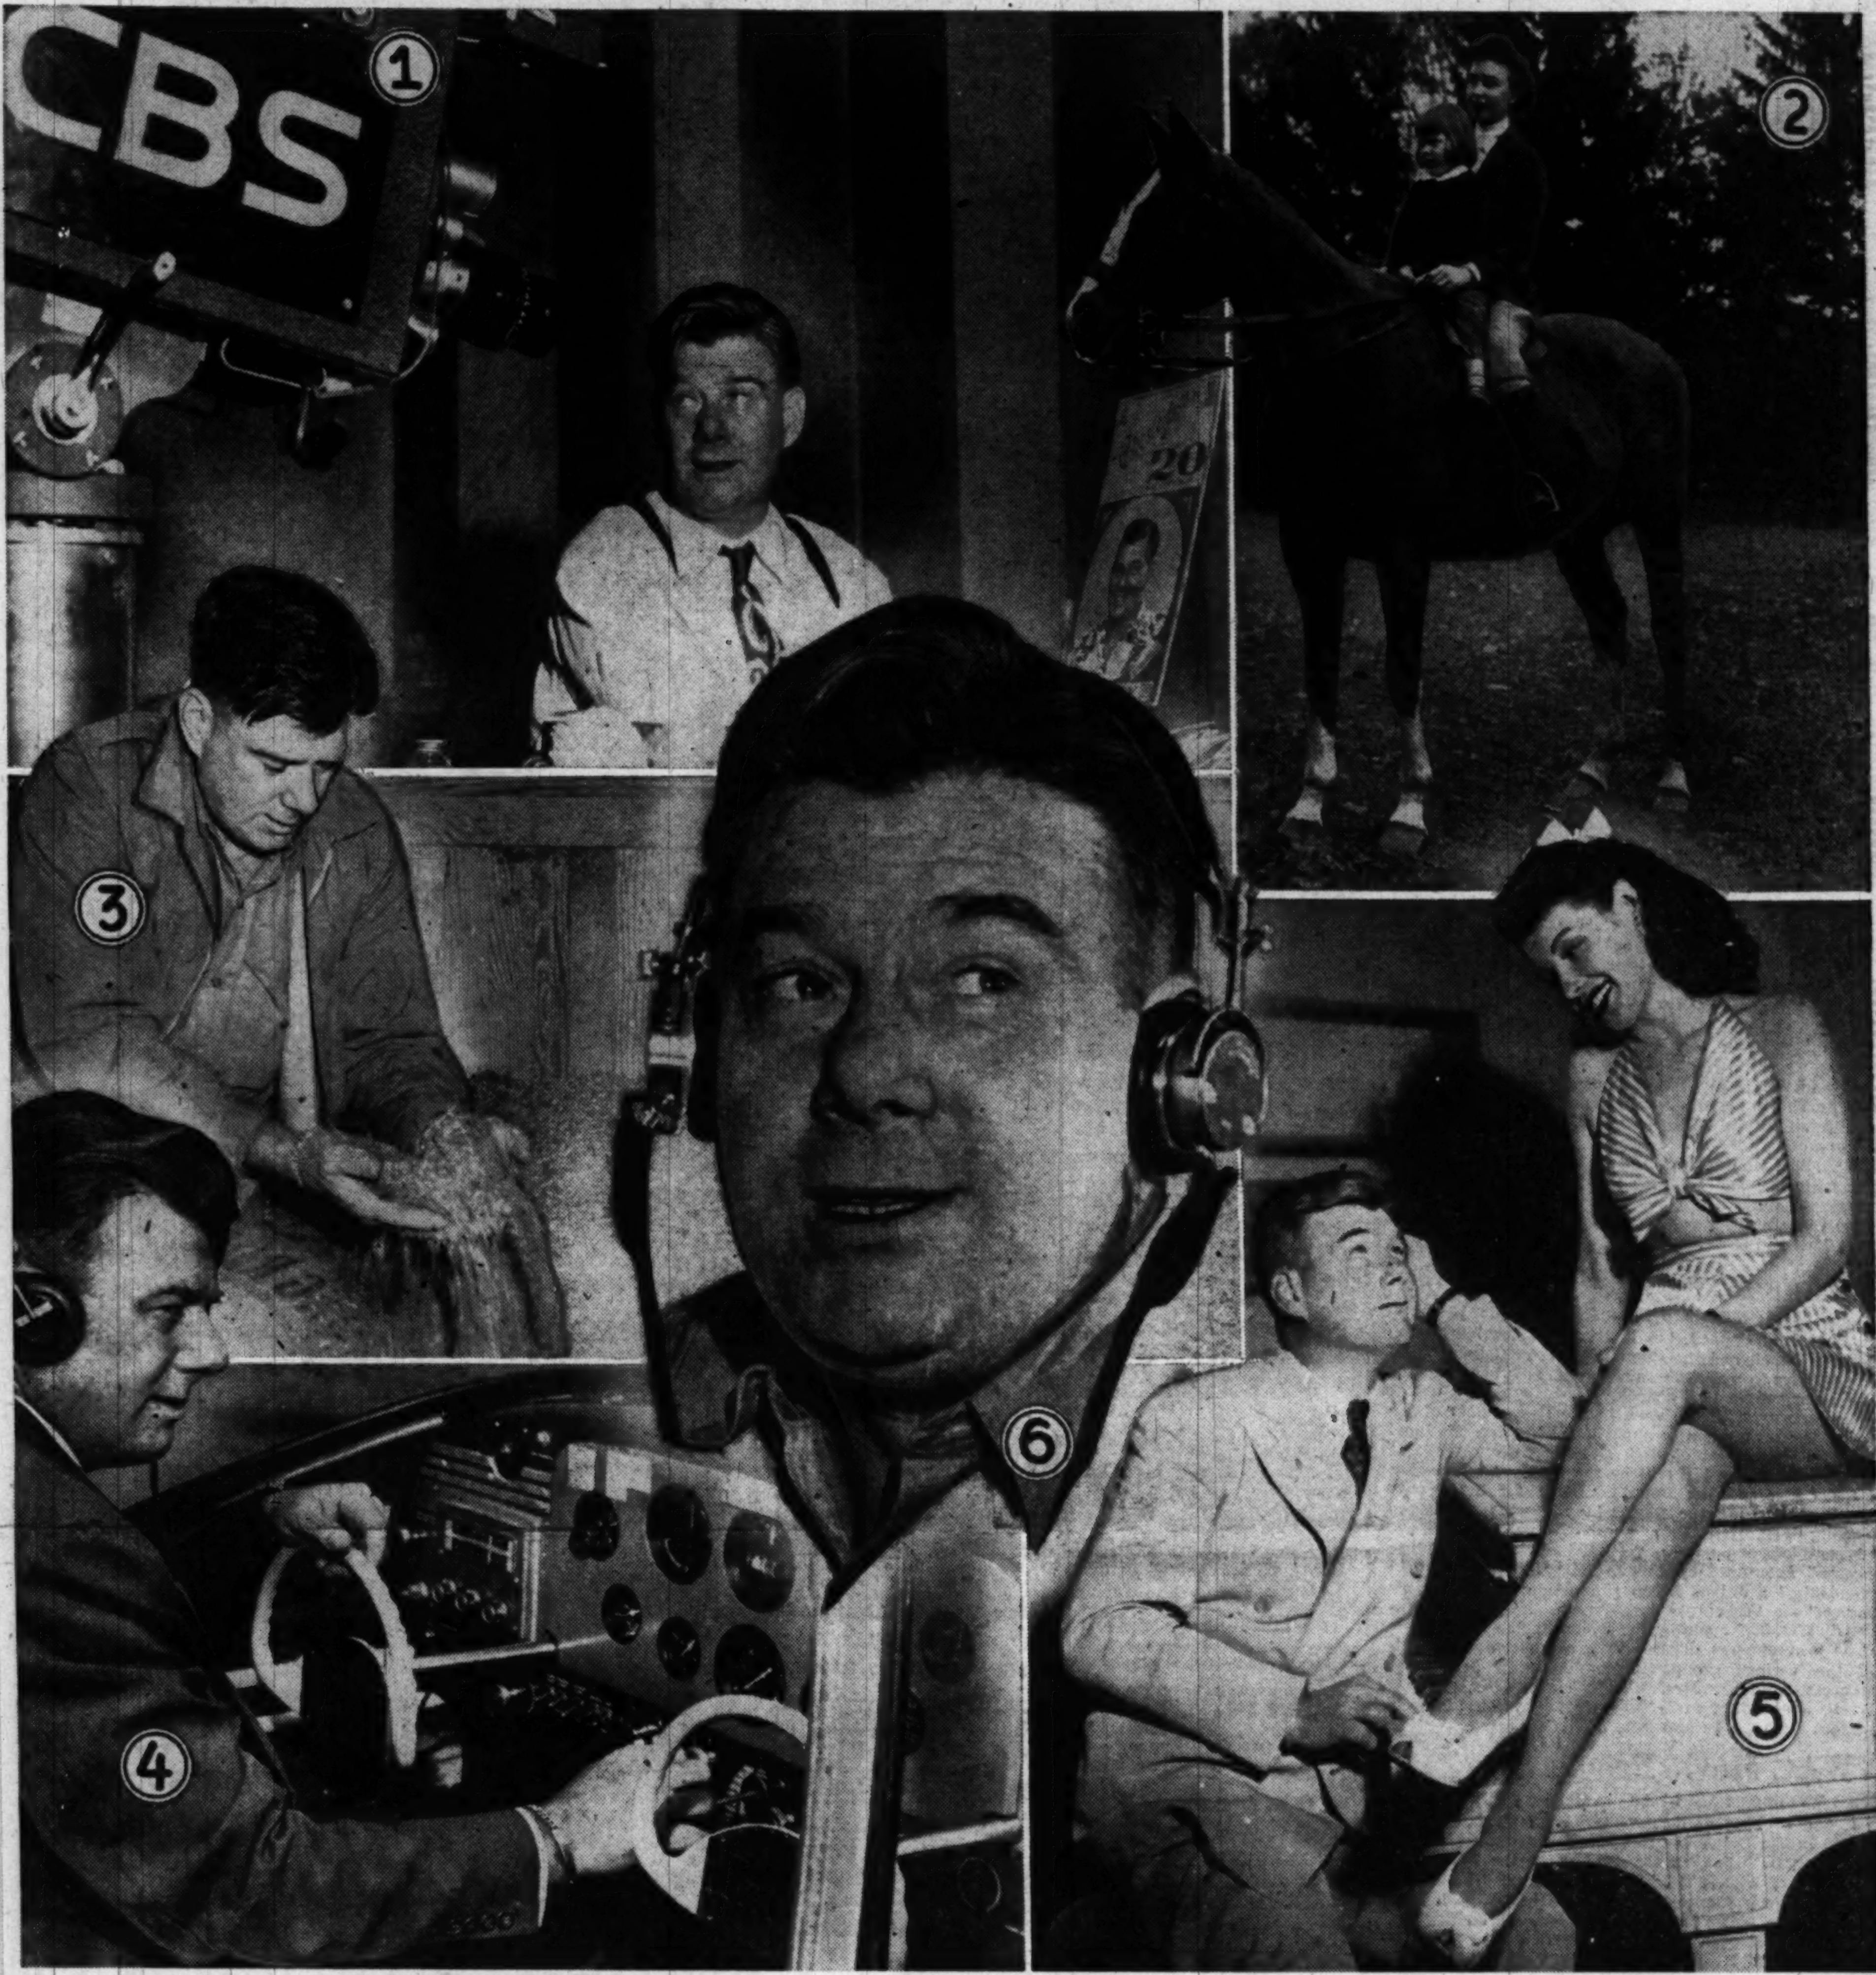
ARTHUR GODFREY is coming home the weekend of June 4-5, to participate in the National Celebrities Golf Tournament and to present "all the little Godfreys" in a "Homecoming" show at the Armory at 8:30 p. m. Saturday, June 4. Godfrey is paying all of the expenses of his troupe to come to Washington where he first hit his stride in radio, and raise money for a cause close to his heart. Tickets for both events which are being held to raise money for the Tom Clark Juvenile Delinquency Fund, are on sale daily except Sunday in the lobby of The Washington Post, at the Fairway and the Sports Center.



IN 19 years of successful radio broadcasting Arthur Godfrey has developed an air style that requires no rehearsals to make his CBS morning show the top Hooperated daytime show. For his once-a-week television show (1) he works hard, spending more hours in TV rehearsal than he spends in actual performance time for his radio show, and his Monday night simulcast of "Talent Scouts." Refuge from the pressures of his work and his admirers is found at his farm in Loudoun County, Va., where his wife Mary, daughter Pat (2) and son Mike live all the time. Godfrey commutes weekends, doing his Friday morning show from a studio in the house. The 800-acre farm near Catoctin Ridge and a 360-acre one close by yield farmer Godfrey (3) $12,000 a year. To commute to the farm, and for fun, Godfrey flies his Navion (4) or the twin-engine Beachcraft he is currently trying out. A veteran of 29 years of flying and a model of safe piloting, "Godfrey will never die in a plane he's piloting himself," according to his aviator friends. A one-man-show for many years while he was a disk jockey, "the unpredictable redhead" now has support from such "live" and lively talent as this young visitor (5) for his morning radio show (10:30 to 11:30 a. m.) and his Wednesday evening TV show (8 p. m.). Talented amateurs and professionals looking for a break join him on "Talent Scouts" Monday nights at 8:30. At 45, after a life which would have killed a lesser man, Godfrey (6) is going stronger than ever

'Blind Date' Gives ABC A Big Night

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, May 21 (NYHT).—"Blind Date," to summarize it as briefly as possible, is a television program—it used to be on the radio—in which three pairs of men compete over the telephone for the privilege of dating three girls. The three men with the most alluring line of malarkey are awarded temporary possession of the three girls, entree to the Stork Club and $15. What they do with $15 at the Stork Club is none of my business. (A Martini with six straws, waiter.) The three losers, I assume, go off and get drunk by themselves.

Apart from normal professional curiosity, my interest in this specimen was whetted to an unusual degree by the fact that two of the competitors dredged up the other night were old boy friends of my wife. Naturally this put a different, rather intimate complexion on the affair.

I watched these two specters from the past, good-looking lads, both of them, with morbid intensity, verging narrowly on hostility. They both won. By some process of feminine reasoning which is way beyond me, my wife took the double victory as a personal triumph. Frankly, I thought their line of patter was

Amplification Nearly Finished 'Medea'

By Richard L. Coe

WHILE JUDITH ANDERSON was playing her memorable "Medea" under the sky at the Sylvan Theater the other evening, I was acting my own version of W. S. Gilbert's Pooh-Bah.

Part of the evening I was a reviewer, enchanted by Miss Anderson's grippingly fascinating performance of an Asiatic princess crossed in love. The rest I roamed the crowd of 10,000 which had gathered eagerly for its first taste of theater in 42 weeks in our Cockeyed Capital.

Half, I'm sure, were enthralled. My own seat was a good one—natch—and I didn't miss a line. But I found too many disgruntled citizens who had paid their money and weren't happy.

This certainly was not Miss Anderson's fault, nor her company's, nor that of the valiant souls who had worked mightily to bring us at least a taste of that fast-expiring thing called Theater.

Arrangements also were made that the "Medea" performance would see less air activity in the Monument area. Commercial and service airlines agreed to keep as wide of the Sylvan as possible and this they did and though it was possible to hear some, the sky was certainly not "black with planes."

Too Much Echo

THE FACT remains, there was too much of an echo for many to catch what was being said, it was elsewhere, either too loud or too soft, and the improvised wings gave the production a tacky, shoddy aspect which further marred the view of many.

One devil of the evening was one of those minor marvels of our technical age—electrical amplification. Even with the best loudspeaker system in the world, you simply do not get the human voice. You get it hypoed by cathodes, vitamined by juice. You get a fuzz around the real thing. Costumes do not rustle; they crackle. The lightest footfall sounds like a hasty elephant. The necessary deep breath before a long peroration becomes a hurricane.

This electrical triumph over open air spaces is not theater. The fine art of theater brings spoken music from the human throat; modulations are possible. A whisper in real theater is a whisper. Over a P. A. system a whisper sounds like the opening of radio's Inner Sanctum. Tenderness becomes empty, its gentleness does not filter through. A shout, a shriek can assault the eardrums; they cannot touch the heart.

Size, But Not Quality

IT'S FUTILE, I'm afraid, to expect that this will be taken into consideration by Paul Green and those who are in charge of building the amphitheater for the proposed Sesquicentennial pageant. There will be much hoopla, I fear, over how marvelously the electrical tubes pick up the actors, just as there has been for other outdoor pageants. But quality is too likely to be sacrificed for size.

The spoken word was not always so tricked up. There was a day when several thousand could hear one voice, even when lowered to a whisper. But the electrical marvel has brought laziness in its wake. Our ears, tuned to the fuzz of radio and records, also have become dulled to the true quality of the speaking voice.

Our theaters have become larger and larger, an economic triumph. But, apt as an outdoor setting might seem for "Medea," the theater of Dionysius at Athens, where the Euripedes drama was first performed, seating a smaller crowd, did not have this P. A. business. Yet the actors were heard or they knew whatfor.

But today everyone hugs the mike, singers, comedians, visiting motion picture marvels. Few people seem to have realized that one of the things that killed vaudeville and is killing Theater is the mike. Vaudeville didn't die; it got stuck in its tracks, just as touring productions do in too-large theaters.

Fortunately, the Water Gate's P. A. system, at least last year, is a minor triumph for that sort of thing. Should this summer bring operas or light operas to the barge as well as the National Symphony's relaxing concerts, it's safe to say the Water Gate will be a happier home than was the Sylvan Wednesday night.

The difficulties at the Sylvan can be remedied, which should not preclude future performances there this summer, nor should one discount outdoor theatrics in toto. A limited audience which could hear and see from every seat would be a partial solution.

There's good promise for much open-air drama and citronella circuiting here this summer, but it's no answer to our fundamental mess.

The 10,000 people who turned out on a night which also offered a Nats-Tiger ball game and the Ringling five-ring circus proved beyond question there's an audience here for a theater now reduced to digging up the old movies.

Washingtonians have shown they'll go to the theater in an unsegregated body. That one audience could have kept a play two weeks at the Unnatural National.

Porter Raids N. Y. Shows For Movies

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, May 21.—Cole Porter is working with Dwight Taylor on "Heaven and Earth" and already has signed David Wayne, from "Mister Roberts," Mitzi Gerber, presently playing here in "The Great Waltz," and Carol Channing from "Lend an Ear."

Keith Andes plays the Alfred Drake part in the second company of "Kiss Me, Kate." Keith was discovered while singing in "The Chocolate Soldier."

The day the "South Pacific" albums arrived here, Cole called to say, "I'm sending you one." Pretty swell from the creator of "Kiss Me. Kate," wot? . . Glenn McCarthy paid around $1,000,000 for a special Howard Hughes plane. The interior alone, with plush decorations, cost $350,000. A super setting for Glenn's cowboy boots. . . Gale Storm says her husband, Lee Bonnell, is through with acting. He's doing very well in the insurance business. They met on Jesse Lasky's "Gateway to Hollywood" contest. Later they married and now have three children. "This year," says Gale, "I decided I'd have a career instead of another baby." After "Abandoned," her next will be "Kid From Texas."

Tallulah's Run at Olney Already Assured Sellout

WITH Tallulah Bankhead's two-week run in "Private Lives" already an assured sellout as the Olney summer theater's first attraction, the straw-hat drama center is gathering its forces for a full season.

General Manager Richard Skinner this week took up residence at the playhouse and announced three members of a resident company which will support stars in notable roles.

Mary MacArthur, who made her Olney debut last summer in support of her mother, Helen Hayes, will be a member of the company through July, when she will leave for rehearsals of her mother's new vehicle, "Good Housekeeping," which will be Olney's final attraction of the season prior to its New York opening.

Dean Harens, who has appeared in New York in "The Talley Method," "Papa Is All," "Men in Shadow" and "Tenting Tonight," will be the juvenile lead. Harens, a 26-year-old alumnus of Chicago's famed Goodman Memorial Theater, will play his first role with Frances Starr in the season's second offering, "The Corn Is Green."

Viola Roache, a popular performer of last summer, will support Miss Starr and appear with Radio's Leon Janney in "Night Must Fall" the week of June 21. With Miss Roache in three of the summer's plays will be her daughter, Philippa Bevans, who also appeared at Olney last summer.

S. Syrjala, who designed all of last summer's settings is in residence and Director Harry Ellerbe is expected to arrive shortly.

The Olney's downtown box office is at Jordan's music store, 13th and G sts.

Documentary Films Friday

WASHINGTON'S three Film Councils, the Washington Film Council, the District of Columbia Motion Picture Council and the Community Film Council, have joined forces to present a round-up of new documentary films Friday night at 8 o'clock.

The pictures will be shown in the Department of Interior Auditorium, in cooperation with the National Park Service as part of Park and Recreation Week.

High spot of the bill will be the first public showing of the Canadian Film Board's "When All the People Play," emphasizing the physical and mental pleasures of healthy relaxations.

Other pictures on the novel bill include "Leaders for Leisure," sponsored by the Athletic Institute; "World Friendship," a Julian Bryan production; "Every Man's Empire," an Agriculture Department film, and "Southern Utah Trails," made by the Union Pacific Railway.

The program was selected by a committee representing the various groups involved: Sutton Jett, Mrs. DeForest Anthony, Mrs. Elizabeth Hamilton, Temple Jarrell, June Blair, Mrs. Toby Chandler, Miss Patricia Macoun, John Cooke and Mrs. A. Nelson Sayre.

WWAC Movie Program

THE Washington World Affairs Center will present its second evening of documentary films Wednesday at 8 p. m. in the Department of Interior Auditorium.

"Operation Vittles," a USAF short on the Berlin airlife, "Tree of Wealth" and "Dances of India," both from the Indian government cameras and "School in Cologne," a British film about German education, are on the bill, which will close with an audience participation film produced for B'nai B'rith, "Songs of Friendship."

Choirs Hit Town This Week

TWO traveling choruses move into town this week: the chorus of the University of Puerto Rico sings four times, and Concordia College a capella choir from Moorhead, Minn., once.

The Puerto Ricans sing Thursday night in the Federal Works Building, Friday afternoon at Walter Reed, that evening at the Pan American Union, and the next evening at the Bethesda Medical Center. They go to Carnegie Hall the following day.

Concordia's choir is on its way to Norway for a five weeks' tour. Director is Paul Christiansen, son of the famous Olaf, and brother to Olaf, jr., whose St. Olaf's singers were here last year.

WEEK'S top programs include: Hugh O'Meagher today at the Phillips; Margaret Tolson tonight at the National; Theodore Schaefer's Kodaly this evening, and John Marville's choral program at 8:30, also this evening. Singers Cerwonka tomorrow, and the choirs later in the week present unfamiliar music, and Richard Pick, playing the guitar, looks like a real artist.

The Water Gate season opens this evening with the Air Force Band under Colonel Howard, Glenn Darwin, well-known baritone, who has rejoined the Air Force, will be soloist. The glee club of the band will also sing.

Speaking of the Water Gate, Station WMAL will broadcast the four Sunday evening concerts of the National Symphony during July. That means that opening night with Gladys Swarthout will be heard, as well as pianists Zadol Skolovsky and Eugene List, violinist Carroll Glenn, and Hazel Arth, contralto, Lee Fairfax (alias Fague Springmann), baritone, with a men's chorus.

Tickets for the symphony's three summer series Sundays, Wednesdays, and Fridays) go on sale tomorrow, at the box office in Kitt's. Howard Mitchell will conduct all the concerts except ballet night, when Robert Zeller will lead the players. Zeller was here with the Markova-Dolin company last fall.

ORGANISTS this week to the fore, with Louis Potter tomorrow night in his final Washington recital before leaving for his new home and duties in North Carolina. Mario Salvador comes from St. Louis Tuesday night to play for the Guild of Organists and the public, in Washington Cathedral. Salvador was one of the outstanding recitalists at last year's national organists' convention. Wednesday night Robert Quade plays in Epiphany Church.

Station WTOP has something new and good. Saturdays from 5 to 6, it presents, "British Concert Hall." This is a series of famed British symphony orchestras with their conductors as commentators. The London Philharmonic, Halle, BBC, and other orchestras well known in this country will be heard.

Rita Preisman, age 11, will play a piano recital Wednesday, at 8 p. m., in the parish hall of St. Mark's and Incarnation Church, 14th and Gallatin sts. nw.

The 19th Street Baptist Church Youth Choir will sing tonight at 8, under George Murphy, their conductor, in the church. Harmony Hill Farm, in Lewinsville, presents Eunice Gross, junior and senior, in a two-soprano recital. The National Lutheran Chorus adds another to its spring series, with tonight's program in St. Luke's Lutheran Church, Silver Spring, at 8.

United States Soldier's Home Band concerts continue this week, Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday, at 6 p. m., in their own bandstand. The choir of the Naval Proving Ground, Dahlgren, Va., will sing Thursday evening at 8:15, in the Dahlgren School Auditorium. They list spirituals, sacred music, and musical comedy, with a soprano, and French horn soloists.

George Garrett, baritone, and Iris Bailey, soprano, sing Tuesday evening in the Arts Club, for the Helen Turley Studio. The public is invited.

Blind Date MC Fast Babe With The Wisecrack

only fair. If I couldn't handle a telephone better than that . . .

Well, let's stop wool-gathering.

Unless one of these striking coincidents happens in your family, there isn't much to recommend "Blind Date" (A.B.C.—TV, 7:30 p.m. E.D.T. Thursdays). The enticement of strange females to the Stork Club over the telephone is too easy to stir more than a mild competitive sweat in most men though the girls may get a vicarious thrill out of it. When I was a boy we played a more difficult game. The idea was to get yourself invited to her house, where you could drink her father's bourbon. Believe me, that took fast talking. If you can't talk a girl into going to the Stork Club, you oughn't to be out after dark.

In any case, the operation ought to be performed in private; a man can't really get under way with a television camera staring him in the eye. Arlene Francis, the master of ceremonies on "Blind Date," is a pretty girl though somewhat too assertive for my taste. She's also a fast babe with a wisecrack. The wisecracks aren't always very good but they're rapid and in television speed counts for more than quality.

Claims Thursday

THE American Broadcasting Co. is making a sturdy attempt to stake a claim on Thursday nights as their big night on television as they did with Wednesday nights on radio. Following "Blind Date" at 8 p.m. comes "Stop the Music," which, along with Walter Winchell, will be one of the few valuable pieces of property left on A.B.C. by next fall. After "Stop the Music" is "Crusade in Europe," the film series based on General Eisenhower's book, and on its heels is A.B.C.'s Peabody Award winning dramatic show "Actors Studio." It is far and away the most impressive lineup on Thursday nights and one of the best parlays anywhere in television.

The television "Stop the Music" is completely separate from its counterpart in radio with different mystery melodies and different prizes but the same old Bert Parks. Well, not entirely the same old Bert Parks. Here you can see him and the experience may come as the shock of your life. Parks shouts like a madman, rolls his eyes, flashes his teeth, waves his arms around, bursts into song, puts on funny hats and in general behaves as if he were hopped to the ears.

I found this manic display wildly entertaining, if only as a study in advanced psychiatry, but it drove a couple of women out of my living room screaming with terror. Maybe you better get the kids to bed before you tune it in.

Otherwise, the television "Stop the Music" is a lot better show than the radio "Stop the Music." In addition to Harry Salter's band, there are dance acts, ballet numbers, and, of course, you can look at the singers if that's one of your enthusiasms. Like so many television programs, they have a cartoonist who makes charcoal drawings to serve as hints concerning the titles of some of the melodies. Television is the greatest boon to artists since the Renaissance.

Oh, yes, the prizes. Well, there are $18,100 worth of them at this writing, which approaches the loot of the radio program. They show you pictures of them, too—the matched luggage, the iceboxes, the television sets. Takes about five minutes to run through it all.

Collectors Hoping to Get Full Presidential Series

By William M. Stuart

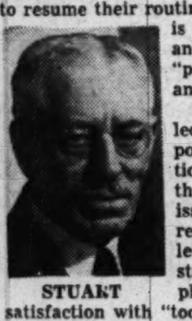
WITH only one commemorative stamp scheduled for release during the next month, the Postoffice Department, as well as collectors will have an opportunity to resume their routine activities. The Philatelic Agency is in much better condition at present and the prospects of securing the "presidential" series in full is eagerly anticipated.



STUART

The terrific jam experienced by collectors interested in covers has temporarily abated, and from all indications Congress will once again permit the Postmaster General to select each issue of new stamps. This is the correct attitude, for the public nor collectors believe a great influx of new stamps necessary in order to keep philately alive. In order to express dissatisfaction with "too many stamps," some collectors refused to buy United States issues.

However, in due time, missing items will be available at the agency for their collections. Despite all objections the hobby will continue to grow—neither too many stamps nor too few would endanger the interest of the public.

THE 3-cent commemorative stamp issued for the Annapolis Tercentenary will be sold first-day tomorrow. The stamp will be printed in blue and the initial printing order calls for 100 million.

There were 971,192 stamps sold and 447,910 covers canceled on April 12, first day of the 3-cent Washington and Lee University stamp at Lexington, Va.

Another Government owned and operated highway postoffice will be inaugurated between Columbus and Durant, Miss., on June 1. Covers must be in the hands of the postmasters not later than May 30.

On June 1 air mail service will be inaugurated at Kalispell, Mont., on route A M-3. A special cachet will be provided.

Venezuela has honored Santos Michelena, minister of finance and special envoy who signed the Bogota postal agreement of 1838, with an issue of 10 new stamps, six air mails and four regular postage. The stamps are rather large and a portrait of the noted diplomat is on each one. The postage varieties are: 5-centimos, blue; 10-c, red; 20-c, brown, and 1-bolivar, green. The air mails: 5-c, brown; 10-c, gray; 15-c, orange; 25-c, green; 30-c, magenta, and 1-bolivar, violet. Each stamp of the series shows a silhouette of a plane.

THE prospectus for the Society of Philatelic Americans 1949 convention has been issued. The affair will be held August 18, 19, 20 and 21, in San Francisco, Calif., Hotel Whitcomb being headquarters. The sponsors are the California Collectors Club. General chairman is Joseph M. Clary, 135 Polk st., San Francisco 2. Entry blanks may be secured from the general chairman.

An auction sale was the feature at the Collectors Club, Branch 5, SPA, Tuesday evening at Pythian Temple, Ellery Denison officiating. Next Tuesday in Pythian Temple "junior night" will be observed, the special guests being the Washington Boys Club. The SPA is observing "juvenile" month all during May and an invitation is extended to all junior collectors to be present. There will be a special program, including auction, exhibition, exchange of stamps and other prizes and talks. The affair will begin at 8 p. m. and Pythian Temple, 1012 9th st. nw., is the place.

The Capital Precancel Club will meet tomorrow at 8 p. m. at the Weeks Stamp Shop, 1229 New York ave. nw.

A 'Monumental' Sculpture Show

By Jane Watson Crane

GRADUALLY the international exhibitions are getting under way again. The Carnegie Institute has announced that the show in Pittsburgh this fall will include foreign paintings, as it did before the war. A third international for sculpture, the first since 1940, opened May 15 at the Philadelphia Museum of Art and will continue through the summer. The returns from abroad were disappointing to the sponsors, but even a small gain looks big in the face of obstacles. Aside from the practical difficulties of overseas shipment of sculpture, many European artists still lack the facilities and the economic security to produce finished pieces. A few declined to participate in the show. Some simply could not be reached.

Among sculptors represented from this region are Heinz Warneke, who teaches at the Corcoran; William Calfee, head of the art department of American University, and Shirley Lichtman, of the Washington Sculptors Group. Warneke, who has been in these shows from the start in 1933, was one of the original six commissioned to make a permanent monument for the Samuel Memorial in Philadelphia's Fairmont Park as a result of the exhibition. From four to six more American sculptors will be chosen this year to complete the memorial. In addition, there is a discretionary fund of $20,000 to be spent for purchase of works from the show.

Other artists entered whose work are identified with this region are Alice Decker, of the Sculptors Guild of New York and now living in Washington, Ann Wolf, member of the Washington Artists Guild now living in Minnesota, Father Lauck, Dorothea Greenbaum, and Joseph Goethe, all recent District residents.

Smallest Show

THE postwar exhibition is the smallest of the three—248 pieces this year as against 364 in the first and 412 in 1940. It was announced over a year ago, in the hope of stimulating the production of new works.

Emphasis in the selection, as it will be in the awards, was on sculpture in one of the permanent materials, such as marble, stone or bronze. Work done since 1940 was given preference. Inevitably the question rises: How can you "pick" sculpture for a project of this scope without actually covering thousands of miles to see the works in studios? There is no completely satisfactory solution to this dilemma. Sometimes small-scale models or designs for the finished work are invited, but in this case the committee, headed by Henri Marceau of the Philadelphia Museum, asked close to 1000 American and foreign sculptors to send in photographs of their work for review. Just under half the number responded. And of these, 216 Americans and 32 foreigners were invited to send in.

The Philadelphia Museum, a big barn of a place in classic style, is the ideal setting for monumental sculpture. Works are installed partly in the outdoor courtyard and partly in the Great Hall. The Museum is in Fairmount Park, where the already completed parts of the commissioned memorial may be seen close to the river. The entire project, of which the exhibition is an offshoot, was made possible through the will of Ellen Phillips Samuel, who left $661,000 to the Fairmount Park Association, the income of which was to be spent to obtain sculpture symbolizing the history of America, from the time of the earliest settlers to the present era.

In the foreign contingent, none of the entries are official, in the sense that they were government-picked. Laurence Roberts, head of the American Academy in Rome, helped with the choice from Italy, and Jean Cassou, head of the Museum of Modern Art in Paris, collaborated for France. The only country in which an artists' society took a hand was Holland. And for once, the Mexican sculptors take precedence over the painters.

Most New Here

MOST of the works in this group are new to this country, and relatively few of the sculptors known here. However, the Hungarian Lajos d'Ebneth, who had shows here and in Baltimore, is included, and there is the expected roster of "big names" Brancusi, Jacob Epstein, Alberto Giacometti, Jacques Lipchitz, Gerhard Marcks, Henry Moore, Pablo Picasso and Ossip Zadkine. Brancusi has been invited to this country to supervise the casting of his 15-foot "Cock" in stainless steel, which will become the property of the museum. Henry Moore has a new work in stone done expressly for the occasion.

Dimitri Fails to Get Spirit of Chausson

CHAUSSON: Symphony in B Flat. Minneapolis Symphony under Mitropoulos. Columbia 825, $5. Also IP ML 4141, $4.85.

The third entry in recordings of this Franckian work, this set is not too happy.

Mitropoulos played this symphony during his recent season with the New York Philharmonic as well as with his Minneapolis charges. Obviously he enjoys the music, yet he fails rather signally to capture its essence. Chausson, a pupil of Franck, was above all else, suave, elegant. Mitropoulos is inclined to disturb the smooth flow of the melody, to interrupt its slow motion, and to neglect its obvious need for subtle accents rather than theatrical smashes.

Also his orchestra plays quite shabbily most of the time, an unusual occurrence. Try the beginning of the last side for an example of how violins should not play. The recording is unfortunately wooden. On the other hand, a Victor set done by Frederick Stock and the Chicago Symphony Orchestra is one of the fine performances of music on record.

Bach: Chaconne. Egon Petri, pianist. Columbia MX-313. $2.50.

Petri studied with Busoni. Busoni arranged this violin solo for piano. Petri understands the nature of the work well. The set is therefore highly rewarding. The piano has a sense of largeness in sound, though it is still not what piano reproduction should be. The top is thin, the bottom lacks resonance.

This music is not intended for keyboard use, but Petri keeps it within bounds where possible. For those who wish to study it, this is a fine account.

Mozart: Sonata in C Major. Jascha Heifetz, violinist, with Emanuel Bay, pianist. Victor 1290. $2.50 (without album, $3.50 with).

This is beautiful, external music from Mozart's most glittering days. The young composer was both pianist and violinist, and played both instruments publicly.

Heifetz tends to romanticize phrase endings, and to give Mozart every ounce of juicy tone, as if the music were Mendelssohn. Still he plays technical passages with wonderful flair and expert precision. Tone surfaces and engineering are immaculate.

DE KOVEN: Oh Promise Me; also: Student Prince: Serenade. Jan Peerce, tenor, with chorus and orchestra under Warner Bass. Victor 12-0795. $1.25.

Hearing Peerce sing these light ballads it is well to recall what a fine singer and artist he can be. Here he is chiefly occupied with putting out the best Music Hall traditions. The accompaniment could hardly be soupier, but it suits Oh Promise Me perfectly. The Serenade is a lovely song, and comes off well.

Wright Talks Thursday At Lisner

FRANK LLOYD WRIGHT, the architect, will lecture in George Washington University's Lisner Auditorium on Thursday at 8:40 p. m. under the auspices of the Institute of Contemporary Arts. Tickets at $1.20 and $1.80 may be obtained by mail or on personal application to the Institute, 1322 New York ave. nw. They will be on sale at the Lisner box office May 25 and 26.

The Edward Steichen selection of documentary photographs, assembled for exhibition at the Museum of Modern Art, will be shown here at the Corcoran Gallery from May 23 to July 8. Steichen, who was in charge of photography for the Navy during the war and is now head of the Museum of Modern Art's photography department, assembled the material from the files of Government agencies, newspapers, magazines, and the press associations. This is the first display to be held outside of New York. A smaller group of the photographs will later tour the country.

Youthful students of Cornelia Yuditsky's Creative Art Studio are exhibiting at the American Veterans Committee clubhouse, 1751 New Hampshire ave. nw, until June 15.

Godfrey, 'Wobbling Banjoist' of 1929, Is a Great Deal Steadier Now

time show once a week to be broadcast and telecast simultaneously. Six sponsors would share it. But that probably won't be until 1951. A slight miscalculation in the potency of his appeal made him sign long-term contracts for the morning CBS show (10:30 to 11:30) and the Monday night radio and television show (8:30) on which he hunts new talent.

When he moved to network broadcasting, Godfrey felt he'd have to give the Nation a short intensive treatment to build up the kind of following he'd acquired in New York and Washington during the preceding 11 years.

With a daily morning show, plus the Monday night AM-TV show and the Wednesday night TV show, he felt he could make the required impact in five years. He did it in less than two. "Now I'm stuck with the contracts and have to finish." (He is adding another quarter hour (10:15 to 10:30 a. m.) to plug a product in which he owns an interest.)

But all of this air time is nothing compared to some of his previous air feats. From April 30, 1945, until October 29, 1948, he broadcast 16¾ hours a week, doing an early morning show for WCBS in New York from 6 to 7:45 a. m., then feeding a show to WTOP in Washington from 7:45 to 9:25. Later in the morning he did the network show which was then half an hour long. Monday night he handled "Talent Scouts."

Weary to the point where he would occasionally skip his WCBS show at $625 per skip, he finally gave up the local programming.

The Amateur Banjoist

GODFREY got into radio in Baltimore in 1929 as the result of an amateur contest in which he sang and played the banjo. "Red Godfrey, the Warbling Banjoist," who occasionally received mail addressed to the "Wobbling Banjoist," made $5 twice a week for two 15-minute shows for a birdseed store.

This was neither the lowest nor the highest estate 26-year-old Godfrey had reached up to that point. At 15 he ran away from his home in Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., where he felt his presence was a financial drain on his family. He came from Scotch-Irish-English stock. His father, Arthur Sanbury Godfrey, was a writer, an authority on the hackney horse, and a raconteur of some charm. But he was so lacking in business acumen he refused Alexander Graham Bell's offer of stock in the telephone company at $1 a share. His mother was an amateur pianist and painter.

While he waited for his first $10 pay check as an office boy, he slept on the huge rolls of paper outside a newspaper office near the Brooklyn Bridge. On pay day, he went to the Statue of Liberty, struck up an acquaintance with a young lady and became "the only man now alive who was rolled in the Statue of Liberty."

From that he went up and down the scale as dishwasher, short-order cook, coal miner, "stick man" in a crap game, lumberjack and cab driver. He served a hitch in the Navy and volunteered for radio duty on a destroyer during the Greco-Turkish War. He passed up a chance to enter Annapolis, and left the Navy. He became such a success as a salesman of cemetery lots he was able to buy half interest in a vaudeville act in which he played the ukulele, sang and did a monologue.

The act went broke in San Francisco and Godfrey, hankering after security, joined the Coast Guard. Enthusiastic buddies encouraged him to try out on a radio amateur show which he won. When his hitch was up he became the Warbling Banjoist. Soon thereafter he became an announcer.

Presidential Announcer

TIME and talent brought him to Washington where he was a staid and diction-conscious spieler for WMAL, then an NBC station.

As presidential announcer for the network, he took President Roosevelt's fancy. "I see you're still in, too," he'd say to Godfrey every time he'd come over to announce a presidential broadcast.

After a collision with a truck, Godfrey spent several months in bed nursing 47 fractures. Immobile in a cast, he discovered what was wrong with radio announcers. "This ladies and gentleman stuff is no good," he decided, realizing that the radio audience is usually one person at a time.

"If there are two people in a room, they usually shut the radio off because it interferes with conversation," he figured. "These guys sound like Fourth of July orators addressing a crowd."

When he hobbled back to work on crutches which he used for several years—he still limps slightly when he's tired—he tried his new technique.

Ribbing the Sponsors

TALKING intimately on the early morning show, breaking records he thought were too jazzy for people "staggering around with one eye open," giving the Bronx cheer to his bosses because "they're still in bed and they won't hear it anyway," brought the fan letters in.

When Godfrey read a commercial about filmy black lace unmentionables and concluded, "Is my face red!" the station brass trembled, but the sponsor sold out his stock by 11 a. m. to ladies who wanted to buy the underwear that "made Arthur Godfrey's face red."

However, the Godfrey assignments were spread out from dawn until after midnight and one night he rebelled and called the station manager at midnight to say he wouldn't do the next morning's show. He slept all day. When he showed up at 5:29:30 p. m. to do his 5:30 p. m. show, the boss wasn't pleased. "I don't like your attitude," he said. Godfrey gave him a bit of his attitude clearly and resonantly.

Then he went to Lafayette Park in the snow and watched the White House lights twinkle through the gloom. "I cried as I sat there thinking about the good job I'd given up."

The next day, Frank Russell, who is still NBC vice president in Washington, suggested Godfrey mend the matter with an apology to the station manager. The apology was acceptable but Godfrey's reinstatement as an announcer was not. Godfrey retracted the apology and stalked out to become a flying instructor. For days he couldn't be located. While local radio columnists made much of the missing Godfrey, the CBS station, WJSV (which later became WTOP), was trying to get him.

Radio Hams Discover Arthur

AWARE OF his value for the first time, but fed up with radio anyway, Godfrey refused to sign for more than six weeks. Godfrey began then to build an audience which has never waned.

To compete with Godfrey, NBC brought a New York announcer to Washington. Getting permission to stay on all night to get a head start on the imported competition, Godfrey hied himself off to the transmitter, then located in the swamp which has now been turned into the National Airport, to start the first all-night program in American history.

Radio bugs, then fascinated by the new medium, often used to tune in to Chicago, Salt Lake City and the West Coast, following the time zones until all had signed off at 3 a. m. EST. Dialing around that early a. m. of January 26, 1934, they found Godfrey.

Radio fans in the area began to converge on the transmitter house to see the man who was making radio history The police had to unsnarl the 8000 automobiles which were lined up from the Fourteenth Street Bridge to the transmitter, most of them carrying sandwiches for Godfrey who had mentioned there was no food handy.

Godfrey recalls that while some people were trapped in the traffic line for four or five hours, he was gaily waving to those who filed past the glass partition in the transmitter studio, unaware of the havoc outside.

Winchell Tunes In

MEANTIME, he was taking requests over the phone from listeners. "I heard from at least one listener in every State in the Union, Canada, Bermuda and Cuba" before the night was over.

One young lady at a plush hotel in New York called him every 20 minutes because she was "bored." "I'm bored here in my swamp," said Arthur. As the bottle of Scotch beside the young lady grew emptier, her conversation grew more and more romantic.

Godfrey, frantic for fear her remarks could be picked up by the microphone, held the receiver tightly to his head to muffle the sound. But his own answers were enough to tickle the audience, which included Walter Winchell.

Winchell had gathered a group of his friends to listen to Godfrey as soon as he had discovered him that morning. At 5 a. m. he telephoned Godfrey, "This is Walter Winchell," he said. "Yeah," said Godfrey, "this is Ben Bernie."

Winchell let loose with a sample of his staccato radio style and Godfrey snapped to attention with a "Yes, sir. What can I do for you, sir?"

Winchell wanted Bernie ribbed. Taking a stack of Bernie records, Godfrey embellished them with hiccoughs of his own and otherwise rendered them suitable. Winchell was enchanted and put a notation in his column: "Add romances, Miss So-and-So and Arthur Godfrey of Alexandria, Va. (who is too big for there). They cooed while a Nation listened."

From this one mention Godfrey got 36 job offers, some of them complete with certified checks. (The competition from New York was dispatched after a week on WMAL.)

Margaret "Mug" Richardson has been Arthur Godfrey's top assistant for 14 years. Miss North Carolina of 1934, she gave up a chance at the Miss America title to settle in Washington where Godfrey persuaded her to work for him "because it'll give you plenty of free time to take your elocution lessons." Beginning at dawn with Godfrey's show, "Mug" worked until 9, 10, 11 p. m. every night. She forgot about the elocution lessons

Winchell continued to enthuse over Godfrey, and CBS in New York signed him up. For six weeks he did a network show there with the same format he now uses on his network show. The musicians included Jerry Colonna, Mark Warnow and Raymond Scott.

"I laid an egg with that show," he admits.

Back in Washington, the man with the easy-going technique made a study of what in his manner had been attractive to so many people, and why he had muffed the bigtime. From 1934 until 1937 he recorded every show he did and studied it for errors.

He paid agents to go out among people and start conversations about Godfrey to see what reactions different kinds of people had to him. He found out then that pseudo sophisticates and night club habituees didn't go for him.

His self-analysis proved valuable. In 1937 he began traveling to New York to announce the Professor Quiz show, and did the Carnation Milk show and the Barbasol show from Washington in addition to his morning show.

In 1941 he started the morning show for WCBS in New York, sometimes broadcasting from New York, sometimes from Washington and sometimes from his farm which is connected by radio and direct phone lines to the network. A large cowbell, activated from the WTOP studios in Washington, was installed outside his bedroom door at the farm. A persistent clang was maintained until Godfrey climbed out of bed and notified the station operator to STOP ringing. (It isn't clear who woke up Marie McGrain, early morning operator at WTOP since it opened, or the engineer who had to tumble out of bed at 3:30 a. m. to get down to the farm for the broadcast.)

The Cowbell Is Passe

NOW GODFREY doesn't need the cowbell. In his New York apartment, the hotel and the outside phone are jingled every few minutes until Godfrey makes his up-and-at-'em status known.

"I get almost eight hours sleep every night," Godfrey says. "But I don't feel rested when I get up—I've got so many things churning around in my mind."

With his air time now reduced to less than 10 hours a week, Godfrey is as busy as ever. With a staff of more than 30 people working on a job which he and his assistant, Margaret Richardson, handled alone in Washington for many years, Godfrey still has almost no time to himself. He is busy talking to clients, advertising agency representatives, network vice presidents and other v. i. p.s of radio and television.

Four writers and a special assistant now amass material for "Mug" Richardson to hand to Arthur at the microphone. The notations on match book covers, which used to be Godfrey scripts, have been replaced by carefully typed scripts complete with Godfreyesque ad libs. These are provided purely to save Godfrey from the anguish of a mental block coast-to-coast. He departs from these scripts when and as he pleases—which is often and considerably.

Elusive To Own Staff

THE PRESENT organization finds it so hard to pin Godfrey down to get an answer, they figure "we ought to have a once-a-week meeting of the staff to exchange rumors about Godfrey."

One assistant spent two weeks trying to get "an immediate answer" for a sponsor because he couldn't get hold of him long enough to explain the situation. His secretary in the Arthur Godfrey Productions office sees him for one hour a day, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The rest of the week he's at the farm.

Larry Puck, his general manager, catches up to him as best he can. The musicians, headed by Archie Bleyer, sometimes have to accompany him in tunes they've never rehearsed with him, or—when he's at his unpredictable best—in tunes they've never rehearsed with each other.

The producer simply opens the phone to the music department and lets the staff "clear" the tune for broadcasting after it's on the air.

He Spoofs The Sponsors

BOTH sponsors and crew have to keep wary. Godfrey is sometimes credited with making fun of the products he advertises. This isn't quite true. He kids the sponsors, the ad agencies, the copywriters.

His most famous jibe, at the "dirty white bear" one of his sponsors used for a trade mark, has plenty of company.

"The sponsor wants me to sell Honey Grahams this morning. I sold them yesterday morning. They must have baked a lot of them," says Godfrey.

"I ran out of Honey Grahams last night so I didn't have my usual bowl of gook before going to bed," he informs his entranced listeners.

"Glasswax isn't hard to open. You just take a Stillson wrench," he quips. Or again, "There, I got the top off without a wrench. It's easy. Anybody got a band-aid?"

"Lipton's is a happy soup. It can take a trip up to the corner of the envelope to see what's going on. It has an interesting existence. Naturally an interesting soup is going to taste better than one that has become neurotic through being canned . . ."

'Bergs' Going Back on Radio

NEW YORK, May 21 (AP).—Gertrude Berg's "The Goldbergs," whose recent revival in television via CBS has won so much acclaim, is going back into radio as one result. She has signed sponsor papers to put her on the CBS network Fridays as replacement for the Jack Carson comedy.

It will give her the same sponsor for both series, but each will have a separate script. The radio show will start September 2. Carson will sign off July 1 as the sponsor goes on a two-months vacation.

Mrs. Berg, who writes the scripts, takes the principal role and does other chores, was on the radio from 1929 to 1945. Then she turned out a play and went on the Broadway stage for a time. Last January 17 she tried television, and quickly got a sponsor.

Her tele show will take a two-months vacation around the end of June. Because lines on the video can't be read from scripts like the radio, 33 hours are required to rehearse each weekly half-hour program.

Asked if doing double duty next fall won't be somewhat strenous, Mrs. Berg responded: "It may kill me, but I'll die happy."

McNeill Show Here Saturday

DON McNEILL is bringing his "Breakfast Club" to Washington Saturday for the benefit of the Washington Boy's Club. The National Capital Optimist Club, sponsors of the visit, have arranged to have the show in Constitution Hall at 11 a. m.

McNeill will present a full two-hour show. A roving mike has been ordered and the show will simulate the "Breakfast Club" coast-to-coast broadcast heard locally over WMAL, Monday through Friday from 9 to 10 a. m.

Sam Cowling, the program's chief heckler; Jack Owens, radio's only "cruising crooner"; Aunt Fanny, the gossipy spinster portrayed by Fran Allison; Patsy Lee, charming young vocalist, and Eddie Ballantine's orchestra will be on hand to greet their fans.

The newest talent addition to the "Breakfast Club," 11-year-old Bernie Christianson, is pleased to be coming to Washington with the show which will benefit the Boys' Club.

Tickets are available at the Hayes Concert Bureau, Campbell Music Co., 1108 G st. nw., at $1.20, $1.80, $2.40, $3, tax included. All seats are reserved.

LITTLE TOWN GETS BIG PLANETARIUM—Installing the costly machine which runs the show in the University of North Carolina's three-million-dollar planetarium at Chapel Hill. Sixth to be built in America, it is the only planetarium in the South, and the only one in the world on a college campus, or in a small town

New Planetarium Draws Tourists to Chapel Hill

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., May 21.—A new attraction is drawing visitors off main highways to this placid university town which has never before considered itself a tourist center.

It is the new three-million-dollar Morehead Planetarium, sixth in America—the first built in the South, and the only one in the world located in a small town or on a university campus. The university acquired it through the generosity of John Motley Morehead, alumnus of the school, and former Ambassador to Sweden, who made a fortune through invention of the acetylene torch.

Some years ago, Harlow Shapley, Harvard's astronomer, told Morehead: "North Carolinians are the most astronomically ignorant people in all America."

Morehead, irritated by this reference to his home State, growled: "Amend your statement, Dr. Shapley, to read 'Of all people in America, North Carolinians are the most ignorant of astronomical matters,' and we'll build a planetarium."

He did too, starting out on a $1,250,000 project which, upon completion, was pushing a three-million-dollar cost. It opened in Chapel Hill in May, under the direction of Dr. Roy K. Marshall, for several years director of the Fels Planetarium in Philadelphia.

Cavalier Club to Run Through September

VIRGINIA BEACH, VA., May 21.—Following the policy established in past years, Cavalier Beach and Cabana Club will continue to operate through September this year. A full schedule of top-flight bands has been arranged.

Chris Cross and his band is scheduled to move in on May 27 for a week's engagement. Charlie Fisk and his orchestra are next, playing at the Cavalier from June 2 to June 17. Russ Carlyle and his band will move in on June 17 to complete the month of June. Orrin Tucker and his orchestra will play the resort spot for a week beginning June 30, with trumpet maestro Henry Busse slated to appear for a week, beginning July 8.

Rounding out the summer schedule will be Dick Jurgens, Glen Gray and the Casa Loma orchestra, George Olson, Jack Fina and Henry King. They will appear here during July and August.

A dozen new cabanas have been built atop the main part of the club. These will expand facilities to 82 full cabanas and 50 demi-cabanas.

The playground, which last year was under the supervision of a trained child worker, this year will feature more planned recreational features. Trained supervisors will be on hand. In addition, ponies, swings and games of all kinds will be available for children.

A new feature will be serving of meals in the Panorama Room of the club, just off the sun deck. Dinner will be served regularly except Sunday, for the first time since the club has been open. Light snacks will be served on the open deck.

Calendar Lists Summer Events

Boston, May 21 NEC).—Nearly 900 New England recreational events, ranging from art exhibits through county fairs and summer theaters to yacht races, are listed in the 1949 edition of the New England Recreational Calendar, published here by the Recreational Development Committee of the New England Council.

Through the cooperation of New England State regional and community development agencies, events of interest to both visitors and residents have been listed from May through November. More than a quarter of a million copies are being distributed throughout the East.

For the devotee of spectator sports, the calendar lists major league baseball games, horse and midget auto races, golf and tennis tournaments and yacht races. For the hobbyists there are field trials and flower shows. For lovers of the arts there are art exhibits, dance festivals, concerts and performances at summer theaters. Sportsmen will find a listing of open seasons on fish and game and dates of fishing contests. For the studious there are educational and religious conferences.

Modern Basin

Forked River, N. J. The modern yacht basin, operated by the Bureau of Navigation, Department of Conservation and Economic Development, provides facilities here for one of the best-patronized fishing fleets along the Jersey shore.

Cahokia, Now 250 Years Old, Was Once Hub of Early West

TO CAHOKIA this May have come dignitaries of many States, historians and scholars, and a flood of tourists with an interest in America's early days. Like Williamsburg, Va., Cahokia, Ind., is celebrating its 250th anniversary.

Cahokia, behind Mississippi levees in southwestern Illinois, dots the portion of the river's flood plain long known as the American Bottom. It is a crossroads hamlet of barely 500 people today.

Cahokia's landmarks that stand out most are definitely of the twentieth century—an enormous power plant that pulverizes and burns low-grade Illinois coal and a college for technical training in aeronautics. These landmarks are accessories to the fact that Cahokia lies at the southern outskirts of highly industrialized East St. Louis, rather than to the fact that it is the oldest town in Illinois.

Old Court House

CAHOKIA was founded in 1699 as an Indian mission station by French priests from Quebec. It became the first permanent white settlement in the Mississippi Valley. While no match for Williamsburg in venerable buildings and restorations, it has its historic landmarks as well as its modern ones.

Cahokia in its early decades shipped cargoes of flour, lumber, and pelts down the river to New Orleans, a settlement 19 years its junior. It retained its French character long after passing from French to British hands in 1765 with the rest of the Northwest Territory, and from British to American hands in 1778.

Pontiac, Indian chief who fought two British expeditions in the territory prior to 1765, was shot down in Cahokia in 1769 by an Indian agent of the English.

Cahokia's structures of historic interest today include the church completed in 1799. Now a parish meeting hall, its original hand-hewn logs are hidden beneath clapboard. It stands beside its impressive successor church in the center of the village.

A second landmark is the Jarrot Mansion, oldest brick house in Illinois, built about 1800 with walls a foot and a half thick. A third is verandaed Cahokia Court House, originally built in 1760 by a French military engineer.

as Patrick Henry knew it

America's heroic fight for freedom is vividly recalled in re-created Williamsburg. It was here that Patrick Henry made many of his famous speeches, attended secret meetings in Raleigh Tavern and lived in the magnificent Palace.

Together with its historic interest, Williamsburg also offers golf on our new course, tennis, swimming, cycling, garden tours. Something interesting for the whole family. Fine lodgings in modern hotels, colonial guest houses and restored taverns.

Whistle Stopping

Out to the Old Ball Game

By Orval Hopkins

TRAVELING by taxicab, we attended the baseball game the other night at Mr. Griffith's roomy emporium on 7th st. The hackie we had improved our spirits by boasting cheerfully about his son, who had poked the car keys into a number of small openings on the dash. "Now I ain't got a light on the board," he bragged happily. He dispensed this gaiety to other drivers we encountered en route and in general got my companion and me into more of a mood to put up with Joe Kuhel's handling of our pitchers, who walked five men.

The crowd was vast, as you may have read. It was the night our guys blew one to Detroit, 4-2. So great was the throng, in fact that the hucksters had difficulty pushing up the aisles. The result was that at one tense point nobody in our section was watching Masterson, who pitched for awhile, and everybody was watching a peddler tossing bags of peanuts prodigious distances into the stands. He had a great arm.

Further than this, little to report on our Gnats. They appear to be an improved ball club, if you'll pardon this unsolicited assessment. Sam Dente looks like a fine boy and Griffith Stadium is beautiful under the lights.

WORLD-WIDE Travel Service Corp. announces with noticeable pride that Kenneth H. Carter has been elected vice president and general manager. He has been traveling passenger agent for Canadian Pacific Steamships, city passenger agent for Union Pacific, and transportation officer for International Monetary Fund. World-Wide's offices are at 2627 Connecticut ave. nw. . . . National Airlines of Miami, Fla., is expanding customer service facilities at Philadelphia and Norfolk this month. Downtown offices in Philadelphia are being opened at 15th and Walnut sts. In Norfolk, central offices are being moved from the Thomas Nelson Hotel to the Monticello Hotel.

NOVA SCOTIA was visited last year between June 1 and September 30 by more than 323,000 people. The SS Yarmouth, which makes overnight runs between Boston and Yarmouth, N. S., is owned by Eastern Steamship Lines, an outfit that has been running a ship on this route since 1912. The Yarmouth's first run this year, and I know I've told you before, is scheduled for June 17 . . . All-American Airways, Inc., of National Airport, has inaugurated passenger, mail, and cargo air services to Cape May County Airport, Wildwood, N. J. The route also serves the intermediate points of Easton-Cambridge, Salisbury, Georgetown, and Dover on the Del MarVa Peninsula. Flights originating in Washington will arrive at Cape May in an hour and 50 minutes, the airline says.

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay, according to Moore-McCormack's traveling emissary, is "an American Riviera in miniature, a peninsula jutting out into the ocean, affording two charming beaches of sparkling sand and brilliant blue water . . . But perhaps it is the night that will attract the visitor most. This usually is true of North American visitors who are traveling on board the great luxury liners of the Moore-McCormack line's "good neighbor fleet." That all established now?

A DISPATCH from D. J. Larson of the Northern New Mexico Resort Association says you can get a nonresident seasonal fishing license for $5 or a 10-day permit for $3. You can order them ahead from the Game and Fish Warden, Capitol, Santa Fe, New Mex. You can ship your fish home if you want to, Larson says . . . The Chesapeake & Ohio is describing seven planned summer tours in an illustrated pamphlet now being distributed. Some of the trips cover Virginia Beach, Colonial Virginia, and this city. Get a booklet by writing the C & O Railway, 1214 Terminal Tower, Cleveland 1, Ohio.

NEED COMPANY? I have come into a note from Mrs. Ruth Botts of Leon, Va. Mrs. Botts writes: "I would like very much to take two boys or girls for the summer months between the ages of 6 and 8. I do not want problem children; just those whose parents feel that it would do them good to go to a farm. We have a 160-acre farm near the town of Culpeper, Va., which is about 80 miles from Washington." Looks like a great chance for a number of people.

British Agent for U. S. Named

James T. Turbayne recently was appointed Assistant General Manager in the United States for the British Travel Association, Sir Harold Boulton, the association's chief representative in North America, announces.

Turbayne was assistant to the finance officer in the Association's home offices in London prior to coming in March 1948 to the United States headquarters, 336 Madison ave., New York, as office manager. During World War II he served as a flight lieutenant with the Royal Air Force. He was educated in Edinburgh, Scotland.

Sleepers Restored

Omaha, Nebr., May 21.—The current boom in interest in summer vacation travel has resulted in re-establishment by Union Pacific Railroad of connecting sleeping car service between Yellowstone National Park and the Pacific Northwest.

Discontinued during World War II, the connecting sleeper service between Pocatello, Idaho, and West Yellowstone, western gateway to the park, was added to the company's schedules on the brink of what promises to be a highly active summer travel season.

Through sleeping car service between Chicago, St. Louis and Salt Lake City and West Yellowstone was announced by Union Pacific at its headquarters here early in April.

The addition affords sleeping car service between Eastern points and the Pacific Northwest via Yellowstone Park.

Gen. Nicholas Herkimer's home, near Little Falls, N. Y., reminds visitors of the courageous exploits of the general in the Revolution. Although fatally wounded, he directed Mohawk Valley farmers to victory against Indians and Tories in the bloody Battle of Oriskany, August 6, 1777.

Parade to Start Memorial Day in Ocean City, N. J.

Ocean City, N. J., May 21.—Memorial Day here will be celebrated by a parade sponsored jointly by the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars. Arriving at War Memorial Park on Wesley ave. at 11 a. m., all organizations in the city will place floral wreaths around the monument, and tribute will be paid to the Gold Stars by Capt. Logan C. Ramsey, commander of the Pomona Naval Air Station.

The outstanding sports event of the day, the Fite memorial marathon speedboat classic, is scheduled to start at 1 p. m. from the Ocean City Yacht Club, at the foot of Battersea rd. This important race is an endurance test of both men and boats and brings to the resort an imposing entry list of fast boats and rugged men.

White Hall Hotel, recently acquired by Miss Louisa Corson, proprietor of Plymouth Inn, has been modernized by extensive renovation and will open May 25, featuring a public dining room.

Capt. "Tommy" Williams of the Beach patrol is receiving applications to fill the 20 vancacies necessary to bring the lifeguard crew to full strength. The qualifying tests held on the beach are always interesting to Boardwalk strollers.

Battlefield Is Site Of N. Y. State Park

Newtown Battlefield Reservation State Park is on the site of the Battle of Newtown (179), fought between Continental troops under Gen. John Sullivan and Indians and Tories.

A monument to the American leader is on the grounds.

Wildwood to Start Golf Meet June 23

Wildwood-by-the-Sea, N. J., May 21.—The second annual women's amateur golf tourney will be held here for four days starting June 23.

Conventions will hold the spotlight in the resort during the month of June. The New Jersey Gasoline Retailers will meet in a three-day session starting June 19, to be followed by the New Jersey Department of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, who will convene June 22, continuing for three days.

Party fishing boats have started to operate, making runs on weekends,

Web of Rivers in New Jersey Povides Fun For Canoers

TRENTON, May 21.—New Jersey's rivers provide a State-wide network of picturesque canoe routes for vacationists who enjoy this inexpensive and healthful type of holiday, it was pointed out here by officials of the New Jersey Council of the State Department of Conservation and Economic Development.

Convenience is a primary attraction of the inland waterway system of the Garden State, council officials emphasized. All of New Jersey's rivers are easy to reach and there are facilities for the renting of canoes so that visitors need not even bring their own transportation.

Navigable stretches of New Jersey streams were mapped and explored and are described in detail in the book, "Little Rivers of New Jersey," by James and Margaret Cawley, published by Princeton University Press. The authors point out that two of New Jersey's rivers have a length of nearly 100 miles and that it is possible, by making short carries, to travel 200 or 300 miles by canoe within the State.

One of the most attractive canoe trips is along the Great Egg Harbor River, from Sicklerville to Mays Landing, a distance of about 20 miles. Lupine, holly and laurel line the stream.

Old birches form an arch over the quiet little Millstone River which may be explored by canoe from Kingston to the point where it empties into the Raritan near Bound Brook.

Responsibility of Young Drivers Sought

A HIGHWAY safety educational program to encourage greater responsibility on the part of younger drivers when using the family car is now being distributed to national organizations interested in the promotion of greater safety on the streets and highways.

Widespread use of the program materials will be encouraged by State automobile dealer associations and State and local highway safety committees composed of dealers of the automotive and allied industries. The materials are also being made available for use by interested public officials, business, professional, civic, and safety groups.

The program, centering around drivers 15 to 25 years of age, is being sponsored nationally by the Inter-Industry Highway Safety Committee and the National Automobile Dealers Association, in cooperation with the National Committee for Traffic Safety. These drivers, according to National Safety Council statistics, were involved in 27 per cent of the traffic accidents reported by 29 States in 1947.

Programs Available

MATERIALS for the program include a revised "Man-to-Man Agreement" and a new "Dad-to-Daughter Agreement." The agreements are for the signature of eligible sons and daughters with their fathers and outline eight good driving practices which the young drivers agree to observe while using the family car.

Membership cards for use in the formation of "Man-to-Man" and "Dad-to-Daughter" clubs are available to boys and girls who have signed the agreements. The cards are designed to be carried with the driver's license as a constant reminder of the safe driving practices they have promised to observe. The eight good driving rules of the agreements are reprinted on the reverse side of each card. Sample copies of both agreements and club cards are enclosed, together with an Open Letter to Parents, promotional suggestions, and price lists.

The originator and copyright holder, Berthold Woodhams, vice president of the Citizens Mutual Automobile Insurance Company, has named the Inter-Industry Highway Safety Committee to act as his agent in promoting this activity and in clearing its use by other organizations.

7150 Killed in 1947

ACCORDING to figures released by the National Safety Council, 7150 persons between the ages of 15 and 24 were killed in automobile acidents during 1947. This figure represented 22 per cent of all persons killed on our streets and highways for that year. In addition 330,000 boys and girls in this age group were injured in traffic accidents.

Accident reports from 29 States in 1947 showed 27 per cent of the drivers involved in accidents, or nearly one out of three, were under 25 years of age. Because of the high percentage of accidents in this age group, many insurance companies will not write insurance coverage for car owners 25 years of age and under. In addition, most insurance companies require a much higher rate for coverage written for family cars used by 15-to-25-year-old drivers.

In view of these facts, all State and local public support organizations are urged to take advantage of this opportunity to help reduce highway traffic accidents involving younger drivers.

For complete details write: Inter-Industry Highway Safety Committee, 1026 17th st. nw., Washington 6, D. C.

Air Runs Started

Capital Airlines, the second oldest airline in the country, has inaugurated service into Clarksburg, W. Va., thus linking the West Virginia industrial area with the major industrial sectors of the country.

Mrs. Louis Johnson, wife of the Secretary of Defense, christened the Capitaliner Clarksburg on the first flight out of that city. Mrs. Johnson is a native of Clarksburg.

Bathers Venture In

Ocean City, N. J., May 21.—The first ocean bathers are being seen in growing numbers along the beach. While they stick pretty close to the warm sand in sheltered spots, most of them try a dip in the water and report it very invigorating and not too cold.

Entries coming in for the Fite Marathon Speedboat race indicate that this all-class regatta will be one of the important events of the year and furnish a lot of exciting interest for Memorial Day visitors.

Expanding facilities here will make it possible for the resort to play host to more people than in previous years. Since Labor Day, 130 new housing projects have been completed, most of which are two or more family units and now ready for summer occupancy.

Among the early conventions scheduled for this city is the Northwest Jurisdiction Recreational Laboratory. The conference is composed of recreation directors of the Methodist Church from 14 states. Headquarters will be at the Flanders Hotel.

Swimming Instruction

Miami Beach, Fla.—In addition to conducting its own summer swimming program at public and hotel pools in the city, the Miami Beach city department of recreation furnishes swimming instructors for the annual, county-wide junior swimming campaign sponsored by the American Red Cross.

At the Bridge Table

D. C. Team Wins Title In Shenandoah Tourney

By Marian H. Barre

OF THE twenty-odd District players who last weekend went to Staunton, more than half of them won some awards in the annual allotment to the Shenandoah Valley. Chief triumph for the localites was the capture of the team championship by the foursome of Col. and Mrs. R. H. Skinner, Lewis R. Tubbs, and J. B. Stone.

This line-up finished with a half-board lead over the Gerst team, of which Col. J. T. Willis, a former Washingtonian now stationed at Camp Pickett, Va., was a member. All other honor positions went to Capitalites, Cotter,-Johnson, Jordon, White, were third; "the Docs," McHugh and Gorton, fourth; Fisher McNutt, Rosson, Rosson; fifth.

Colonel Willis and Herbert Gerst, of Norfolk, won the open pair title in a two-round elimination match where most members of "our gang" were finalists, the best local showing being made by Mrs. Paul Golden, and Mrs. Gorton.

Spurred on by their record, the tourney trekkers' next objective is the Mid-Atlantic Championships opening May 27 at the Cavalier Hotel in Virginia Beach, a four-day regional event with commensurate awards. Mixed pairs play Friday evening; concurrent men's and women's pair games hold the stage in the Saturday matinee session; the open championship begins that evening, continuing through two rounds Sunday; a match for teams on Monday round off the program.

The tourney is sponsored by the newly-formed Mid-Atlantic Conference in which Washington is one of nine units. Colonel Skinner was elected president of the conferece at the organization meeting in Richmond.

A RUGGED constitution is required for fans who take advantage of opportunities on this week's program. Starting the ball rolling is the Federal Bridge League's open pair monthly at 8 p. m. tomorrow, 1300 New Hampshire ave. Next comes the Chess Club's round robin Tuesday evening, for qualified members and guests. Another individual, this one an annual feature, goes into the first of two sessions at 8 p. m. Wednesday at the Washington Bridge League in Hotel Roosevelt. Finals will be played June 1, 65 members had enrolled the first night registrations were accepted. The monthly point match at the Chess Club is scheduled for Thursday evening. . . . Bright and early Friday they pack their suitcases, and take off for Virginia Beach. Never a dull moment for those who play duplicate.

It was not "Mixed Party" (Section A winner) but "Four Roses" that beat all records with a 95 percent score last Monday at the conclusion of the Federal Bridge League's three-game play-off for section prizes. With 20 boards in circulation the Roses won 18; tied 2! Composing the team that historic evening were Mrs. Dora Schwartz, George Kathan, Mrs. H. S. Klein, and Mrs. W. B. Russell, the latter substituting for Mrs. Kathan . . . Need we say the Roses captured the Section B prize?

Members of the Mixed Party outfit were Rush Buckley, Mrs. Louis Stein, R. E. Mullen, Royal Kiser. Their understudies were the Gremlin, playing Miss A. Charest, Mrs. S. Kramer, Betty West, Margaret Nickson; while runners-up in the other section were R. A. Grant, Eric Morgan, Mrs. L. McConchie, F. W. Perkins, jr., known as the "G.M.'s."

Despite its heavy handicap the Cascade team, formed by the Skinners, J. G. Stone, Miller Roberts, G. L. Dickerman, finished top of the League with 665 per cent. Next came the Roses with .576; Allies were third with .552, members of this team being G. P. Graham, R. H. Higgins, Mrs. A. R. Hodgkins, O. R. Mathews, Dr. L. R. Edminster. These line-ups will meet in the annual play-off for the Luther Stewart Championship Trophy, the date of the match to be arranged later. A mixed pair championship on June 6 and 13 is another feature on the Federal schedule.

West of England Added to Series

"The West of England," by Ruth Manning-Sanders (Batsford, N. Y., $3.75) is a new addition to the Face of Britain series. The volume covers Cornwall, Devon, Somerset and the Scilly Isles. In this section were born John Wesley and Sir Humphrey Davy. Thackery and John Gay spent holidays here, and Bideford, in Devon, is the site of Kingsley's "Westward Ho!"

Windjammer Cruises

FREEPORT, Me., May 21.—The old-time coasting schooners, "Mabel" and "Clinton," part of the windjammer cruise fleet owned by Capt. Frank Swift of Camden, Me., are to sail this summer on a schedule of one-week vacation cruises from South Freeport, Me., in the Casco Bay region. This is the first time that sailing ship vacations have been offered in this section of the Maine coast. These two vessels will sail on their first cruise Monday, July 4, with sailings each Monday thereafter until the last cruise starting September 7.

Freeport, home port for the two schooners, is easily accessible and has good harbor facilities.

Vacationists who have never seen a sailing vessel soon learn the ropes and leave at the end of the cruise as seasoned salts who often return home to become yachting enthusiasts.

Amateur photographers find few other subjects as rich in possibilities as "windjammering." Fishing, swimming, digging clams for a beach party, as well as trips ashore to such interesting places as Harpswell, Bailey's Island, and Orr's Island to see the sights or attend a square dance fills out a typical week's cruise aboard a windjammer.

Oregon Drive Packed In

SALEM, Oreg., May 21.—A heavy snow pack is expected to delay the opening this year of the rim drive around Crater Lake and the opening of the east and north entrances, the Oregon State Highway Commission Travel Information Department was informed this week by National Park Services offices at Medford.

However, the west and south entrances to the park and on up to the rim are now in excellent condition, with no ice or snow on the pavement. Snow depths are now gradually decreasing up to 8 inches in a day, with indications that Annie Spring campground at the junction of the south and west roads will be in use much earlier than the rim campground. The latter is more than 1000 feet higher with the snow accordingly deeper.

Lodge accommodations are scheduled to be available June 15 when sleeping cabins also are to be opened for the season. The rim campground will not be ready. Annie Spring is expected to be open at that time and will serve camping needs, park officials said. Bus service is to begin from Medford, Grants Pass and Klamath Falls June 15.

Superintendent E. P. Leavitt of Crater Lake National Park said probable opening dates of the north and east entrance and rim roads would be announced as early as possible.

First Orient Survey Starts

Vancouver, B. C., May 21.—Canadian Pacific Air Lines' first Orient survey and familiarization flight which took off recently from this city's International Airport returned here after what was termed "A wonderful phase of crew training program completed."

A group of 18, including 7 C.P.A. line pilots made the trip to Tokyo, Hongkong and beleaguered Shanghai, and were accompanied on the return trip by W. R. May, company's development director.

While at Shanghai and Hongkong the Canadian Pacific aircraft stood by to evacuate Canadians from danger zones, but the offer was gratefully declined by Canadian citizens who elected to "stay put." Canadian Pacific Air Lines plans to inaugurate charter trips to the Orient sometime in June, with scheduled service to commence about August 1.

You Gotta Wear a Beard

All males (except visitors) must wear beards or be "arrested" by Keystone-variety cops at the Fiesta de la Luna (Spanish for "Feast of the Moon"), held in the town of Chula Vista (Pretty View), in Southern California, near the border of Old Mexico. The fiesta is to be held July 8-10, according to the area's All-Year Club.

Airline Plans Feeder Routes

New York, May 21. Northwest China, a land of camel caravans and mule trains, will soon get air transport, Aviation Week reports.

The magazine says that Civil Air Transport, headed by Gen. Claire L. Chennault (retired), is undertaking establishment of feeder service to connect a half-dozen points unheard of outside China to Lanchow area metropolis. The region lies in Tibet and Mongolia, and is virtually without communications.

CAT will use six Cessna 195 single-engined postwar planes built especially for low-cost operations. Based in Lanchow, which is linked to coastal cities by C-46 transports, they will fly to Sining, Ninghsia, Wuwei, Yumen, Santan, Pingliang, Tienshui and other places.

Cleveland's Home Open

Caldwell, N. J.—The house in which Grover Cleveland was born in 1837 has been restored to its original appearance and is now open as the Grover Cleveland Museum. It is on Bloomfield ave. and is open to the public weekdays, except Monday, from 10 to 5 and on Sunday from 2 to 5.

Australia Flights Start July 13

Montreal, May 21. — Canadian Pacific Air Lines expect to inaugurate Pacific air services to New Zealand and Australia with the first flight for Sydney leaving Vancouver, B. C., on July 13 and regular flights thereafter on alternate Wednesdays.

Leaving Vancouver at 11 a. m., pressurized Canadair 4s will drop down at San Francisco for refueling and arrive in Honolulu by midnight. There will be a 30-hour stopover in the Hawaiian playground and the plane will take off again Friday morning to arrive in the Fiji Islands that evening for an overnight stop. After a short stop at Auckland, New Zealand, Sydney will be reached on the third night.

The return schedule from Sydney to Vancouver through the same ports calls for departure Friday morning, reaching Vancouver at midnight Sunday.

Canadian Pacific will provide hotel accommodation and meals at Honolulu and in the Fiji Islands on an inclusive basis.

Students See A Danger To Freedom

By Fred M. Hechinger

IT IS easy to read of an investigation of a teacher here. the suspension of a professor there and the passing of a "loyalty bill" somewhere else without getting too alarmed. This is a big country, you say to yourself, and those are just a few panicky exceptions. But when you get 55 outstanding coeds from some 30 American colleges and universities together and listen to their restrained but worried questions, it becomes sadly evident that academic freedom is not as safe as it used to be.

Nor could the 55 young women be classed as "radicals. They were selected for all-round academic and personal merit by deans, professors and public relations directors and approved by the sponsor of a one-day New York forum on "Freedom and Security," Mademoiselle Magazine. "Mademoiselle" would not seem to be a "radical" publication either; yet its charming and fashionable guests seemed more concerned with freedom than fashion.

The alarming fact is that question after question—from colleges as far apart as our two oceans—indicated an underlying fear and a realization that fear has begun to temper the expression of some college teachers and administrators. And the danger is that fear is not just driving out the evil of communism and totalitarian doctrine, but along with it many of the essentials of unhampered thought.

Not Belligerent

THE students were far from belligerent. hey realized the seriousness of many decisions confronting their schools. When one representative of the University of Washington presented the case of the school's administration in firing two Communist teachers while a fellow student upheld the view of the professors both spoke without emotionalism, without "black-and-white" judgment, and without pat answers. They were looking for the answers and they were deeply and sincerely concerned.

Hechinger Wins Award

Fred M. Hechinger, education columnist for The Washington Post, last week was presented with an award for "the outstanding article on education appearing in a magazine of general circulation during 1948." Hechinger's article, which appeared in Harpers magazine for February, 1948, was entitled "The Battle for German Youth." The award was made by the Education Writers Association.

When the question of refusing indicted Communists the right to address campus meetings came up, the students sensibly and willingly accepted the answer that any institution is within its rights to reject a speaker who is under legal indictment. But when a student recalled that Professor Laski of the London School of Economics was recently barred from speaking at a college which uses his textbooks this ridiculous narrowing of the academic horizon was flatly condemned.

The students looked to a galaxy of academic, educational and journalistic stars—speakers at the forum—for the answers. They directed their questions to those who had seen totalitarianism in other lands at first hand—among them Joseph Barnes, former foreign editor of the New York Herald Tribune, Correspondent William L. Shirer and Banker-Author James P. Warburg. And they had a chance, too, to find their academic peers worried.

Must Be Intelligent

PROF. ROBERT E. CUSHMAN of Cornell told them that "any vigorous program for the protection of the national security is bound to threaten our civil liberties in some degree." In the long run our democratic freedoms would survive only if we have the intelligent will to keep them alive.

President Harold Taylor of Sarah Lawrence College called the Atomic Age—in Poet Auden's phrase—the age of anxiety, an age in which fear of power and the emphasis on material things had endangered the old moral values of relative stability.

"It is for this reason that when the fearful ones look at our colleges and universities they want us to leave out the interesting and vital parts, the parts which deal with social issues, with the economic changess, and radical theories," reported Dr. Taylor. "They want us to be careful what we say . . . We must preserve the gentility of the obvious . . . We must reserve our wildest enthusiasm for the status quo."

Enemy of Education

IT IS SELF-EVIDENT that teaching in such an atmosphere—and some of the ill-defined loyalty laws rushed through State and local Legislatures create just that atmosphere—is the mortal enemy of education. It concedes to the rigid, ruthless and unfree totalitarian enemy the false belief that another rigid confinement on our side is an essential weapon of defense. It denies the truth that our free ideas are supreme through their value rather than their physical power.

"It is because of the conflict (between two systems) that so many people in this country have become so violently interested in college education, and are now setting out, through committees, Legislatures, boards of regents and many other groups, to set the colleges straight on the question of intellectual freedom, and the education of youth," continued Dr. Taylor. "The pressures are coming, hard and fast, from outside the colleges, to regulate the conduct of the teachers who are inside."

To this Prof. Walter Gellhorn of Columbia University added: "If these anti-Communist bills would do nothing but stifle the 70,000 to 100,000 Communists and bottle them up, it would not be alarming. But these laws are aimed at all nonconformists." Translated into terms of academic freedom this means the stifling of intellectual progress since every scientific, humanistic, social and artistic advance is the outgrowth of "nonconformist," searching minds.

Vigilance Necessary

LONG before the present crisis Justice Holmes wrote: "I think we should be eternally vigilant against attempts to check the expression of opinions that we believe to be fraught with death unless they so imminently threaten immediate interference with the lawful and pressing purposes of the law that an immediate check is required to save the country."

That there is no such danger within our colleges is obvious to anyone who knows the American campus. "It is only by assuming that students are irresponsible adolescents, at the mercy of all ideas, that one can argue for the political screening of college faculties," said Dr. Taylor. The Mademoiselle Forum gave observers a chance to reaffirm their faith in the seriousness and democratic strength of our students.

Merge Arts, Science Study

Pomona College of California and Wesleyan University in Connecticut have joined the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in a plan for combined liberal arts and technology in a plan for combined liberal arts and technological study, The combined plan now includes 14 liberal arts colleges. Under the plan, students of high academic standing may pursue a special course for three years in any of the participating liberal arts colleges and then complete the requirements for a science, engineering or city planning degree in two years at M. I. T. Both a B. S. degree from the institute and a B. A. degree from the liberal arts college are awarded on completion of the program.

Offers Master's Degree

Russell Sage College will admit candidates for the degree of master of arts in three general fields beginning next fall. The program will be available to graduates of other approved institutions as well as to Russell Sage graduates. The master's degree will be offered in teacher preparation, physical education and certain departments in the School of Arts and Sciences.

Deerfield's 150th Year

Deerfield Academy recently celebrated its 150th anniversary at Deerfield, Mass., with a historical pageant which will include portrayals of the first arrival of settlers in the valley, three centuries ago, and of the massacre of 1704 during Queen Anne's War.

Junior Police Fight Delinquency

By Virginia McNeill

TACOMA, Wash., May 21 (AP).—A tow-haired boy, wearing a big shiny badge, pedals down the street of one of the city's largest and toughest temporary housing districts.

His white bike has red reflectors, mud guards, bell and lights. On the rear, over the license plate, is a sign that is the local police department's answer to juvenile delinquency—"junior police."

The bike is one of two unit patrol bikes; the boy is one of 60 volunteers, 11 to 15-year-olds who have cut juvenile trouble calls to city police 50 per cent in one year of operation.

The young "officers" concentrate on settling petty violations of their own age group. They take over neighborhood fights, thefts and misdemeanors. They direct traffic, patrol entrances, hunt lost children and enforce bicycle rules.

City Policeman Carl L. Petersen, junior police director, believes the organization is the only one of its kind on the Pacific Coast.

"We got it started," said Petersen, "and then found there was a national organization in the East similar to ours."

Bill Baughn, right, chief of the "junior police" of Tacoma, Wash., warns boys against handlebar riding, which is a traffic violation

Chief for Each

PATTERNED after the regular police force, each of the city's two youthful units has a chief, a captain, four sergeants and 24 men. Applicants are screened by Petersen, but the boys themselves have the final say-so on any candidate.

There is no admission fee. Petersen says the boys' money can be better used for the badges, ticket books, special headquarters, private bank accounts and membership cards of which the boys are so proud—or for the uniforms they are working toward.

Headquarters for the juniors are apart from the city police station, but all violations are reported to Petersen or to Capt. A. E. Farrar, head of the youth guidance division.

"If they can handle their own beefs," said Petersen, "we can keep the offenders out of the police books. The minute a police car drives up to a kid's house, he is tagged as 'bad' and he is likely to turn that way."

Daily After School

THE junior police swing into action daily after school and on weekends. The report book sheets that pass daily over Petersen's desk testify of their determination. Here are some examples:

"C. C. stole some food from —— (a confectionery). The attendant girl there notified the junior police and we went and talked to the boy and he came back and paid for the cakes he took."

"L. S. beat up a small boy that is not very smart. We saw the boy coming home and he told us about it. George and me went over the L. S. house and saw his folks while L. was there and he promised to leave the boys alone after that. His dad said he would make sure of that."

"M.B. was caught shooting his BB gun in the gulch. He accidentally hit D.H. in the leg. M.'s gun was taken away because he had been told before about shooting it."

Probably the job the boys enjoyed most is directing traffic—with violent arm-waving and whistle-blowing. Only once in awhile will an adult cause trouble about this. If one does, the boys simply report the offender's license number to city police, who settle the matter personally and decisively.

For the most part, adults back the boys to the hilt. Parents think the idea is wonderful, and merchants and theater owners applaud the diminutive cops.

Details of boys are assigned beats near popular school hangouts to keep an eye on disappearing candy and cup cakes. Theater managers have found that Junior Police with movie passes usually sit by unwatched exits and pass the word when someone tries to sneak in.

The principal aim of the group, of course, is early crime prevention.

Bad Boys Told To Study Adults And Improve

Detroit (U.P.). — Neighbors wouldn't complain so much about the boys in the neighborhood if the youths were given a course in adult psychology, according to a Wayne University professor.

William W. Wattenberg, associate professor of educational psychology, says that "some boys get in trouble over and over again, not so much because of what they do, but because they rub adults the wrong way."

After conducting research for a booklet on juvenile problems, Wattenberg said that some cases of "delinquency merely represents adult reaction to a youngster rather than the actual behavior of the youth.

"When a boy has a bad reputation or has created a poor impression, subsequent acts which might be excused in a 'good' child may be more noticed by adults . . . and be treated more seriously," the professor said.

Abner, the performing mule, displays his talents and manners to some of his young admirers. Like the company he keeps, he goes in strongly for straws.

ABNER, THE EDUCATED MULE

He's always delighted when it comes to showing off his bag of tricks

ABNER is a mule by nature but a social lion by occupation. He gets around, being invited to more gatherings, church dinners, club meetings and luncheons for humans than almost any other four-footer in the animal kingdom.

Nor do you have to light a fire under Abner to get him to all these affairs. In fact, he scampers like a fire horse responding to the alarm when he hears the magic words, "Kids, eats and after-dinner speeches."

But not everyone can get Abner moving. The summons must come from squat, amiable Si Otis, farmer and mule trainer. Si is Abner's boss, friend and teacher. Together they have created the only show in the U.S.—and probably the world—of which a mule is the star.

Abner was discovered by Si in Spain almost 20 years ago. He was pulling a cart when Si became fascinated with his possibilities as a performer. He wiggled his ears, danced, and attracted more attention than the wares on the cart. Si bought Abner without worrying about the pesetas.

For some years now they have been appearing in movie shorts, circuses, vaudeville houses, conventions and rodeos. In its heyday they did a turn at Rockefeller Center's swank Rainbow Room in New York. And Abner has made the Who's Who of famous circus animals.

At present the team works for a large California dairy distributor, entertaining at every major state fair. They also visit dozens of schools, hospitals and service clubs at no charge.

The mule which keeps Si in corn and oats has 65 tricks up his hoofs. Most of them have Si playing straight man. Abner can mug, dance, turn rope, skip rope, throw kisses at appreciative and attractive onlookers and even talk (Si understands donkey talk).

LITTLE ABNER, TOO

There is a little Abner, too. Junior is the old man's understudy—with some modern improvements. Loud applause and cheering inspire him to outdo Abner.

Si started the act when he failed at farming some 25 years ago. He was homesteading in Montana and bought a mule to help with the work. Si had more of a way with the animal than with seeds. Soon neighbors were crowding around, watching him teach the mule tricks. He began charging admission. A few years later he found Abner and was really in business. The team's been traveling ever since, and both members have found it a good life.

Mules are remarkably easy to train, says Si, especially if they're precocious, or just plain brilliant. You simply use a combination of force and kindness. Or, when you want them to hold and turn a rope, you sprinkle sugar at the end of the rope. That way, the mule learns much faster. Oh, yes—he also insists that Abner is the only mule in the entire world who consistently votes both Democrat and Republican.

Abner and Si make regular appearances at hospitals. Above, they do their act for crippled children during annual Shriner's program.

The mule has a meal at a Kiwanis luncheon, then demonstrates that he can gag with the best of 'em in making after-dinner speech.

After exhibiting his routines of rope-jumping, bucking and dancing, Abner lets Boss know that he has his own ideas about riding humans.

Si and Abner are old favorites with California children. They like good natured Si Otis and think Abner has a lot of mule sense.

And these knives are really sharp! . . .

Tossing knives—even if it's only at your wife—demands steel nerves, uncanny accuracy and timing.

The high spot of their thrilling performance comes when Mrs. Gibson is lashed to a revolving disc.

She becomes target for knives hurled by her blindfolded husband, miraculously emerges unscathed.

Madeleine Carroll

Everything changed on the night she played "Salma"

ONE SPRING NIGHT in 1926, a bored theatrical producer fidgeted as the curtain went up on an amateur production of a play called "Salma" in the English midlands.

A few hours later he hurried back stage to acclaim the performance of the leading lady, a blonde, radiant 17-year-old schoolgirl. And that's why Madeleine Carroll—star of the current Broadway hit, "Goodbye, My Fancy"—turned to the stage instead of the classroom for a career.

"My parents' dearest wish for me," recalls Miss Carroll, "was scholastic honors followed by a teaching career. But when to my profound surprise Sir Barry Jackson, head of the Birmingham Repertory Theatre, offered me a contract after my performance in 'Salma,' I accepted.

"When my father, a professor, learned of this he objected so strenuously that the deal was called off. But the damage was done. I wanted desperately to go on stage.

"For a while, at least, all went calmly. I made a gesture towards pedagogy. I accepted a teaching position with a girls' seminary near Brighton. My ambition was to make enough money so that I would be independent."

A little later, Miss Carroll received her degree from the University of Birmingham. For the first time she felt free to make her own choice.

"My father was furious," relates Miss Carroll. "If I were going to be such a fool I must do it on my own.

"And so I chose the career I wanted and I have never regretted it. At first it was the usual story of privation, hunger, discouragement, but the later rewards have far outbalanced that. Stage and screen have been generous to me, and I don't think I'd have made a good teacher anyway."

Prospective home buyers will get more for their money this summer than at any time since the war. Reason: some construction costs are down and the sellers' market has vanished.

HOMES ARE CHEAPER!

Sagging building costs are pushing prices down. The trend will continue

By EDWARD J. NICKEL

"SHOULD we buy a house now? Or should we wait?" In Boston and Chicago and throughout the nation, hundreds of thousands of prospective home owners are debating questions like this with themselves and with each other. For as potential buyers they are growing cautious as the heady, post-war sellers' boom draws to a close. Sales resistance, unheard of since America's entry into World War II, is today the rule rather than the exception.

"Will today's building dollar buy more house next year?" buyers want to know.

It's no secret that in many areas prices of new homes have passed their peaks. A report to PARADE by Dow Service, authoritative publishers of building reports, based on information furnished by more than 700 Dow correspondents in 150 different U.S. cities, discloses that last year's home buying dollar is actually worth $1.06 today.

For the first time in 11 years, Dow statisticians tell PARADE, some building costs have declined!

Prices of many grades of building lumber are down as much as 15 to 20 percent from 1948 levels. Labor productivity is up as much as eight percent. Even brick and steel give evidence of moderate price declines at local distributor levels.

WHAT WILL THE SAVINGS BE?

What does this mean to the reader who plans to buy a new home?

Because the biggest saving is reflected in the decline of lumber costs, he will find that prices of non-fireproof, frame dwellings will drop the most. House for house, the new frame dwelling that sold for $10,000 last year should sell from $600 to $1,000 less this summer, Brick and steel construction will drop only $300.

"But the most important news for builders and buyers alike," declares Dow vice president Myron Matthews, "is the disappearance of the 'gray market' in building supplies. The scarcities which forced many builders to pay premium prices for critical items no longer exist."

Last year, American builders turned out 925,000 houses. Estimates for this year run slightly less. Bankers, like buyers, are growing cautious, too, and the home purchaser will find it more difficult to obtain mortgage money today than two years ago.

Builders, caught with unsold houses built at last fall's costs, will meet stiff competition from new, lower-cost homes. Some will be forced to cut prices.

William Levitt, president of Levitt and Sons, a New York building firm which expects to turn out 4,000 low-cost homes this year, is convinced that the ballyhoo is no substitute for quality. "Since we've been in business," he says, "I've pulled all kinds of stunts. Now I know that it was all pretty well wasted. You've got to have the merchandise. If you have, they'll always come and get it."

Pre-War Home Prices Won't Return

By last fall, according to Dow Service statistics, home building costs in the U.S. had soared to 112 percent above pre-war years. Today they have rolled back to 104 percent.

No one, however, expects a return to prewar levels.

The prospective home buyer who is still dreaming of that brand new Cape Cod he could have picked up for $5,000 back in 1939 will continue to dream.

Builders, bankers and suppliers alike all agree that the moderate drop in the cost of construction from last year's peak is no forerunner of a sharp decline. They also agree that the home buyer will get more value for his money this summer than at any time since before the war.

All this does not mean that construction costs may not decline still further. Conservative estimates, indeed, indicate that building costs may very well drop as much as 25 percent by 1955—at a maximum rate of five percent a year.

COSTS WILL REMAIN HIGH

Even if such a downward trend continues, home building costs will still be more than 55 percent higher in 1955 than they were in the years immediately prior to World War II.

"The family that actually needs and wants to buy a house," declares Dow vice president Matthews, "will save very little by holding off. Further declines in building costs are bound to be relatively small for some time to come."

Unlike the home buyer of a few years back—who had to take what he could get—the 1949 purchaser is proving to be a careful customer.

In a recent poll of 250 leading house builders throughout the nation, a leading architectural magazine asked the question: "Do you find that buyer resistance is increasing?"

Eighty-five percent of the builders replying answered in the affirmative.

The 1949 house will be cheaper and smaller but better designed as builders continue to aim at the great mass market which they estimate falls within the $8,500-$9,500 price range.

Liveability will be a prime consideration. Since size is still strictly controlled by material costs, builders of low- and medium-cost homes are veering more and more to functional solutions. Space is still at a premium.

"Gingerbread" has been out since the war. Multipurpose rooms are dictated by necessity. Living rooms double as dining rooms, kitchens as laundries. Basements in many cases are eliminated, replaced by compact and less-costly utility rooms.

Radiant heating, mechanical washing machines and venetian blinds are becoming standard equipment in more and more low- and medium-cost dwellings as builders feel the sharp sting of competition for the first time in years.

The hard economics of home construction have forced many builders into the role of community planner. Low cost is achieved through mass site fabrication which in turn has led to the construction of entirely new and self-contained communities. Shopping areas, roads, parks and even churches and schools have fallen within the domain of the mass builder. Today's home buyer will not live in a wilderness or a neighborhood lacking amenities.

A discriminating customer, the 1949 home purchaser is no longer willing to sign the title after a quick look at a blueprint. He demands his right to inspect the product, to be sure of its value, dollar for dollar. His chances of getting it are growing better.

At desk used by predecessors Teddy Roosevelt, Taft, Wilson, Harding, Coolidge and Hoover, President Truman discusses world policy with Secretary Acheson.

The President's Desk

The world's most important worktable reflects an average American man

AMERICAN EXECUTIVES, the most desk-minded in the world, have never been able to agree what, if anything, belongs on top of their worktables. Sturdily devoted to the belief that the desk reflects the man, they have either kept them self-consciously businesslike, or littered them in extrovert frenzy with gadgets, gimcracks, souvenirs and mottoes.

Most important desk in the nation, and in one way or another influencing desk-owners everywhere, is a time-worn, fire-scarred, repainted seven-footer that has served every President with the exception of F.D.R. since the days of Teddy Roosevelt.

If the desk reflects the man, President Truman is a sentimentalist, family man, patriot, joiner, clock-watcher, and automaton with enough frugal practicality to make him cherish the give-away calendars handed out by business firms.

Placed in orderly rows around his desk blotter are such disparate items as a totem pole, telephone, four clocks (out of six in the room), two American flags, a picture of his wife, a gold Shriners' membership placque, an autographed motto by Mark Twain ("Always do right. This will gratify some people and astonish the rest."), a piece of granite from Mt. McKinley, a vase of flowers, a toy donkey, five calendars (one for last year), an appointment pad, scissors, letter opener, two barometers, a thermometer, lamp, three fountain pen sets, two ink bottles (one with white ink), a date stamp, a battered ice-water bottle, an engagement schedule, and two books named "Staff" and "Cabinet." A bench at his back holds a radio, and a table holds the overflow from his desk, mostly family photographs.

Of all, the most interesting is the battered old ice-water vacuum pitcher, which belonged to F.D.R. The new President sentimentally asked to keep it when all other F.D.R. personal effects were sent to Hyde Park for safekeeping. It's a tie with the past.

"Neat, cluttered, but not gaudy" seems guiding principle of Truman's desk. F.D.R. had more personal items, including stamp album.

Opposite desk is Washington portrait. Globe was used by Gen. Eisenhower in war.

Table behind President's desk bears pictures of his mother, Mrs. Truman and daughter Margaret; also water bottle and Army radio.

Truman works amid gadgets, clocks, family photographs, radio and battered memento of F.D.R.

Old jug, once F.D.R.'s, is used in preference to new one on table behind desk.

Piece of granite from Mt. McKinley and miniature totem pole occupy prominent spot.

Frame holds daily appointment list. White ink is used to autograph pictures.

There's only one telephone on the President's desk. Directory lists chief officials.

"Laughing" donkey, partly hidden by pen, was gift of a Spokane, Wash., admirer.

Clock once was chief usher's, has been used by Truman since he first took office.

Many calendars remind President of date. Steer was sent by a Texas friend.

Only picture on the desk is this one of Mrs. Truman taken in Kansas City in 1917.

Nature's Ice Thermometers

By WELDON F. HEALD

SHRINKING GLACIERS in our Western mountains are warning us to prepare for profound changes in the climate of our continent.

These bodies of slow-moving ice, some of them miles long, act like gigantic, long-range thermometers. Their increasingly rapid retreat in the past 100 years tells us that North America is warming up and at the same time probably drying out. If the trend continues it will threaten our agricultural and mechanical civilization which is closely geared to the present climate.

Twenty-five thousands years ago, nearly 16 million square miles of ice covered the earth's surface. But today more than half of that has melted and the remainder is vanishing rapidly.

If the present warming up indicates that the Ice Age is finally over, the world will be a very different place from what it is now. Palm trees may grow in New England, the grassy prairies become sterile deserts, and our coastal cities drowned under the advancing seas, for the melting of the world's 4,300,000 cubic miles of glacier ice would raise the ocean level 165 feet. But we need not worry unduly. Such a change might

---

WELDON F. HEALD has led several glacier surveys. He is a member of the Committee on Glaciers of the American Geophysical Union.

Members of the American Alpine Club, working at an altitude of 12,400 feet, survey 14,000-foot Palisade Glacier, largest in California's towering Sierra Nevada. Studies of glaciers must be continued for years in order to yield the type of information needed for long-range weather forecasting. New trends are apparent only after long analysis.

Is our continent getting hotter or colder? The great ice rivers on our western mountains may give us the answer take thousands of years or the trend reverse itself and the northern United States become buried once more a mile deep in ice.

But geologists and climatologists are watching the glaciers closely. They are surveying and mapping ice bodies in our Western mountains so that the slightest advance or retreat can be accurately checked in the years to come.

They hope eventually to be able to predict from these long-range ice "thermometers" exactly what kind of climate we may expect and what the water supply will be in our arid Far Western states. A party sponsored by the American Research Fund recently made a large scale map of the mile-and-a-half long Palisade Glacier in California on which glaciologists will be able to record future changes in size and volume year by year. It is these variations which will probably tell us whether the present century-old warm and dry spell is temporary or if our costly dams, power and irrigation projects are threatened with the stunning disaster of a permanent shift in climate.

MAJOR CHANGE PROBABLE

The danger signals are up and our ice thermometers are now pointing to a possible major change. Many western glaciers have completely melted away in the past quarter-century and the larger icefields show startling reductions in size. The Nisqually glacier which flows for five miles down the slopes of Washington State's giant Mount Rainier has lost a fifth of its length in 90 years. It is now retreating four times faster than it did a half-century ago. If glacial melting continues at this rate, Mount Rainier's magnificent 45-square-mile ice cap will disappear in no more than 300 years.

Glaciers are among the most interesting and dramatic of natural phenomena. They are literally rivers of ice. They form in the cold of high altitudes or latitudes wherever more snow falls in winter than is completely melted away the following summer.

So year by year layers of snow pile up until the buried layers are compressed into ice which begins to "flow" down the mountainside like molasses or tar, a few inches or feet a day.

A glacier ends at a lower and warmer elevation where the descending ice melts as rapidly as it is replenished from above. Since the lower end of a glacier responds to the smallest variation in climate by advancing or retreating, one can readily see why these huge ice rivers resemble giant, long-range thermometers and why this action reveals future weather trends.

The largest remaining glaciers in the United States are in the lofty Cascade Range in Washington State where several on Mount Rainier are from five to six miles long. Oregon's high peaks are ice-clad, while California's Mount Shasta and Sierra Nevada range nourish about 50 smaller glaciers. There are many on the Rockies, mostly small, from Glacier National Park in Montana to southern Colorado. But today no ice remains permanently in the mountains of eastern America south of the Torngat Range lying far up the Labrador coast.

A river of ice slides down Winthrop Glacier on Mt. Rainier, making "riffles" like the rapids in a stream.

Pickle Favorites

BY BETH MERRIMAN
PARADE'S FOOD EDITOR

All ready to begin the dinner party, these pretty appetizers may be served in the living room or on the porch, accompanied by well-chilled tomato juice.

...They're sure to impress your guests and add to your renown

THIS IS NATIONAL PICKLE WEEK! Frankly, we doubt that Americans need to be reminded of the goodness of pickles, or how much they can add to mealtime pleasure. However, we thought you would like to have two new recipes for appetizers that will add zest to springtime dinner parties—recipes, of course, that depend on pickles for their special savor. Easy to do, and very pretty, too!

Rainbow Slices

4 tbsp. drained sweet pickle relish
1 pkg. cream cheese
4 chopped hard cooked eggs
1 cup grated raw carrot
¼ tsp. salt
6 oblong hard dinner rolls

Combine pickle relish and cream cheese; blend well. Add eggs, carrots and salt. Cut 6 dinner rolls in half lengthwise, hollow out center of half of each roll; fill hollows with pickle mixture. Put halves together firmly. Wrap each roll in wax paper; chill 1 hour. Slice crosswise. Yield: about 36.

Ham Savories

10 slices fresh white bread
1 12-oz. can luncheon meat
6 tbsp. mayonnaise
4 tbsp. pickle relish

Trim crusts from bread slices and press each slice into muffin pan section to form a cup. Chop luncheon meat coarsely; combine with mayonnaise and drained pickle relish. Mix well. Fill bread cups with pickle mixture. Bake in hot oven, 400° F., 10 to 15 minutes or until toasted. Serve when hot.

Savories: Trim slices, press each into muffin pan section to make a cup. Fill with pickle; bake.

Rainbow Slices: Cut crusty rolls in half lengthwise; hollow bottom halves; fill with pickle; wrap.

Chill rolls one hour; just before serving, cut in thin slices; arrange them on a serving plate.

Fighting Fire with Soda

Plain old bicarb, dressed up chemically, is death on oil fires

IT ISN'T OFTEN that a vicious gasoline fire is deliberately started without something or somebody being seriously burned.

Chalk up one exception, however: the fire shown on the cover of today's PARADE.

In a split second, 400 gallons of gasoline burst into roaring flame and black, stifling smoke after it was set afire at the testing grounds of the Ansul Chemical Company, at Marinette, Wisc.

Fifty-seven seconds later the fire was out. No one was hurt. No damage had been done.

The dry chemical which accounted for this spectacular extinguishing job was bicarbonate of soda. True, it was refined and treated scientifically, but it was still old-fashioned baking soda, the kind that stands with the pepper and baking powder on the kitchen shelf.

The asbestos-clad man fighting the gasoline blaze is not a professional fireman although he is probably better trained than 95 percent of the country's volunteer fire-fighters. He is Ed Bader, of Green Bay, Wisc., an Ansul salesman and a student at their special fire school at Marinette. There sales candidates undergo intensive training in the use of dry chemical equipment.

Bader used a 350-pound wheeled unit to fight the fire which registered 2,800 degrees.

But this intense action of the flames was no match for the fine, white powder which was blasted out of its container, and then released carbon dioxide gas when heated. This smothered the blaze.

Since 1944, because of Ansul's pioneer research, fire extinguishers using dry chemicals like sodium bicarbonate have become as important as the war-developed fog nozzle and so-called "wet" water. It is used mainly against oil and blazing electrical equipment. Against wood and paper fires water is still the best weapon.

Bader and Engberg (in white coats) battle a simulated plane-crash fire with assistance of special dry chemical emergency fire truck.

Blazes like these occur in oil refineries, are doused with soda.

Danger in ether fire is from fumes. Engberg uses hand equipment.

Seersucker

WONDERFUL, washable seersucker is at the helm. Light, cool and durable, it lends itself admirably to high-style designs in spite of its humble origins.

Perfect for sunny days on land or sea are the seersucker styles shown here. Stephanie Koret of Koret of California designed them to be worn interchangeably, for work and play.

Of note are such details as the scooped neckline, princess straps, diagonal stripes, kangaroo pockets and brief shorts.

Available nationally, these seersucker pair-offs display amazingly moderate price-tags.

For street wear or sports, versatile seersucker is ideal. Two-piece outfit, above, has cutaway jacket, scoop neckline, flared, bias-piped skirt (about $13). The princess-strap sun dress has flattering bodice, softly-gathered skirt, two huge pockets (about $11).

Jaunty beach coat, with backflaring from arc yoke, is attractive enough for general wear. Rounded collar, wide cuffs and outsize pockets add to its charm. About $9.

It's June Week At Annapolis

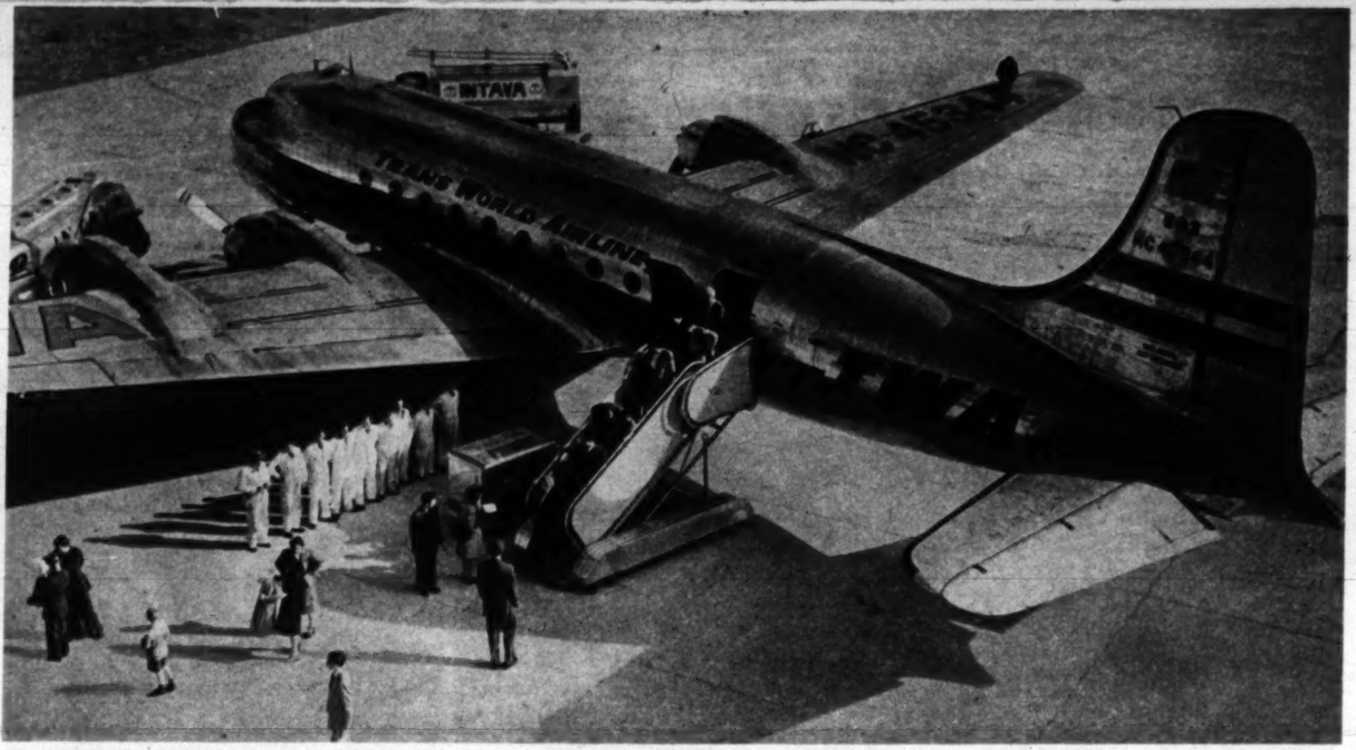
PARADE next week visits "Crabtown" on the Severn, reports on June Week at the U.S. Naval Academy —and the U.S. Naval Academy itself. Watch for it.



Transatlantic tourists land at Geneva, Switzerland. U.S.-Europe air travelers this season may top 10,000 a week.

SEE YOU IN EUROPE

Ships, planes are booked to bursting, but you can still travel—if you know anybody who has a rocket or rowboat

A MINNESOTA FARMER, bound for Sweden to see his family, recently raced up to a New York pier just in time to see his ship swing sedately out into the Hudson River. Swallowing his mortification, he hopped aboard a harbor tug, which then tooted off after the liner. Off the Battery the big ship stopped her engines, her crew tossed down a rope ladder, and the farmer clambered aboard, thereby completing the vessel's already bulging passenger list.

To steamship officials, this little dockside drama was mildly symbolic. Everybody, apparently, is going to Europe this season—even those who miss the boat.

Passengers are traveling aboard 83,000-ton superliners, 10,000-ton freighters and converted troopships. They are paying anywhere from $165 tourist to $365 first class for one-way passage. By air, they are paying $350 to fly one way to London in such numbers that some airline bookings are 100 percent above those of 1948. Together, they comprise the biggest Yank invasion of Europe since D-Day.

Tourist experts estimate that ship bookings this year may approach the mark of 1,055,000 set in 1938—the peak pre-war year, and the last year of normal transatlantic travel.

NOT ENOUGH SHIPS

Bookings might top that figure if there were enough ships available to carry all the people who want to travel. Lack of space is still a bottleneck.

Meanwhile, transatlantic airplanes are taking off from New York's LaGuardia Field and the neighboring International Airport at Idlewild at the rate of nearly 130 a week. Round-trip fare for the flight from New York to London is $630.

These travelers are predominantly ordinary folk, not rich men and women, or bohemians seeking asylum abroad.

Why are they going? Partly, say tourist officials, because travel-hungry Americans are inclined to believe that the cold war will remain cold for a while, and they have decided to go and have a look around while the looking is good. There are also many ex-GI's who are interested in paying another visit to the Europe they saw from a foxhole or a bomber four or five years ago.

Another reason is the high buying power of the American dollar abroad. This gives an added stretch to the average vacation budget, even though fares are from 25 to 30 percent above pre-war levels, and prices in Britain and on the Continent are higher than they were in 1948.

Holland offers "Tulip Tours," five-to eight-day jaunts through picturesque countryside.

Scotland entertains with contests, scenery and famed Edinburgh music and art festival.

Italy has good but rather expensive tourist facilities. Classic ruins lure travelers.

Paris will greet many Americans on the Champs Elysées. France expects 250,000 visitors.

Rationing abroad has eased, partially because of the operation of the Marshall Plan. Food is more plentiful and menus more varied. An American can get a meal in one of the best Paris restaurants for $3, a good meal in Italy for $2, and a fair meal in an ordinary German restaurant for about one dollar.

TRIPS ON A BUDGET

A minimum vacation budget for Britain is about $15 a day. A low-budget, two-week holiday in France or Italy costs about $150, plus transportation there and back. In Switzerland, where Americans have traditionally admired the mountains and the food, vacations cost about the same as they do in the U. S. Visas are no longer required for Americans in any country except Spain, Portugal, Ireland and the "Iron Curtain" areas.

For the first time since the war, Americans in appreciable numbers will be able to visit Germany. Aided by Allied funds, German officials expect $15 million worth of tourist trade this year.

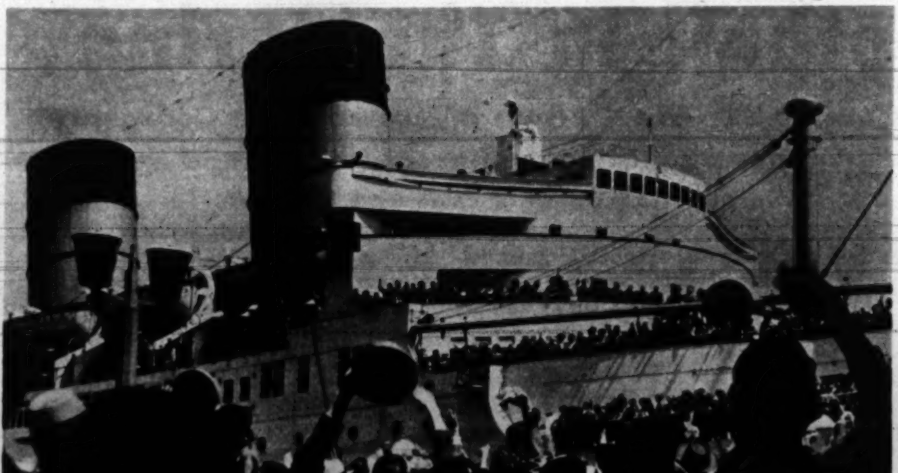
Pleasure travel generally will be restricted to the U.S. zone, which includes Bavaria, central Germany and part of the Rhine Valley.

Students and teachers are going abroad in droves. Passage for more than 6,000 was arranged by two student booking organizations alone earlier this season.

Most students are going abroad to see and to learn, whether by means of six-weeks' study courses or bicycle trips. Most of them intend to mingle with the people of the countries they visit and to study their problems.

Groups will make on-the-spot studies of the effect of the Marshall Plan on the European economy. In many instances, the visitors will gather information for reports to organizations in this country.

Europeans this year will probably be richer by a billion dollars because Americans have been smitten en masse by wanderlust. But what is more important, from the standpoint of international amity and understanding, is that Geoffrey, Jacques, Giuseppe, Lars and Franz will learn more about Brooklyn, Peoria, and Walla Walla than ever before, even during the war.



"Bon voyage!" Scenes such as this at sailing time of Mauretania are typical at New York's piers, where record throngs leave for Europe as the tourist season nears its peak.

GEORGETOWN

HEAD COACH MARGARITA

Football In The Spring

Tulips are out, and so are the boys in moleskins. At Georgetown, the nation's youngest coaching staff breaks in a brand new team

By FRANK DE BLOIS

FOOTBALL, its coaches believe, is a two-season sport. You can't win in the fall unless you practice all spring.

Right now, at Michigan and Notre Dame springtime scrimmages are building next autumn's champions. On the banks of the Hudson the Army is turning out another powerhouse. And in Washington, D. C., Georgetown University—among hundreds of less-publicized gridiron powers—is fashioning its dream of a successful season around the youngest coaching staff in big-time college football.

For 62 years undergraduates at Georgetown have been playing football with unlimited good will. And, although high scholastic standards frequently have deprived the squad of the services of well-muscled men with low I.Q.'s, Georgetown's football tradition is a great one.

Of late, however, bad days have come. Not since 1939 have Georgetown's Hoyas enjoyed an undefeated season. And last year easy-going Jack Hagerty, head coach at Georgetown for 14 years, watched in silent sorrow as his heroes dropped five games, then hung up his whistle for good.

As his successor, Hagerty picked Bob Margarita, 28, a former professional star.

To assist him in rebuilding Georgetown's football fortunes, Margarita has hired a bevy of able striplings. Among them are Joe Sullivan, a 21-year-old Dartmouth graduate, as his backfield coach; Jack Prendergast, 33, ex-coach at Blair Academy, as end coach, and the Chicago Bears' Bill Battles as line coach.

The staff made its debut when spring football practice began at Georgetown a few weeks ago.

The contrast in personality and performance between Margarita and his predecessor is marked.

Long recognized as one of the top coaches in the East, Hagerty belongs to the old school. Like Knute Rockne, Pop Warner and Amos Alonzo Stagg, he an old-fashioned strategist, impulsive on the field, good-natured off it.

Quartet comprised of Coach Margarita, players Desmond, Dolan and Baranowski meets in showers after day's workout.

As practice session ends, coaches Sullivan, Margarita, Pendergast, and Battles lead team around track. Coaches get tough workouts.

Star of the Georgetown backfield is fleet, slippery Billy Conn, who last year ran a brilliant 102-yard race to score against the Navy.

Margarita is a man of another stripe. Like Frank Leahy, Red Blaik and Fritz Crisler, he is quiet, composed, dead serious and deeply determined to make his mark as a coach, by following a pattern.

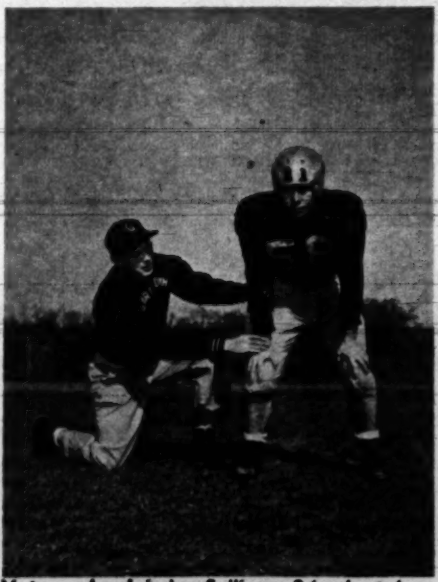
Margarita has been playing or coaching football for more than half his life. As a player he was a high school star at Medford, Mass., was his team's leading ground-gainer at Brown and, as a member of the Chicago Bears, played the seasons of 1945-6 in the backfield with Sid Luckman, George McAfee and Bill Osmanski.

He has learned his football from the acknowledged masters of his trade. At Brown he was coached by Tuss McLaughry, a venerable tactition now operating at Dartmouth. With the Bears his mentor was George Halas, a master of the "T" formation. And as an assistant coach he labored under Hagerty at Georgetown, the erudite Dick Harlow at Harvard and the elephantine Herman Hickman at Yale.

"They taught me plenty," he says when speaking of these coaches. "But the best thing they taught me was that you sometimes can beat the other fellow by outthinking him. I found that even when you're outmatched — as frequently happens to us here at Georgetown — you've got a chance if you can get some kind of a jump on the coach sitting on the opposite bench."

As a coach—particularly during spring training — Margarita is inclined to participate more directly in the scrimmages of his athletes than did Hagerty. Practice sessions are held daily on a hillside behind the university proper, and Margarita, Sullivan, Prendergast and Battles kick, pass, block and tackle with their charges all afternoon. At Georgetown the coaches work as hard as the players.

"You've got to show these boys that you like this game as much as they do," declares Margarita. "But that's not too tough on me. I'm crazy about football."



Veteran back is Joe Sullivan, 24, who takes his orders from Coach Joe Sullivan, age 21.

IT'S A JOKE, DARLING!....

The wives of professional wits find marriage isn't always fun. Here's why

By HY GARDNER

Currently on top in television is Milton Berle (center), whose wit charms his mother, Sandra (left), but has worn rather less well with Joyce Matthews (right), whose marriage to him was marred recently by separation.

BEING MARRIED to a comedian is no laughing matter. I don't think there's any branch of show-business where the fatality rate for marriage is any greater than among the male comedians.

Though most marital experts say that you need a sense of humor to be happily married, it doesn't seem to quite work out just that way with the professional fun-makers.

Milton Berle, Joe E. Lewis, Al Jolson, Ed (Archie) Gardner, Phil Baker, Jan Murray and other top-flight comics changed wives in mid-stream or simply begged the whole question and remained bachelors.

THE LEWISES

But probably the best one-woman audience in the world is Sandra Berle—and she's Milton Berle's mother, not his wife. I've seen Sandra laugh at Milton's jokes year after year — and one day I asked her how she kept up the pretense of thinking those old wheezes were still funny.

"They don't have to be funny, Hy," the loyal mother said, "I'm so proud of Miltie, that he could even tell a sad story and make me laugh!"

The ex-wife of the King of Television, beautiful actress Joyce Matthews, doesn't share Mother Berle's philosophy. Nevertheless, I'm convinced that the divorced couple is still very much in love. For you still see them hand-holding in some of our cozier nightclubs. All of which may prove that in the comedy fraternity the spark of romance can endure longer in estrangement than in matrimony.

THE KAYES

Henny Youngman's wife has learned how to take it. Whenever Henny entertains in a club or theater you'll find Mrs. Youngman sitting close to the stage.

She doesn't mind the ribbing she has to take from him. "My wife talks so much, she has the only sun-burned tongue in Florida." Or, "My wife has an impediment in her speech. Every once in a while she stops talking to catch her breath." Or, "I just bought my wife a new car, tomorrow I'm going to teach her how to aim it," etc., etc.

"Sure, I know all his jokes, funny faces and gestures," she admits, "but I don't concentrate on what he's saying or doing—I just keep my eyes open and my ears closed and think of all the wonderful mink coats and smart cars his jokes are buying for me. That's enough to make any woman smile . . ."

The now-it's-on — now-it's-off — now-it's-on-again marital existence of Danny Kaye and his wife, Sylvia Fine, at first surprised their friends. They thought that this knot was securely tied in two places: that Danny and Sylvia came up together from poverty to riches, and that Sylvia was the smartest gag staff a comedian ever had. I guess Sylvia tires of watching her husband repeat her material.

HY GARDNER, PARADE's regular man-about-Broadway, takes a look here at another side of the laugh business, finds that professional wits are sometimes very unfunny at home.

Al Jolson's young bride was spared the ordeal Jolie's previous wives had to endure. The couple was well into its second year of marriage before Mrs. Jolson even saw her husband entertain in public. And that was only after "The Jolson Story" had come out. You can't produce a better trailer than a movie to make a fan out of your own wife.

THE HOPES

Joe E. Lewis fell hook, line and sinker in love with actress Martha Stewart. Then the racetracks opened and Joe neglected his snookie in favor of his bookie and the marriage soon ran fourth, or out of the money.

Joe still carries a wallet around that his wife gave him the first Christmas. In shining gold letters appears this inscription: "Remember, Joe, no horse can run as fast as the money you bet on him."

Bob Hope and Dolores are too busy bringing up a family to worry about the pitfalls of other comedians. We won't discuss the Eddie Cantors—for Ida and Eddie have already spent far too many years establishing themselves as the American Dionnes.

As a matter of fact, Cantor was once introduced to a visiting Englishman, as the father of those five famous daughters. "How do you do, Mr. Dionne," the lord said. "My name isn't Dionne, it's Cantor," Eddie replied, "I'm Dionne in slow motion."

Probably the surest formula for success in marriage, at least among comedians, is for the husband to team up with his wife. Thus they not only divide fame and fortune, but split their jealousies.

THE BENNYS

The best advertisements for this system are Jack Benny and his wife, Mary Livingston; Fibber McGee and Molly; Fred Allen and Portland Hoffa; George Burns and Gracie Allen, and Phil Harris and Alice Faye. These wives are paid handsomely to laugh up their husband's smart cracks.

In this closing paragraph I won't name names, because it might be embarrassing. Nevertheless, I had supper one night with the wife of a pair rumored to be breaking up. "My husband," she whimpered, "is really a very funny fellow. I love him. But whenever we go to a house party he suddenly decides to do a strip-tease. Everybody howls, but me—I get embarrassed."

"What's so embarrassing about that?" I asked.

"Well, it's this," she replied. "What embarrasses me is that when he disrobes there are holes in his shirt and socks — and everybody thinks I'm lazy."

MR. HOGAN AND I WERE QUARRELING ABOUT PRINCESS SNOW FLOWER — WHEN SOMETHING HIT ME!.. I CAN'T BE SURE MR. HOGAN DID IT, MR. CANYON!
ALL I KNOW IS THAT WE SAW YOUR MARKER FROM THE AIR — AND BY THE TIME WE LANDED YOU WERE LYING THERE UNCONSCIOUS!
WE'LL TAKE CARE OF DOGIE HOGAN WHEN WE CATCH UP WITH HIM, REED!
THAT'S NOT THE IMPORTANT THING, MR. CANYON... I'M THINKING OF SNOW FLOWER... SHE WAS WON-DERFUL...
I'LL BET SHE WAS! WELL, STAY HERE AND RECHARGE YOUR CORPUSCLES... I'LL GO OUT AND LOOK AROUND...
I'VE BEEN THINKING ABOUT WHAT THIS HOSPITAL MUST BE COSTING..
AND I'LL BET YOU HAD TO PAY RENT FOR THAT SEARCH PLANE OUT OF YOUR OWN POCKET... I HAVE NO MON---
HEY! FORGET IT! WE'RE LOADED! RELAX, KID — I'LL BE BACK LATER...
WE'RE LOADED — WITH MOONBEAMS. I WONDER IF THE APPLE SELLING CONCESSION IS OPEN ON THIS CORNER?
HEY!
— THAT'S MY EATING MONEY!
YIPPEE! — YOU BARELY KEPT HIM FROM SCORING SIX POINTS!
HE JUST PINCHED MY LAST RUPEE!
GIVE THE MAN HIS RUPEE — AND HERE'S ONE TO REPLACE IT!
HEY, LISTEN! I---
DON'T MENTION IT! I COULD SEE IT WAS ONLY HUMANE TO BUY THE BULLY OFF BEFORE HE MOIDERED YOU!

EXPLORE YOUR MIND
BY ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM D.Sc.
1. DOES THE BEST AND DEEPEST LOVE COME GRADUALLY OR SUDDENLY? YOUR OPINION
2. IS INFLATION MORE LIKELY TO MAKE PEOPLE GENERALLY MORE IGNORANT YES☐ NO☐
3. ARE MOST PEOPLE HAPPIER AT THEIR JOBS THAN AT THEIR HOBBIES?
4. A MOTHER RECEIVED THE WRONG BABY AT BIRTH. SHE DISCOVERED HER OWN CHILD WHEN IT WAS 15. WHICH WILL SHE LOVE THE MORE? YOUR OPINION

Answer No. 1

Romantic love comes suddenly. Even two people who have known each other for many years may suddenly find they are in love. Some chance remarks may reveal their emotions to their mutual surprise But the deepest love comes gradually through the years. It is the result of shared experiences—success, failure, joy, suffering in which both have had a part.

Answer No. 2

Yes. That is one of its greatest dangers. The cost of living and education has gone up so much hosts of young people are dropping out of high school and college and other thousands cannot afford advanced training. Teachers are scarce and many only half trained because the new ones cannot afford proper preparation. Ignorance and inflation are in many ways "identical twins."

Answer No. 3

Yes, although I would have said "No." Psychologist Robert Hoppock gave a Test of Job Satisfaction to 66 psychologists. Two thirds stated they got more happiness out of their work than their hobbies. This same test given to large groups of workers in all sorts of jobs shows two-thirds are very happy in their work. I enjoy hobbies but they only make me go back to my work with more joy than ever.

Answer No. 4

The child she thought was her own. "Mother love" comes mostly from the care and long association with the child. The real mother might in time come to love her own child more than her foster child, but this would be chiefly because it was a more lovable child. Psychologists find foster mothers love their adopted children as much as true mothers — sometimes even more.

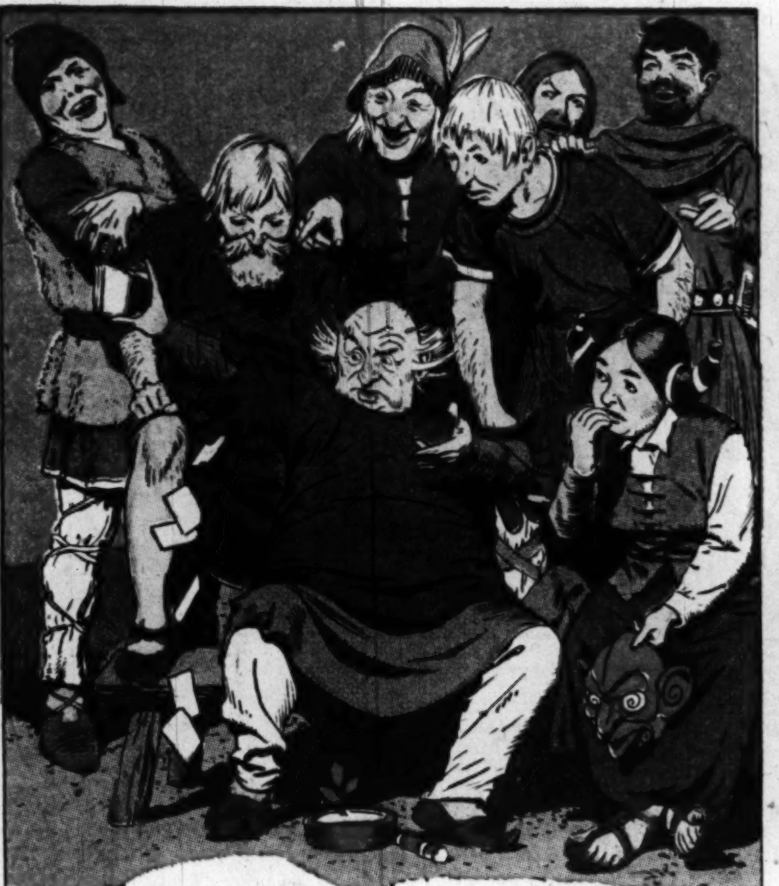
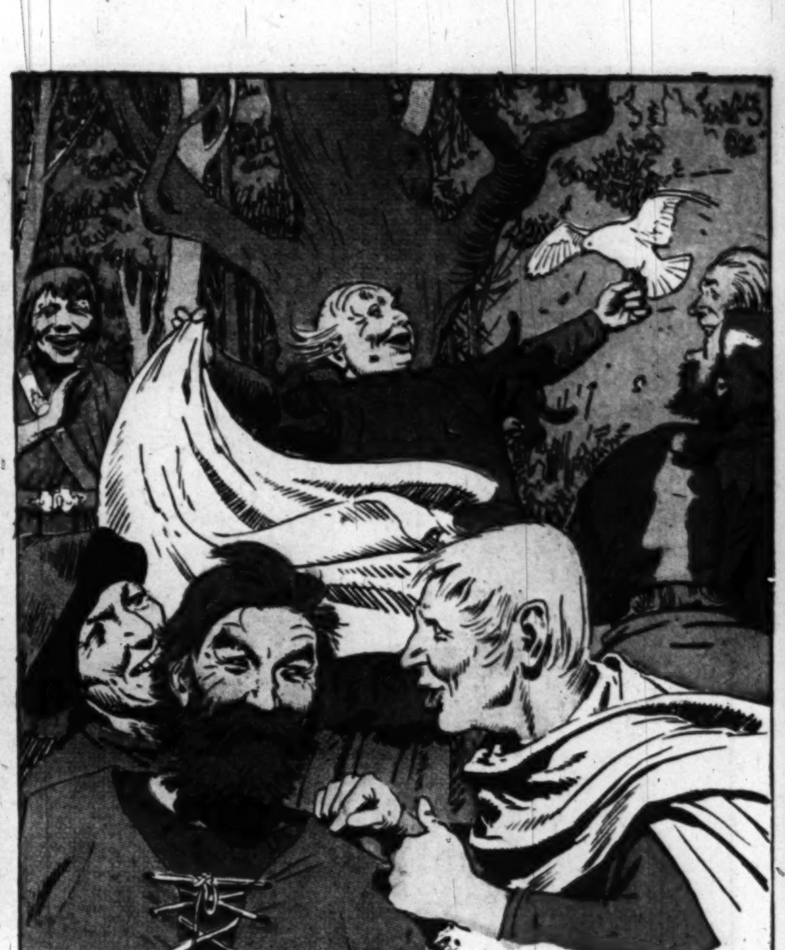
IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

BY HAROLD R. FOSTER

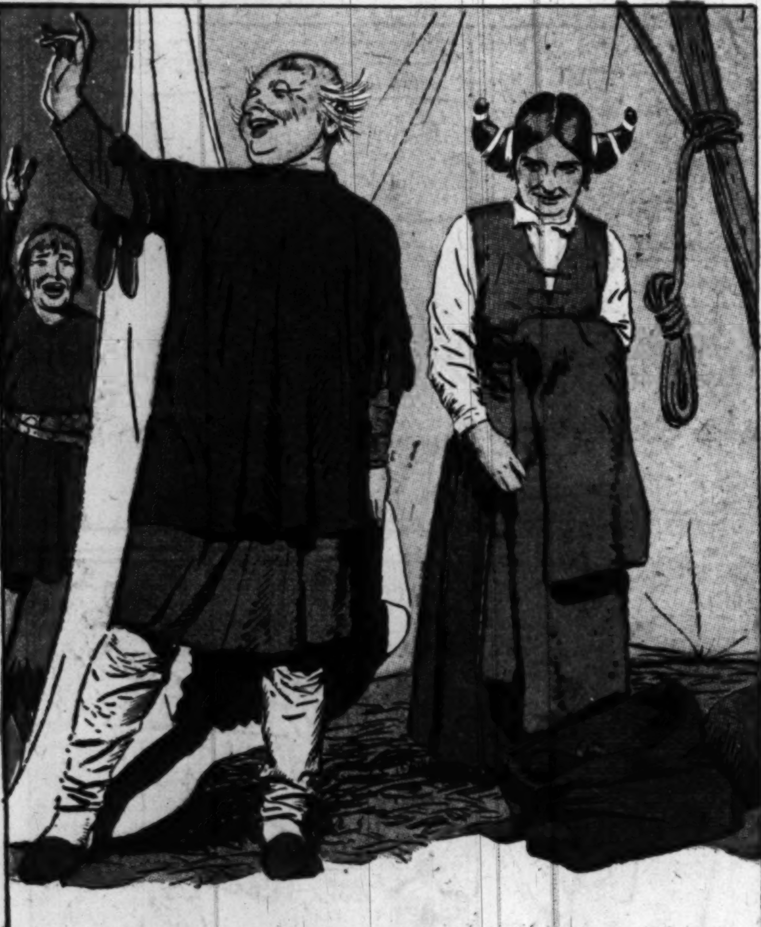
Synopsis: WINNIE, THE WITCHWOMAN, AND OOM FOOYAT, THE GREAT WIZARD, TOUR THE FIEF AND GIVE ENTERTAINMENTS. EVERYONE HAS A JOLLY TIME AND PEOPLE COME FOR MILES AROUND TO SEE THEM.



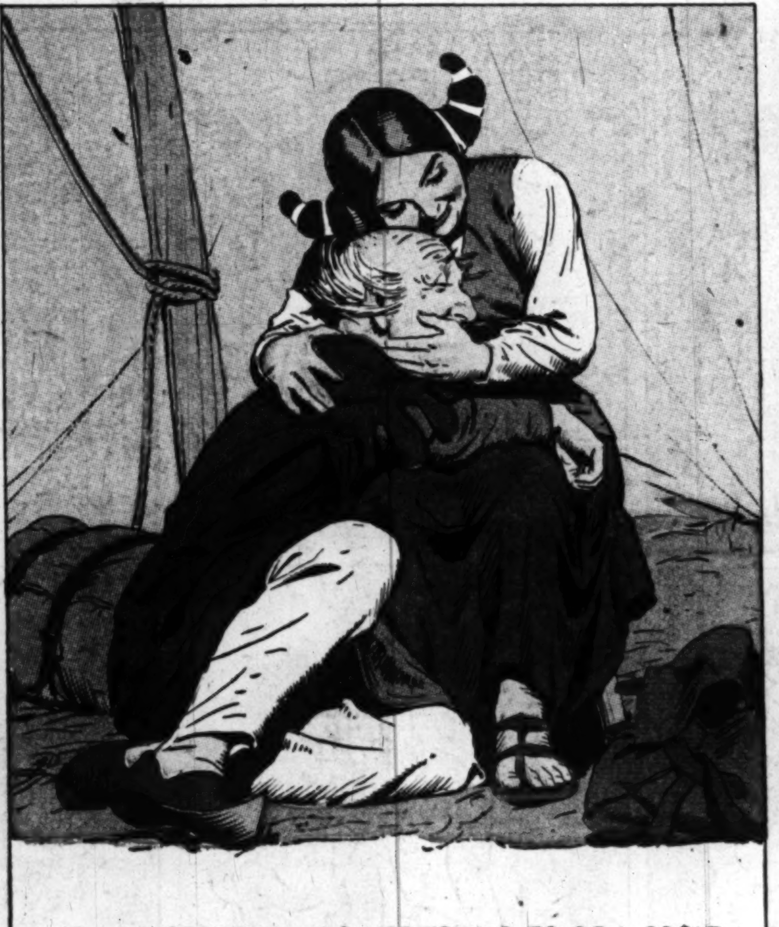
OOM AMAZES THEM WITH HIS MAGIC, BUT JUST AS HE IS GOING GOOD SOMETHING ALWAYS CONTRIVES TO GIVE THE TRICK AWAY.



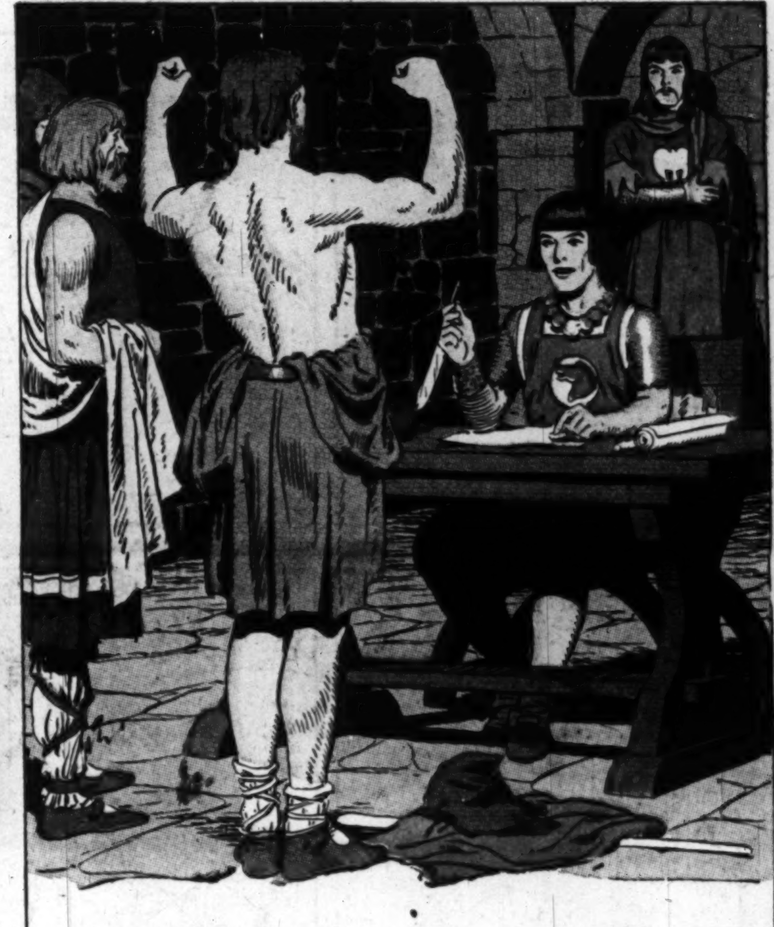
THE CLUMSINESS OF THE TWO SORCERERS AND THE TALES TOLD BY THEIR ESCORTS HAVE COMPLETELY DISCREDITED MAGIC AND THE PEOPLE WONDER WHY THEY EVER BELIEVED IN IT!



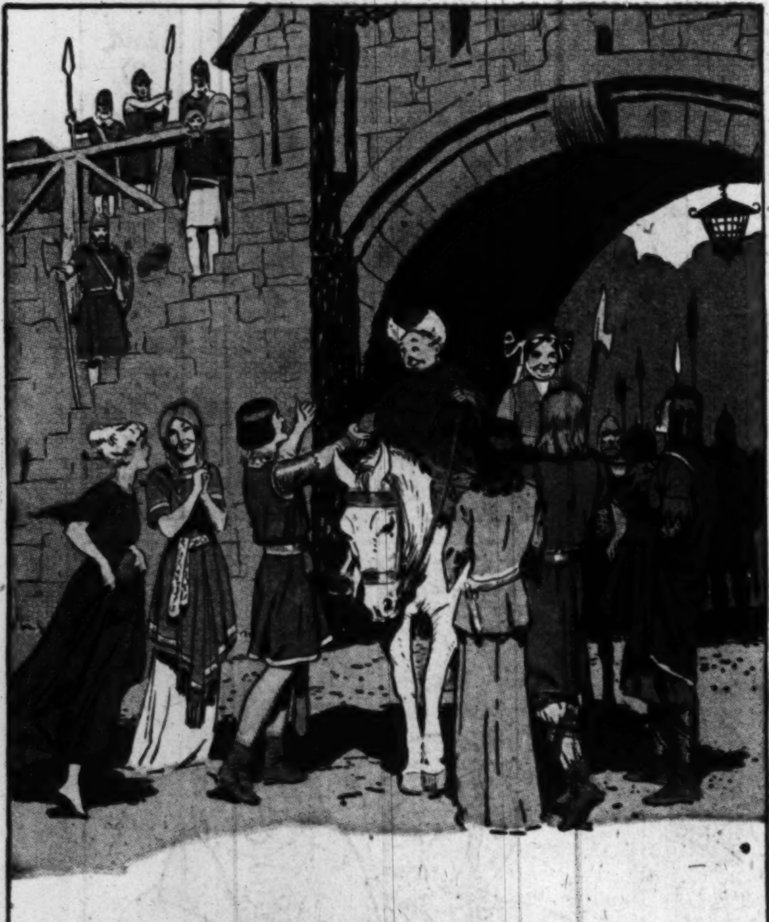
IT HAS BEEN A LONG TIME SINCE THE FRIGHTENED PEOPLE OF THIS FIEF HAVE LAUGHED, BUT HOW THEY LAUGH AT OOM! AND POOR OOM! HOW HE HATES TO BE LAUGHED AT!



HE HAS SPENT ALL HIS LIFE TRYING TO BE A GREAT WIZARD..... ALL HAS BEEN SACRIFICED JUST TO HELP HIS FRIENDS. FOREVERMORE HE WILL BE RIDICULED, A CLOWN!



BUT THE RECRUITS ARE COMING IN NOW THAT OOM HAS REMOVED THEIR FEAR. FOR IT IS BETTER TO BE A WELL-FED SOLDIER THAN A POOR, LABORING SERF.



SMILING, BUT HEARTBROKEN, OOM FOOYAT, THE COMEDIAN, RETURNS TO ILLWYNDE.... TO FIND IT FULLY MANNED AND, FOR HIMSELF, A WARM AND FRIENDLY WELCOME!

COPR. 1949, KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, Inc., WORLD RIGHTS RESERVED.

"I STILL DON'T KNOW HOW YOU DID IT," SAYS SIR CADOR, "BUT YOU HAVE SAVED ME FROM A FOOLISH, HOTHEADED DUEL THAT MIGHT HAVE MEANT DISASTER. IT WILL TAKE YEARS TO THANK YOU ENOUGH!"

OOM GOES HOME TO WINNIE, BRINGING A SUPPER GUEST. SOMEHOW THE LAUGHTER DOESN'T HURT ANY MORE; NOT WHEN PEOPLE LAUGH WITH YOU, NOT AT YOU. HE IS CONTENT.

SO YOU'VE GOT A LITTLE READY CASH THAT YOU WANT TO INVEST, EH, PHIL?
THAT'S RIGHT, CLANCY! I'M GOING OVER AND ASK BARNEY O'TOOLE FOR SOME ADVICE! HE CERTAINLY GOT RICH QUICK!
5-22
YOU MEAN TO SAY YOU'VE LOST ALL THE MONEY YOU MADE, BARNEY?
EVERY CENT OF IT, PHIL! THE LAST HOUSES I BUILT DIDN'T SELL AS FAST AS I THOUGHT THEY WOULD -AND I COULDN'T MEET MY NOTES!
YOU OUGHT TO HAVE A TALK WITH OTTO SCHULTZ, PHIL! I HEARD THAT HE'S CLEANIN' UP IN THE STOCK MARKET!
THAT'S A FINE SUGGESTION, MC GREGGOR! I'LL PAY HIM A VISIT RIGHT NOW!
I HAVEN'T GOT A NICKEL, PHIL! I MADE A LOT OF MONEY AT FIRST—BUT THEN I STARTED GUESSIN' WRONG! THAT'S WHY I'VE HAD THIS NERVOUS BREAKDOWN!
I'M SURE SORRY TO HEAR IT, OTTO!
TONY CURRUCCO MADE A FORTUNE IN THE AMUSEMENT PARK BUSINESS, PHIL! AND HE STARTED WITH A HAND ORGAN-REMEMBER?
I'LL-SAY I REMEMBER! I'LL SEE WHAT HE HAS TO SAY!
I WAS WIPED OUT LAST MONTH, PHIL! LIGHTNIN' STRUCK THE MERRY-GO-ROUND AND THE WHOLE PARK WENT UP IN SMOKE!
THAT WAS A SHAME, TONY! I HADN'T HEARD A WORD ABOUT IT!
I'LL TELL YOU WHO'D KNOW WHAT YOU SHOULD INVEST IN, PHIL—"SCRATCHY" MC INNISS! THINK OF ALL THE MONEY HE'S MADE IN USED CARS!
YOU'RE RIGHT! "SCRATCHY" HAS BEEN A REAL SMART OPERATOR!
YOU BOUGHT TOO MANY OF 'EM JUST BEFORE THE PRICES DROPPED, EH, MC INNIS?
YEAH! CONFIDENTIALLY, PHIL, I FILED BANKRUPTCY PAPERS THIS MORNING!
DIG UP THE "SCRATCH" AND "SCRATCHY" WILL DIG UP THE CAR.
"TIP" CASEY HAS A SYSTEM THAT BEATS THE HORSES, PHIL! I HEAR IT'S LIKE A PYRAMID CLUB!
NO KIDDING? I'LL HAVE TO LOOK INTO IT!
CASEY DOESN'T LIVE HERE ANYMORE?
NO! HE'S OVER IN THE COUNTY POORHOUSE NOW!
SAVINGS BONDS ARE A SOUND INVESTMENT, MR. FINN! YOU'RE BEING VERY WISE!
YOU'RE TELLIN' ME!

NOW, DONT ASK ME TO TALK. I'M TIRED. I'M GOING TO CLOSE MY EYES AND MY MOUTH
IT'S ALL RIGHT WITH ME. I'M TIRED TOO
H'ARE YER, MR. GREEN. GOOD TO SEE YOU AGAIN
SIT BACK AND RELAX
JOE! OUR DRIVER IS SPEAKING TO YOU
HUH? WAZZAT?
WHY, HELLO, MYRON. WELL, WELL. DIDN'T RECOGNIZE YOU
HAVEN'T HAD THE PLEASURE OF DRIVING YOU HOME IN A LONG TIME, MR. GREEN
'MEMBER THE NIGHT WE GOT STUCK IN THE SNOW?
I'D SAY I DO. THAT WAS THE NIGHT I ALMOST FRACTURED MY SKULL
YOU MEAN WHEN YOU HIT THE ROOF WITH YOUR HEAD?
YEAH. YOU STRUCK A FROZEN DRIFT AND I SHOT UP LIKE A ROCKET. MY HAT WAS ALL THAT SAVED ME
SIT BACK AND RELAX
MAY-22-49
AND MYRON, REMEMBER THAT DAY A LOAD OF PIPE IRON RAN INTO US AND NEARLY KNOCKED ME THROUGH THE WINDSHIELD?
SURE. THAT WAS A NARROW SQUEAK ALL RIGHT
JOE, I THOUGHT YOU DIDN'T WANT TO TALK
WELL, GOOD NIGHT, MYRON. NICE TO HAVE SEEN YOU
YOU'RE TOO TIRED TO TALK TO YOUR WIFE BUT NOT TOO WEARY TO CHATTER LIKE A MAGPIE FIVE MILES WITH THE TAXI DRIVER

QUICK, MOTHER, THE PAINT REMOVER!
FREDDIE! SHUT THAT THING OFF UNTIL I GET MY LAUNDRY IN!
MY MOTHER NEVER SAT ON THE EGGS FOR ME WHEN I WAS YOUNG!
BUT YOUNGSTERS ARE DIFFERENT NOW, ALICE. JUST THINK HOW PROUD YOU'LL BE WHEN YOU'RE A GRAND-MOTHER!
STAND RIGHT WHERE YOU ARE, ARNOLD, AND DON'T BUDGE AN INCH FREDDIE CAN'T RUN YOU OUT OF YOUR OWN BACK YARD!
NOW YOU KIDS KEEP OUT OF THE WAY WHILE I PAINT THE FENCE, AND THEN IF THERE'S ANY PAINT LEFT, I'LL LET YOU PLAY WITH IT!
WILL I HAVE TIME TO GO HOME AND GET MY GATH MATHK!
I WISH HE'D PAINT MY KENNEL! I'M ASHAMED TO HAVE CALLERS STOP IN.
BE CAREFUL, SLUG!
FREDDIE! ARE YOU CRAZY?
BANG! BANG! BANG!
I'M SORRY WE WERE SO LATE, BUT THEY SHOWED A WESTERN AND CECIL HAD TO SEE IT TWICE!
O.K., POP! WE'RE ALL DONE!
COME ON, ALICE! WE STILL HAVE TIME TO GRAB A BARBECUED CATERPILLAR
AND JUST WHAT IS SO FUNNY ABOUT THAT?
I TRIED TO HIDE, BUT THEY GOT ME THROUGH THE FENCE!
THAT'S THE ADVANTAGE OF BEING A WHITE DOG!
